"Not Hankering for Trouble," Says Wilson to Hint of 1920

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 19.—When the Presidential special stopped for a few minutes at Oceanside an old man told Mr. Wilson that he was for the League of Nations, and added:

"I am a Republican, but I voted for you last time, and I will vote for you again."

"No, I am not hankering for trouble," replied the President with a laugh.

"Well, it looks like you are the only one who will stand for American principles, and you have already borne more trouble than any other man," the old man persisted.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 19.—Speaking in the Municipal Stadium here today to a throng estimated at 40,000 to 50,000, President Wilson asserted that opponents of the League of Nations were seeking to obtain special privileges for this country by reservations that gave advantages which other members of the League would not possess, and thus were threatening the honor of the nation. He said that he, for one, could not accept such proposals.

The President's statement came after he had discussed the proposed reservations to the League covenant, and there was some bitterness in his tone. Unless the United States was going to assume the same obligations as other nations, he said, the country should not commit the mockery of entering the League.

"I will not join," he said, "in the name of justice in claiming an injustice of privilege for the country I honor and love. Neither will I scuttle. Neither will I be a little American."

The President said that he would be no party to belittling America in this way, and that he was confident the people would stand with him. If the nation declined to enter the League, he said, it would be declining the invitation of other nations to take the lead in the fight for liberty and justice.

During his address Mr. Wilson quoted from an article by Theodore Roosevelt, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES in October, 1914, and from a speech by Senator Lodge before the League to Enforce Peace, in May, 1916, as argument in support of the League of Nations.

A Remarkable Spectacle.

The spectacle while the President was speaking was one seldom equaled in this country. The stadium, which was the scene of his address, is more than 1,000 feet long, built in a natural depression of the ground, and the bank upon bank of concrete seats will accommodate 35,000 to 40,000 people. Every seat was filled and thousands stood in the aisles and along the top of the walls or hung precariously upon the concrete abutments. Thousands more crowded in upon the field.

At the rear of the stadium, more than a thousand feet away from a glass-inclosed platform, from which the President spoke, were girls in white, grouped so as to spell out in letters 100 feet long the word "Welcome." Thousands in the crowd carried American flags, which they waved frantically when the President and Mrs. Wilson were driven about the running track of the stadium and back to the platform.

By the use of an electrical device the carrying power of the President's voice was increased and borne to all parts of the stadium, so that he could be heard by practically all of the crowd. All but a few remained throughout his address.

There were frequent outbursts of applause during Mr. Wilson's speech, and that coming from the far ends of the stadium sounded like a booming echo. At times the cheering passed in waves down one side of the crowd, along the rear of the stadium, and then back on its way toward the platform where the President was speaking.

Mr. Wilson was introduced by Mayor Wilde in a few words: "Mr. President, the great American family, 50,000 strong, welcomes you." That was the signal for the first wave of applause.

The President began by saying that the people of the United States had not been correctly informed as to the treaty, the principles of which he wished to expound.

Up to this time, all over the world, said the President, the principle of the rights of the people had been disregarded. The world was depressed and uneasy as to the future. When unrest was found everywhere, he said, there

Poland to Have a Navy When Treaty Is Ratified

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The organization of a Polish Navy, to become operative with the ratification of the Peace Treaty, is proceeding rapidly, according to advices from Polish sources. The fleet will consist, according to present plans, of four armored cruisers and twelve large torpedo boats. It will have a personnel of 3,500, including 150 officers, probably under the command of Admiral Porebski.

JOHNSON GIVES UP ANTI-LEAGUE TOUR

Senator to Start for Washington Tomorrow, Though Chiefs Now Advise Him to Go On.

CLAIM AMENDMENT VICTORY

Republican Leaders Count On Democratic Help to Offset Mild Reservationists.

DULUTH, Sept. 19.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson announced tonight that he had abandoned his proposed trip to the Pacific Coast to answer President Wilson's speeches on the League of Nations.

He will speak at St. Paul and Minneapolis tomorrow and will leave for Washington Sunday.

"I am greatly disappointed because I am unable to go to the Pacific Coast, but I have decided that my presence is urgently needed in Washington next week," said the Senator. "I want to be in the Senate when my amendment to the League covenant abolishing the preponderance of Great Britain's voting power in the assembly of the League comes up for consideration.

"I will answer President Wilson's speeches on the Pacific Coast in an address which I will issue to the people of California."

Leaders Urge Johnson to Continue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Senators Lodge and Knox joined today in a telegram to Senator Johnson advising him to continue his tour. They decided that they could afford to let the test of strength come over the Johnson amendment to the Peace Treaty, for equalizing the votes of the United States and Great Britain in the League of Nations Assembly, without Mr. Johnson's presence.

In the same connection it developed that Senator Borah had departed from his announced intention of summoning Mr. Johnson home post haste. After saying that he had notified Senator Lodge that he would call in Senator Johnson, Mr. Borah was moved by the advice of Senator Knox to word his message to Mr. Johnson so that it constituted simply a statement of the situation in the Senate.

Mr. Borah gave details as to how matters stood with relation to the amendment, and then said that though he would like to see Senator Johnson in the Senate when the question came up for debate and vote, he left the decision entirely to Mr. Johnson. Should Mr. Johnson decided not to return, but to go on to the Pacific Coast to wage in his own and adjoining States the aggressive fight he has been making against the League, Senator Borah assured him that his interests in the Senate would be looked after by his friends.

There is no disagreement, it was made plain, between Senators Lodge and Knox and Senator Borah.

Opposition to Forcing a Vote.

A development which today encouraged Senator Johnson's friends was the virtual assurance that the little group of mild reservationists, who in a close contest hold the balance of power, would vote against any effort by treaty supporters to force a vote on the Johnson amendment without due debate. Assurance of their support, received informally, was felt to insure the staving off of the test vote until the whole question has been thoroughly thrashed out in debate.

The mild reservationists will all vote against the amendments finally, but it was explained that they were interested in seeing the contest conducted with complete fairness. They are continuing their discussion of the plan of having the Johnson amendment, or its corollary, the Moses amendment, covered in a reservation. This would provide that in a dispute between Great Britain and the United States none of Britain's voting dominions should be permitted to vote.

Senator Lodge agreed that this would be feasible, and may be willing to sup-

MORGENTHAU SEES GERMANY STRONG FOR ANOTHER WAR

MAY GOBBLE UP RUSSIA

HIS SOLE HOPE IN LEAGUE

Newly Created Powers Must Be Assured of Justice Without Engaging in Wars.

PARIS, Sept. 19, (Associated Press.)—"Germany came through this war a perfect dynamo of strength. Her human military power is practically as great as ever, and her 65,000,000 people have been schooled and hardened by trials. They have learned economy and self-denial.

"The nation has been compressed into a concentrated mass, which is surcharged with energy and moving with centripetal force, while Germany's neighbors are spreading themselves out thin and quarreling and moving with centrifugal force."

Thus spoke Henry Morgenthau, who headed the United States Commission of Investigation which has been at work in Poland, in discussing today his observations in Central Europe.

"And what will be the result?" Mr. Morgenthau asked. Replying to his question, he continued:

"If disintegration keeps up among Germany's neighbors there can be but one result. I doubt whether Germany fully appreciates her own strength. As she sits, calmly watching the dickering going on between the new States, which are losing sight of great principles and fighting over little strips of territory, she must take grim satisfaction in the battle her enemies are waging in her behalf. And a Germany encouraged by such discord among weak and struggling States undoubtedly will resort to arms within a few years and regain her lost territory.

"What will prevent the military clique from regaining control in Germany if Europe continues to offer such tempting prizes to various nationalities? Such a situation will not encourage Germany to regain her trade by peaceful means and to pay indemnities. It will not satisfy the militarists of Germany to return to the factories if their war-worn neighbors weaken themselves further and deliberately offer themselves as prey to the Prussian spirit.

"What is to encourage the democrats in Germany who are trying to get away from militarism? Europe is rapidly driving on toward a situation which eventually must result in a coalition between Russia and Germany and the absolute destruction of many of the newly created powers unless steps be taken to prevent it.

"Opinion is strong that the League of Nations is the only means for preventing such a disaster. And it must come soon and have the loyal support of both great and small powers. Greece, Italy, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Poland and other European countries which have been fought over and are in a sadly weakened condition need the support of some organization which will afford them the proper tribunal for their disputes and assist them in winning their publics away from the idea that war is the only means of getting justice.

"It is impossible to create barrier States against Bolshevism and militarism; and if these new States continue their quarrels and weaken themselves they cannot resist any enemy, much less a great untouched power like Germany.

"Germany intelligently refused to fight to a finish with the United States. She withdrew in good order to a place of safety, where the war had not ruined her factories and where everything was ready for the resumption of peace industry.

"Germany has gone to work, but work is impossible in many of those districts where the Germans destroyed machinery and the people have not the raw materials with which to work. But these ruined countries must not make Germany's economic restoration easier by fighting among themselves and leaving Germany the world market without competition.

"The forces of peace must organize and consolidate; otherwise they are in-

LEAVES COMPANION WAITING

Estimated That $500,000 in Securities Has Been Lost in This Way Since Aug. 10.

Another messenger in the financial district disappeared yesterday and with him went $140,000 in Liberty bonds. This became known when the police and the National Surety Company were asked to look for Leo Julofsky, 17 years old, who lives at 1,391 Madison Avenue. The boy was employed by Levinson & Co. of 52 Broadway, and the bonds that are missing represent part of $400,000 worth of securities the messenger had in his possession when he left the offices of his employers early in the afternoon. Some of the securities were delivered. Since Aug. 10 it was estimated that about $500,000 had disappeared in this way.

Young Julofsky went out in the early afternoon with another messenger to deliver the bonds. Several deliveries were made by the two messengers, and they started for the office of Mabon & Co., 45 Wall Street, to deliver Liberty bonds valued at $330,000. On the way they stopped at 71 Broadway to make a delivery and Julofsky handed the satchel to the other boy and told him he was going to the washroom. The second boy waited until he was tired, and not finding his companion went to the office of Mabon & Co. There the satchel was opened and it was found that the $140,000 in Liberty bonds was missing. The second messenger, however, delivered to the firm the bonds which were left, which amounted to $190,000.

As soon as notified, the police and the National Surety Company put detectives on the case. It was said at Levinson & Co. that Julofsky had been hired three weeks ago. The missing bonds were of the fourth issue and of $1,000 denomination. Julofsky is said to have worn a brown suit, a soft felt hat, black shoes and a shirt with a turned-down collar when he disappeared. He is of dark complexion, has dark brown hair and brown eyes.

Girl Confesses to Thefts.

Fifty burglaries in three months was the confessed record of a 16-year-old girl who was brought into the Morrisania Court yesterday to answer a charge of having entered the apartments of Herman Friedman, at 827 Kelly Street, on Sept. 11. The prisoner, who confined her activities to the Hunts Point section of the Bronx, was Molly Rosen of 54 East 107th Street. She told her mother she had a job as clerk in a downtown office, left each morning after breakfast and then averaged about three robberies each day, except on holidays.

When the Rosen girl was called before the Court, Assistant District Attorney Herman Fliederblum presented the confession to Magistrate Marsh. He said the document was signed by the prisoner after her arrest on Thursday. Parts of the confession were read to the Court by Mr. Fliederblum.

Herman Friedman, the complainant, charged that the girl took from a dresser in his apartment a diamond ring valued at $125 and $19 in cash. She was held in $2,500 bail for examination on Monday.

The girl was arrested Thursday after having entered the apartment of Samuel Weiss on the first floor of 1,449 Minford Place, the Bronx, it was alleged. According to the detectives who made the arrest, Weiss, who is a motorman employed at night by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was in bed in the rear of the apartment when he heard someone come through the hall door. When he went to the door he found that his trousers, which he had placed on a chair near the door, had been thrown to the floor. He ran to the street and asked a neighbor at the entrance if he had seen anyone come out of the building recently. The neighbors pointed to the defendant, who was then arrested by the three detectives who happened to pass in an automobile and who said they locked her up and she then made the confession presented in court.

Burglars paid the third visit within a month to the apartment house at 554 West 184th Street on Thursday night. They entered the apartment of Henry L. Sicklass and took Liberty bonds and jewelry to the value of $1,000. Miss Catherine Lyontinson, a guest, returned and found the place in disorder. Believing Mrs. Sicklass was cleaning she laid her pocketbook down on a table and went into her room. When she came out the door was open and her pocketbook gone from the table.

Burglars have visited the home of Romey Barbella, at 169 Park Avenue, Brooklyn, four times in the last ten days. Their last visit was on Thursday. Each time the thieves have gone through the place thoroughly and stolen jewelry, furs and household utensils. Now the family will not live in the house and beyond recording the

Locate the Valbanera, Sunk in Gulf Storm, But No Trace of 450 Persons She Carried

KEY WEST, Fla., Sept. 19.—That the Spanish steamer Valbanera, carrying 300 passengers and a crew of 150, went down in the hurricane that swept Key West ten days ago, appeared to have been made certain tonight by the statement of Ensign L. B. Roberts, commanding officer of the United States Sub-Chaser 203, who stated he plainly saw the nameplate of that steamer on the vessel found today sunk in forty feet of water near here.

The statement of Ensign Roberts corroborated that of divers who, on the order of the Cuban Consul here, made an investigation of the sunken vessel. The wreck was seen by the sub-chaser and the coast guard vessel Tuscarosa near Rebecca Shoals Lighthouse, about forty miles from Key West. The Valbanera lay in water which covers a bed of quicksand. No bodies were seen.

The Valbanera has been missing since the storm which caught her as she neared Havana en route from Spanish ports to New Orleans. The passengers are thought to have been almost entirely Spaniards or Cubans, as virtually all of them were to have debarked at Havana. Mrs. Pauline Beckner of France, sister of Mrs. George Pollock of New Orleans, was thought to have been aboard. The vessel carried a valuable cargo.

A wrecking crew will leave here tomorrow, and the naval station here has promised all facilities to aid them. Their investigations may establish the presence of bodies of passengers and crew or show they had left the ship before she sank. There have been no reports here, however, of any such number of persons adrift or having been landed, and it was not regarded as probable that any could have been saved by other vessels without word having come of that fact.

SPEED UP PLANS FOR STEEL STRIKE; COMPANIES HOPE TO KEEP MILLS OPEN; HYLAN TO RID CITY ROLLS OF AGITATORS

ASSAILS "ONE BIG UNION"

Organized Municipal Employes Repudiate Move to Join the A. F. of L.

PLEDGE LOYAL SERVICE

Police and Teachers Aroused at Radical Plan—Schneider an Outsider.

The more radical element among city employes agitating for increased wages to meet the higher cost of living received several setbacks yesterday, indications from the day's developments being that there would be no formation of a general union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, no strike threats and no immoderate demands.

Mayor Hylan acted promptly to stem the drive launched at a secret conference Thursday night of members of the executive councils of unions of city workers and others to form one organization with 100,000 or more members, affiliated with the American Federation and demanding a 65 per cent. wage increase. The Mayor wrote a letter to the heads of all city departments, manifestly aimed at the proponents of this union, demanding that the agitators and trouble makers be eliminated from the city's payrolls by abolishing provisions for their positions in next year's budget.

The Civil Service Forum, the old organization of city workers, repudiated unqualifiedly the radical action proposed at the Thursday night conference and announced through its President, Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial, that a meeting of its Salary Committee next Tuesday night would take occasion to make known to the Mayor that it discountenanced strike threats, inordinate demands and proposals for joining the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Prial insisted that the meeting was made up of the "Bolshevik element," that it had no authority to speak for municipal servants generally and that Burt L. Schneider, President of the Union of Technical Men, who presided, was not even a city employe. Efforts to reach Mr. Schneider yesterday were unavailing. At the Technical Union office in the Pulitzer Building it was said both his home and business addresses were unknown there.

Repudiate Schneider.

Delegates of the newly formed Municipal and County Employes' Association met late yesterday evening and laid the foundation for permanent organization and passed resolutions denying that they are at present or ever intend to become affiliated with the American Federation. A committee was appointed to draw up wage-increase demands, and from the temper of the gathering it appeared that these demands would be less than the 50 per cent. increase at first suggested. This body, too, repudiated Mr. Schneider's proposed general union.

A movement is now afoot for an affiliation between this organization and the Civil Service Forum, and a conference committee from the latter organization went to yesterday's meeting to name the terms upon which such an amalgamation could be effected. It was prevented from doing so by the length of the proceedings. The Forum is determined not to receive the new organization unless all questions of radicalism are eliminated and strike threats, talk of affiliation with outside bodies and impossible demands are hushed.

Several organizations, such as the Police Lieutenants' Benevolent Association and the teachers of Public School 114, adopted resolutions opposing strike threats and affiliation with the American Federation and pledging unqualified loyalty to the city.

Police Commissioner Enright made public his 1920 budget estimate. He asked for a total of $24,396,680, which includes an increase over this year of $3,340,544, most of which is for contemplated increases in the pay of patrolmen and department officers.

The Mayor's Letter.

The letter Mayor Hylan sent to department heads was as follows:

"I am informed that there are employes connected with the city service who spend more time agitating and making trouble than they do rendering service for which the city pays them. Some of them seem to think that the time they are on duty should be utilized in reading newspapers or scheming for selfish purposes, and give little consideration to the work they are employed to perform.

"I direct you to give immediate attention to this class of employes and have their positions abolished in next year's budget. They should not be on the city payrolls to stir up strife and trouble for their employer—the people of the city.

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is now taking up the question

Wilson Makes Final Attempt to Avert Steel Strike; Sent Baruch, It Is Said, to Seek to Move Gary

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—There was a report here today that President Wilson had sent Bernard M. Baruch, once Chairman of the War Industries Board, to see Judge Gary, in a final attempt to alter his attitude, but that this was of no avail. The President is said to have done all that he could to avert the strike and to bring about a meeting between Judge Gary and representatives of the steel workers.

"There is nothing to say and nothing to do except to wait until Monday," said John Fitzpatrick, Chairman of the Steel Workers' Organization Committee, late this afternoon, following a conference he had with Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Fitzpatrick came to Washington today to bring to Mr. Gompers a report on the general situation concerning the proposed strike. He declared the situation was absolutely unchanged and that the steel workers' strike would proceed as ordered.

It is understood here that Mr. Gompers used his best efforts to have the strike postponed until after the industrial conference the President has called for Oct. 6, but was unsuccessful.

According to William Johnstone, President of the International Machinists' Union, instead of the unions paying the customary strike benefits during the walkout next week, all members will receive financial aid, and not those alone who have been members of the unions for more than six months.

Wilson Condemns Refusal to Confer

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 19.—Another reference was made today by President Wilson to the refusal of some employers to meet their employes face to face, which was accepted as aimed at the attitude assumed by the officials of the United States Steel Corporation. The President added:

"In every such instance I am convinced that they are wrong and dare not talk things over."

STATE FUND FAVORS TO DONOR OF CAR

Wynkoop, Insurance Rival, Who Gave Auto to Baldwin's Wife, Consulted Files.

WRONGFUL INTENT DENIED

Manager Declares John Mitchell Gave Approval to Wife's Acceptance of It.

Continuing the investigation of the State Industrial Commission, as ordered by Governor Smith under the Moreland act, Miles M. Dawson, attorney for the inquiry which is being held before Special Commissioner Jeremiah F. Connor in the City Hall, brought out the fact yesterday that the wife of F. Spencer Baldwin, Manager of the State Insurance Fund, had accepted the gift of a $3,400 automobile from G. E. Wynkoop, head of the Wynkoop Service, a compensation service insurance firm of 1170 Broadway.

Mr. Dawson tried to show that the Wynkoop Service, which carries liability insurance for industrial firms the same as the State Insurance Fund, had obtained many favors from the Industrial Commission. Mr. Baldwin admitted that on one occasion Mr. Wynkoop was allowed to take the documents pertaining to a policy held by the Cutler Desk Company from the commission's files and carry them to Buffalo in an effort to transact some private business. He also admitted that the Wynkoop Service, because of knowledge of the records of the commission, was able to get large employers already in the State Fund and put them on their own list.

Admits Acceptance of Auto.

Mr. Baldwin readily admitted the acceptance by his wife of the automobile gift, and explained that he had consulted the late John Mitchell, Chairman of the State Industrial Commission, as to the propriety of accepting the gift, and that Chairman Mitchell had told him there was nothing wrong in it. He said his wife was ill at the time, and Mr. Wynkoop called at his house one evening and made the offer of the automobile in rather an impulsive manner. Wynkoop, he said, told his wife to select a car and he would pay for it with his personal check. On interrogation he admitted signing the affidavit himself, as the owner of the car, for the State automobile license.

The one other feature of the day's proceedings was the testimony of Samuel Caboli of 1,729 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, that he had given $100 of his $1,000 award for injuries to an employe of the commission, and later received a $20 bribe to write an affidavit vindicating the employe. Caboli testified that his mother had noticed the shortage in his award and complained about it to James P. Richardson, former Claims Auditor, and now Deputy Industrial Commissioner at Syracuse.

The affidavit was to the effect that the boy had gambled away the deficit. It was signed by William A. Herman, who has already confessed to receiving money from claimants, and his friend and alleged worker, Barney Wayneck. Caboli identified from a photograph the man to whom he had given the $100 and Mr. Richardson later identified the same man as Frank J. Elwood, a former underwriting clerk of the commission.

Most of yesterday was taken up by Mr. Dawson in trying to show that the Wynkoop Service had obtained special favors from the commission. He asked Mr. Richardson if he had ever received an offer from Mr. Wynkoop to do service for him while he was with the State Industrial Fund. The witness replied in

PRINTERS REJECT COMPROMISE OFFER

STRIKERS RULED OUT

Leaders of Men Not Affiliated with International Barred at Meeting.

Representatives of the Allied Printing Trades Council of New York, who are asking for a forty-four-hour wek and a wage increase in all commercial printing shops, effective Oct. 1, 1919, rejected yesterday the proposal of the Association of Employing Printers for a compromise of their demands. They will recommend to their respective unions that the compromise offer be rejected.

This action is expected to bring to a show-down the fight that has been going on quietly for some time between the local unions of the printing industry and the International Union officials, who have taken the side of the employing printers in the controversy.

Instead of a minimum wage increase of $14, as asked by the local unions, the employers yesterday offered $6 a week. They also agreed to put into effect the forty-four-hour we on May 1, 1921, in which position they have the backing of the International Union officials. The local union representatives are determined to have the forty-four-hour week on Oct. 1 or strike.

The question is likely to be determined tomorrow afternoon when Typographical Union No. 6, which is the principal union involved in the controversy, will hold a meeting to hear a report of the negotiations with the employers. Leon Rouse, President of No. 6, told the employing printers that he would recommend the rejection of the offer. International Union officials, with which the locals are affiliated, may attend the meeting and present their side of the controversy. Mr. Rouse said yesterday he would have no comment to make until after the meeting.

The result of the conference between the Labor Committee of the Printers' League Section of the Association of Employing Printers of New York and representatives of the local unions was made public in the following statement, given out by William Green, Chairman of the employers' committee:

"The meeting today was to consider the new contracts which replace agreements which expire Oct. 1, 1919. The first proposition advanced by the employers was that, in light of the action taken by the four Presidents of the International Printing Trades Unions, they would refuse to negotiate with any local union not now in good standing with their international. As a result of this stand representatives of Pressmen's Union No. 51, Franklin Union No. 23, Paper Handlers' Union No. 1, and Job Press Feeders' Union No. 1 were requested to withdraw from the conference.

"In withdrawing from the meeting the seceding unions stated that they left their case in the hands of Leon Rouse of 'Big Six' Typographical Union.

"Negotiations then proceeded with representatives of the eight unions which remained in the conference.

The Employers' Proposal.

"The following proposal was submitted to all the unions remaining at the conference:

1. An arbitration agreement or agreements which expire at a different date from the scale contracts to be made a condition precedent to the signing of any new contracts. Present shop rules and over-

LABOR AND EMPLOYERS FIRM

Both Sides Are Confident, But Do Not Make Predictions.

AVOID FIGURES ON STRENGTH

Some Small Plants Close Down, but Officials Deny They Were Influenced by Strike Situation.

2,000,000 MEN INVOLVED

Associate Unions Are Expected to Aid in Tieup—Conference Planned to Finance Strikers.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 19.—Preparation for the test of strength between organized labor and capital in the steel industry throughout the United States to begin Monday went forward today with both sides apparently confident of the outcome. There were no official statements forthcoming from either side, but informal talks indicated that they were ready for the contest.

Representatives of steel companies in the Pittsburgh district let it be known that they intended to operate their plants Monday, and also let the impression go out that they do not look for as large a walkout as the union leaders assert will take place.

Organized labor expects a big turnout of men, and predicted that the employers will receive a surprise. Neither side will venture figures. Both frankly confess they do not know how many men will remain at work or fail to answer the whistle. Monday only can tell, they said.

Steel companies in many cases are understood to have canvassed their men to get an idea of the number of men who will strike. Union leaders said that from their experiences these canvasses usually prove to be inaccurate and pointed to past strikes where a majority of men in a plant had signed up not to strike and then quit when the time came.

It was said tonight that in a number of plants some men have already quit and sought work in other places. It was expected by union leaders here that many men on the night shifts tonight will take their personal belongings out of the mills at quitting time tomorrow morning, as many of them do not work Saturday and Sunday nights.

Union Leaders in Charge.

All the national leaders of unions involved in the strike had left the city tonight for their respective headquarters to make final plans for the strike, and much of the activity about the offices of the steel workers' National Committee had to do with the preparations in the Pittsburgh district. While national headquarters are in this city, in charge of William Z. Foster, Secretary of the National Committee, it was learned that much of the work will be conducted by districts. These districts and the men in charge, Mr. Foster said, are as follows: Chicago, E. J. Evans; Cleveland, H. W. Raisse; Youngstown, J. E. McCadden; Inner Pittsburgh, J. L. Beagham; Outer Pittsburgh, J. McCaig; Bethlehem, David Williams; Buffalo, H. C. Thompson; Birmingham, Ala., E. S. Ingram; Pueblo, Col., W. H. Young.

Reports of strike developments will be made to these districts, and if important enough will be forwarded to national headquarters.

Mr. Foster, in answer to queries, said that all men in non-union mills have been asked to strike. None will be left to preserve company property, such as keeping up furnace fires and preventing ore from cooling. "The companies have had twelve days' notice of the strike," he said, "and if they have not arranged to look after their furnaces it is not our fault."

It was given out here that an important meeting of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor and representatives of the unions in the strike would be held probably in Pittsburgh within two weeks. Questions of financing the contest, it was said, would be taken up. According to the letter addressed to President Wilson last night by the National Committee, the unions co-operating in the strike have a total membership of 2,000,000. Members of these unions not involved in the strike will be expected to assist fellow-members.

To Honor Its Contracts.

M. F. Tighe, international President of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers, said today that his organization, which is the largest numerically in the steel industry, has many agreements with employers, and that none of these will be affected by the walkout. Manufacturers identified with the Western Bar Iron Association and employers in the Western Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association, scattered around the country, will not be affected because they have working agreements with the Amalgamated Association.

Mr. Tighe, speaking of the issues involved in the strike, said that the twelve demands voted upon by the steel workers are not the stumbling block to a settlement. He said that the United States Steel Corporation is clouding the issue when it asserts that the unions are fighting for a "closed shop." "All we want is a conference," he said. "They haven't even given us a chance to ask them if they are satisfied to have a closed shop." He said the Amalgamated Association is working under union agreements with plants which are not closed shops.

Some of the communities in the Pittsburgh district are quietly preparing to maintain peace during the strike. In McKeesport the Mayor in connection with business men has a volunteer force to assist the police. Plants that are not shut down will be picketed by strikers, it was said, and local police will endeavor to prevent clashes between men going to work and those who quit. Patrols of the Pennsylvania State police, it was said here tonight, have been selected and will be on duty in the Allegheny Valley near Brackenridge, at Homestead, between McKeesport and Duquesne, at Clairton, and about Rankin and Braddock.

McKeesport Plant Shuts Down.

Word came from McKeesport, Penn., today that the hot mills of the Port Vue plant of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company shut down last night, throwing about 1,500 men out of work. This is an independent concern. The reason given by the company was congestion in the finishing department. Union organizers said they were of the opinion that the company was getting ready for the strike Monday.

Secretary Foster of the steel workers' national committee said several independents are negotiating agreements with their workers or have already signed. Among those he mentioned are the H. M. Byers Company, Reading Iron and Steel Company, and the Trumbull Steel Company. These, he said, had closed agreements with the Amalgamated Association.

Buttons as large as silver dollars with the words "Loyal—I will not strike," appeared on the coats of many employes of the National Tube Company at McKeesport today. Workers said that officials of the plant gave the buttons to all men who requested one.

Word came from Monessen today that the plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Company at that place was closed yesterday after 500 men, mostly foreigners, quit work. According to a superintendent of the plant the shutdown was due to lack of orders, but men employed there said it followed the walkout of a foreigner who had been given the choice of either winding eight spools of barbed wire at one time, as other workmen were doing, or quitting. He was found winding only five. When he quit, the workers said, 500 others left their jobs, and the company, scenting possible trouble, shut down the entire works. According to some of the workers most of the foreigners employed at the plant favor the steel strike, while Americans generally are against it.

Allegheny Suspends Today.

All the departments of the Allegheny and West Pennsylvania steel mills at Brackenridge will suspend operations tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock, according to Harry E. Sheldon, President of the Allegheny Steel Company, and Julian Burdick, Vice President of the West Pennsylvania Steel Company. The shutdown, it is said, is to provide employes of both companies an opportunity to hold a meeting and consider their attitude toward striking next Monday.

President Sheldon of the Allegheny Company issued a statement to the employes, declaring that the company was opposed to the "closed shop" principle and that "sympathetic strikes" were undue hardships to satisfied employes and their families. The statement gave assurance of support to loyal employes, provided the "company was able to secure sufficient business to enable it to operate its plant."

The Allegheny and West Pennsylvania plants employ normally 5,000 to 6,000 men. Union organizers assert that 80 per cent. of the foreign-speaking men in the mills have been organized along with several hundred Americans. Mill officials say they believe that only about a sixth of their employes have joined the unions.

INDEPENDENTS PLAN TO FIGHT

Youngstown Companies Appeal to Workers to Remain Loyal.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Sept. 19.—Statements were issued today by the big independent steel companies of the Youngstown district announcing that the principle of "open shop" will be maintained, and calling upon their employes to remain loyal and stay at work Monday. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, employing 15,000 men; the Brier Hill Steel Company, 6,500, and the Republic Iron and Steel Company, 7,500, issued statements which were published in foreign language newspapers today.

Organizers here have estimated that 64,500 workers in the Youngstown district will be affected by the strike, though they gave no figures on the number of men whom they expect actually to strike. The district includes Ohio, outside of Cleveland, and the Farrell-Sharon-Newcastle district in Pennsylvania.

TO ENFORCE ORDER IN GARY.

Mayor Warns Steel Workers He Will Protect Life and Property.

Special to The New York Times.

GARY, Ind., Sept. 19.—Mayor Hodges this afternoon issued a proclamation urging citizens to refrain from any violence when the steel strike is called.

"My sworn duty as Mayor of Gary is to enforce the laws of this city, the State, and the Constitution of the United States and to preserve peace and order in the community," he said. "Therefore, any working man who wishes to quit his employment has that right, and may do so without in any way being molested, and any one who wishes to peacefully pursue his occupation has that right and may do so without in any way being molested. I will see that all persons, their families, and properties are protected.

"All should refrain from ill-tempered discussions and be conservative in talk and actions. I ask that all good, loyal citizens in Gary aid in enforcing this policy."

COLORADO MEN MAY QUIT.

Steel Workers Insist on Abandonment of Rockefeller Plan.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 19.—The conference at Pueblo of officers of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company and representatives of union men employed in the company's steel plant near Pueblo failed of results, it was announced at the company's offices here. The men left the meeting expecting to strike Monday.

J. F. Welborn, President of the company, said abandonment of the industrial representation plan (The Rockefeller plan) was requested in accordance with the twelve demands submitted to all steel companies. The company insisted upon retaining the Rockefeller plan, he said, and the union representatives then said they were "willing to test strength with the company."

STEAM ENGINEERS TO WORK

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Steam and operative engineers employed in the steel works throughout the country will not join in the general strike of steel workers set for Monday. This was announced by H. M. Comerford, General Secretary and Treasurer of the International Union of Steam and Operative Engineers.

A letter has been sent out from the union headquarters to every local in the country, declaring that "the officers of the union feel that President Wilson should be given an opportunity to hold the arbitration meeting which he has set for Oct. 6, and all members are instructed to refrain from affiliating themselves in any way with the proposed strike."

Plans of labor leaders for the steel workers' strike Sept. 22 went forward today in the Chicago district, which includes many of the country's greatest mills. At a meeting of 3,000 steel workers in South Chicago last night the statement that "between capitalism and Bolshevism the workers would choose to be classed as Bolsheviki" was wildly applauded.

Steel company officials at Gary, Ind., have issued a statement that of 10,125 men interviewed at the United States Steel Corporation plant there, known as the Gary works, 8,302 men said they did not favor striking Monday.

The following table shows the steel plants in the vicinity of Chicago which will be affected by Monday's walkout, and the number of men employed in each:

CALL STRIKE ON ORE SHIPS.

Detroit Sailors Vote to Walk Out in Sympathy with Steel Unions.

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—Members of the sailors' union of this port voted unanimously in favor of a strike in sympathy with the strike of the steel workers called for Sept. 22, union officials announced this morning. Two hundred and thirty-nine ballots were cast.

The vote of the marine cooks and stewards' union and the marine firemen's, oilers, water tenders, and coal passers' union is being taken and tabulation will be complete tomorrow.

A strike would tie up more than 100 ore-carrying vessels of the Pittsburgh Steamship Company, said to be a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, and boats of allied and associated companies, union officials declare.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Sept. 19.—Steel companies here have stores of iron ore on hand sufficient for nine months ahead, it was said today in connection with the proposed sailors' strike.

Unions Claim 43,000 in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19.—Eighteen thousand Cleveland men and 25,000 in the Cleveland district will quit work Monday morning when the steel strike goes into effect, according to Henry W. Raisse, Secretary of the steel workers' organization and strike committee. Officials of the sixteen steel plants in Cleveland which would be affected by the strike said they would not know its extent until Monday.

MINERS MAY STRIKE NOV. 1.

Bituminous Workers Expected to Ask 60% Increase and 6-Hour Day.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19.—The wage scale demands to be presented to the soft coal operators in Ohio, Illinois and Western Pennsylvania, which will serve as the basis of relative wage scales in all the bituminous fields of the country, will be submitted to the convention of the United Mine Workers of America on Monday or Tuesday.

Attempts will be made to make the instructions of the convention on the principal demands, regarding the amount of increase, presumably about 60 per cent., and the shortening of working time to six hours daily, five days a week, absolutely mandatory upon the joint scale conference at Buffalo, Sept. 25, and to direct them either to obtain recognition of these principal demands without change or to call out the bituminous miners of the country in a general strike Nov. 1.

Resolutions have been submitted criticising former scale conferees for taking demands formulated in convention as a basis of negotiation and accepting agreements embodying something less and directing them this time to insist upon the adoption of the demands of the convention to the letter.

An amendment to the constitution making the six-hour day instead of the eight-hour day one of the aims of the organization was adopted today. It reads that "not more than six hours from bank to bank in each twenty-four hours shall be worked by members of our organization," and this is the form in which the demand will probably be presented to the operators.

burglaries the police have made no arrests. The police suppressed the report of the burglaries.

Shot at by Robbers.

While riding past St. Nicholas Avenue and 134th Street early yesterday morning, Leon Levy of 245 West 116th Street, an employe of Healy's restaurant, and two friends, were held up by two armed men. They resisted and Levey was struck over the head with the butt of a revolver and shot at before the highwaymen were frightened away. So close to Levy was the revolver that the powder burned his face. He was taken to Knickerbocker Hospital.

Frank E. McGuire of 3 James Street was arrested yesterday morning in front of the home of Oakley Thorne, at Eighty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue. He was charged with carrying a loaded revolver. In the Harlem Court he was held for Special Sessions.

Banking circles in Riverhead, L. I., were stirred by a report brought there by Secret Service operatives that there was a rumor in this city that bank robbers intended shortly to make Riverhead their objective. This is fair week in Suffolk County and as there have been many visitors in the town the three banks have been closely guarded. The report, it was said, came from a stenographer who, riding in a street car in this city, overheard some men talking about going down to Riverhead and "sticking up" the banks there.

Because the police have been unable to cope with the depredations of thieves who have been stealing boats and robbing others that are at anchor in Long Island Sound along the Astoria shore and Flushing Bay at Corona and East Elmhurst, owners yesterday met at North Beach and formed a protective association. According to the plans the owners will pay for the services of a guard to keep watch during the day. He will be provided with a swift motor boat so that he may chase the thieves if necessary. According to the owners the loss up to date amounts to thousands of dollars.

CALLS SCHOOL FUND FIGURES MISLEADING

SEES CUTS IN SOME ITEMS

Says That $11,250,000 Mitchel Sum Was Taken Back and but $10,000,000 Reappropriated.

In an analysis of the $87,000,000 school budget for 1920, in its bulletin published this morning, the Public Education Association, of which Howard W. Nudd is Director, holds that a budget which apparently gives to the schools twice as much as they received last year, as a matter of fact not only provides practically nothing for increased educational facilities, but makes some drastic cuts in activities that were treated generously during the war.

The association points out that the seemingly large increase is obtained by putting the figures for two years of building in one, and then by providing money which is necessary by the State law increasing the salaries of teachers, by the increase in the number of children to be taught, by the increased cost of fuel and other supplies, and by the necessity of making such repairs "as a first step in patching up an intolerable physical situation in the traditional school plant," the association reduces the discretionary items in the budget to no more than $400,000, which it terms "pathetically small."

The association denies that the Mayor provided $10,000,000 for school buildings this year, as he claimed in the appraisal of his own record published on Aug. 27. After pointing out that what the Board of Estimate and Apportionment did was to take back $11,250,000 which had been appropriated during the Mitchel Administration, and then to reappropriate $10,000,000 of it, the association says:

"The pertinent fact is, that the Mayor did not provide $10,000,000 for school building this year as he claims. What he really did was to permit the schools to have a part of what had already been granted them by his predecessor.

"The impertinent question is, what became of the other million and a quarter—that had already been granted to the schools?

"One would naturally refrain from accusing our Mayor of attempting to secure public approval under false pretenses by claiming for himself what some one else did.

Analyzes New Figures.

"There is only one conclusion. He must have been totally unconscious of the facts and unaware that he was actually reducing the funds for school purposes instead of increasing them."

The analysis shows that the actual budget for running expenses is only $56,000,000, of which $44,300,000 makes up the general fund and $11,700,000 the special fund. Of the general fund it says that $41,000,000 covers the teachers' salaries on the basis of the old schedules and therefore does not extend the system in any way. Another $4,200,000 covers the mandatory increases in these salaries, which they "merit," but which do not increase the educational opportunities of the children. A further sum of $600,000 covers salaries for additional teachers to take care of the normal increase in the register of children. "There is left, then, a group of items aggregating somewhat less than $400,000, which cover what might be called discretionary enlargement or voluntary extension of existing school activities.

"An analysis of the special school fund of $11,767,629.34," the bulletin continues, "reveals a similar lack of promise of increased educational facilities for the coming year.

"The basis of computation of this fund is some $7,300,000, which represents the amount appropriated for business administration, supplies and the maintenance and operation of the school plant for the present year. It is in the requested increase of some $4,400,000 over and above this sum, therefore, that the possible enrichment of the educational program for the coming year, so far as the special school fund is concerned, is to be sought."

ASK HINES FOR 8-HOUR DAY.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—Partial representation for negro members, large increases of salaries to lodge officials, immediate establishment of a chain of co-operating stores, and the sending of a telegram to Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads, declaring that only an eight-hour day will be countenanced by railroad employes, were authorized today by the United Brotherhood of Maintenances of Way Employes and Shop Laborers, in convention in this city.

Negro members of the Brotherhood may hereafter be represented by white delegates from their respective lodges, instead of through the indirect system of general Chairmen heretofore prevailing.

Salary increases of more than 100 per cent. were voted the chief officers of the Brotherhood. Allen E. Barker, President, was raised from $5,000 a year to $14,000. George Seal, Secretary-Treasurer, was raised from $3,000 to $9,000, and the pay of fourteen Vice Presidents was raised to $6,000 a year each.

Detroit will have the first co-operative store to be opened by the Brotherhood, and the newly elected Executive Committee was authorized to proceed immediately with its plans for a chain of stores in different cities. Household necessities will be sold at cost to Brotherhood members in these stores.

The telegram to the Railroad Director General was sent, it was said, as a result of a movement by certain roads to institute a regular ten-hour day. The organization will tolerate that day only in emergencies, the Director General was informed.

CHILE A NATION 109 YEARS.

Whole Republic Celebrates Independence—Shea Toasts President.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sep. 18.—All Chile today united in celebrating the 109th anniversary of the culmination of the nation's independence. This city was lavishly beflagged and decorated for the occasion. At a solemn Te Deum this morning Juan Luis di Sanfuentes, President of the Republic, members of the Ministry and the Diplomatic Corps were in attendance.

At a great banquet given last night in the Government Palace by President Sanfuentes in honor of the Diplomatic Corps, Foreign Minister Barros Borgono gave a toast to the health of the heads of the nations represented. He alluded to Chile's constitutional stability and faithful fulfillment of her international obligations.

Answering on behalf of the foreign diplomats, American Ambassador Shea recalled the splendid achievements of the Chileans in their war for independence, and in their conflict against Peru and Bolivia.

Pointing to Chile's peace achievements, he said:

"Thirty years of prosperity speak more convincingly and eloquently than can any words as to Chile's inherent serength and stability. While other countries may have had turbulence and disorder, Chile has pursued the even tenor of her way."

Ambassador Shea predicted a brilliant future for the Republic, and concluded by offering a toast to the health of President Sanfuentes.

MR. BALFOUR TO BE EARL.

May Succeed Viscount Grey as British Ambassador to United States.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—According to the Daily Mirror, Arthur J. Balfour, British Foreign Secretary, is soon to be created an Earl in recognition of his services to the Empire during the war.

The newspaper adds that the raising of Mr. Balfour to an Earldom is likely to come simultaneously with his retirement from the Foreign Office, which is expected to take place during the Autumn. The Mirror says also that when Viscount Grey relinquishes his post of Ambassador to the United States a few months hence, Mr. Balfour will be invited to succeed him.

BERLIN GIFT STORY DENIED.

Ethan Allen, manager of the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross, yesterday issued the following statement:

"The attention of the American Red Cross has been called to newspaper articles bearing a Berlin date line, in which it is stated that packages of food 'and such articles as soap and shoes may enter Germany without duty if they are sent as gifts in care of the American Red Cross in Berlin.'

"The articles stated also that a 'central organization' exists in New York for dispatching gifts to Germany without duty. The American Red Cross has no knowledge of any such arrangement, and wishes it made clear that no part of its organization is the 'central organization' referred to."

GERMANS FIND HOPE IN GLASGOW CONGRESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Vorwärts has been looking both east and west and finding hope for Germany in England and Russia.

After condemning once again the Versailles Peace Treaty, the journal says that German policy has now but one object, namely, revision of the treaty. Revision, it says, can be effected by two methods. The first, described as of long and bitter duration, is through the League of Nations, while the second and infinitely more desirable one to Varwärts would be revision as a result of revolutionary movements in the countries of the western powers.

Therefore, Vorwärts rejoices over the resolutions adopted at the recent Congress in Glasgow which, it says, show that the trade union movement in Great Britain is now becoming as efficient politically as it is in its purely trade union functions. As a result of this conference and of the recent by-election at Widnes, Vowärts forsees a coming triumph of the Labor Party in England and the formation of a Labor Government.

This interest in the Labor Party's future is not at all a purely Socialist interest. It consists in this, that "a Labor Government in England would mean speedy, fundamental and far-reaching revision of thetreaty. The more decisive and radical the English labor movement becomes, the more hope is there for the German working classes' future."

Vorwärts then turns to Russia and has some good words for those there whom formerly it anathematized. It admits Soviet tyranny in Russia and does not deny its old abhorrence of the Soviet system, but is yet prepared to find elements of greatness in Lenin's Government, if only because it is the last revolutionary power to oppose the will of the Allies.

This, of course, is obviously in line with Vorwärts' recent plea for a rapprochement with Russia and, indeed, the whole article is interesting as showing how the Majority Socialist organ is reaching east and west for support for Germany. German Socialism is prepared to take advantage of either English trade unionism or Russian Sovietism, although it is not really as advanced as either, and is probably far less conscious of "brotherhood."

time requirements to be continued until such time as they can be taken up through a joint study and the advisability of changes considered on the basis of the facts involved, and in case of dispute the controversy to be settled by conciliation and arbitration.

2. Each agreement or contract to be approved by the International as in the past.
3. The introduction of the forty-four-hour week to take place on May 1, 1921.
4. A six-dollar increase in all scales on basis of forty-eight-hour week, with provision in contract for readjustment each six months on cost of living basis in accordance with the following clause:

Unless it can be shown by the cost of living figures of the United States Department of Labor Bureau of Statistics that during the six months period from the date when this contract is effective and at intervals of six months thereafter, the cost of living has increased 5 per cent. or more, then and then only shall the officers of the union herein represented have the right to ask for a further readjustment of the wage scales herein set forth, provided that the percentage of increase shall apply only to the 1914 scales, the same basis as has been used to work out present scales, as embodied in this agreement, and, further provided, that should the cost of living for one of the six months periods decrease by an amount equal to or exceeding the increases, then any increases above the amount now granted in this agreement may be decreased in the same proportion, provided that no figures shall reduce the scales below those set forth in this agreement.

5. The committee representing the employers, signatories to the various union agreements, in submitting to you for your consideration the above proposals has earnestly endeavored to redeem its responsibilities to all of the interests involved and to fairly and justly meet the issues which present so many complications. Our organization is ready and willing at all times and under any circumstances to consult, conciliate, and, if necessary, finally arbitrate all matters subject to controversy. In view of the fact that some of the questions involved in these negotiations are national in their bearings, affecting other cities as well as New York, in case final settlement is not secured in conference between the employers' committee and the local unions, we suggest that such issues in dispute shall be submitted to the International Joint Conference Council, of which the international Presidents of the various unions and employers' associations are represented for the industry as a whole.

Offer is Rejected.

"The offer was rejected by all of the unions. President Rouse, speaking for Typographical Union No. 6, stated that the employers' proposal would be presented at his union's meeting next Sunday with his recommendation that they be rejected. The other unions in likewise rejecting the offer proposed to submit it to their membership and declared their intention to abide by the arbitration agreements which they now hold with the employers and which still have some time to run.

"As Chairman of the Employers' Committee, I declined to include the seceding unions in our propositions. Our proposals to pressmen, feeders, and paper handlers will be made to the representatives of the new unions, duly authorized by their respective internationals."

PEACE TERMS GIVEN TO THE BULGARIANS

THEODOROFF ADMITS FAULT

But Says Bulgaria's Offenses Do Not Justify Reducing Her to Servitude.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—With very little fuss and feathers Bulgaria received this morning the terms under which she may have peace with the Allies. She received them with humble and plaintive mien, promising never again to do that which brought this day's plight upon her.

The ceremony took place in the Clock Room of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs on the Quai d'Orsay. There were present about fifty allied delegates and five members of the Bulgarian delegation. Premier Clemenceau opened the proceedings by stating that the meeting had been called to hand the peace treaty to the Bulgarians, and that they would have twenty-five days to consider it and file objections, after which the Allied and Associated Powers would fix a day for final decision. Paul Dutasta, Secretary of the Peace Conference, then handed the bound treaty to the Bulgarians, after which General Theodoroff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, read a long statement in French, setting forth the contention that, while Bulgaria was perhaps guilty of the charges brought against her, it was the fault of her former monarchial rulers and not of the Bulgarian people, who, he said, had been led into the war against their honest wishes.

General Theodoroff's voice was high-pitched and plaintive to a degree. The monotony of his recital was broken by a noteworthy incident. When, after he had declared the desire of Bulgaria to live in peace and harmony with her Balkan neighbors, he cast a look as plaintive as his voice toward Dr. Vesnitch, the chief delegate of Serbia. Vesnitch gave him what might be called a stony glance, whereupon Theodoroff continued in a voice more plaintive still.

After blaming King Ferdinand for Bulgaria's part in the war, Theodoroff said: "We are here not only to defend the rights of Bulgaria; we are anxious also to confess her faults."

A few moments later he declared: "The rights of nations are indestructible. With your high sense of equity you have put them from the start beyond reach of injury. This is why a guilty State, and even a conquered one, may be allowed to appeal to them."

He then promised to submit to the Conference statements as to the misconceptions of Bulgaria's rôle in the war.

"We are held guilty of having betrayed our allies of 1913 and having in 1915 intervened in the war on the side of the Central Powers," he said. "Everything shows that the Bulgarian nation did not approve of the alliance with Germany, and that this alliance was forced on it."

The rest of his statement was taken up with declarations that Bulgaria would henceforth tread the straight and narrow path.

When he was through Clemenceau arose and announced curtly that the ceremony was ended. It had lasted forty minutes.

PARIS, Sept. 19, (Associated Press.)—The treaty of peace between the allied and associated powers and Bulgaria was presented to the Bulgarian mission at the French Foreign Office this morning at 10:40 o'clock.

After the delegates had assembled, Premier Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, spoke briefly in opening the session. He was followed by General Theodoroff, head of the Bulgarian mission.

General Theodoroff spoke for fifteen minutes, pleading that the Bulgarian people were not responsible for the war, but that the Bulgarian Government had thrown the country into the struggle. He blamed King Ferdinand and Vasili Radoslavoff, Bulgarian Foreign Minister in 1914, for Bulgaria's entry into the war. He said the Bulgarian people did not approve of the German alliance, which, he declared, "came to them as a cataclysm," but they realized they must accept part of the blame for it.

"We have committed faults," he said, "and we shall bear their consequences within the bounds of equity, but there is a punishment no crime can justify, and that is servitude."

KAMONTOV'S COSSACKS ALARM MOSCOW SOVIET

Bolshevist Capital Declared in State of Siege as Raiders Menace Communications.

HELSINGFORS, Sept. 19, (Associated Press.)—The Pravda of Petrograd publishes a Soviet Government proclamation declaring a state of siege in Moscow in consequence of the operations of the Cossack General Kamontov's cavalry near the Red Army.

General Kamontov's Cossacks about the middle of August broke through the Bolshevist lines in the vicinity of Tambov, 250 miles southeast of Moscow. A London dispatch on Sept. 15 reported the General still operating behind the Bolshevist lines, to the detriment of the communications of the Soviet forces, having cut an important railway line.

The location of these operations appear to have been some 150 miles to the west of Tambov, which would make the Cossack position at that time about 175 miles from Moscow, directly south of that city.

ROHLFS MAKES NEW RECORD

Climbs 19,500 Feet in 9 Minutes 42 2-5 Seconds.

Roland Rohlfs, the Curtiss test pilot, who on Thursday established a new altitude record, according to his barograph, which registered 34,610 feet, made yesterday what is believed to be a world's record for climbing. Using the same machine he had on Thursday, Rohlfs climbed 19,500 feet in 9 minutes and 42 2-5 seconds.

As the result of yesterday's feat, the Wasp, as the plane is called, is the holder of three world's records—altitude, climb, and speed—according to Curtiss officials. The flight, which was made at Roosevelt Field, L. I., was officially witnessed by Colonel John D. Carmody, commandant of the field. The speed record was made at Dayton, Ohio, where Rohlfs flew the plane at the rate of 163 miles an hour.

of increasing the salaries of deserving employes, and the honest, faithful employe who is giving the best that is in him to the city should receive your consideration."

The proposal at the Thursday night conference at 5 Beekman Street that the fifteen organizations alleged to have been represented there should be asked to vote on the formation of a central council affiliated with the A. F. of L., coupled with the suggested demand for a 65 per cent. wage increase and threats of strikes, caused a sensation among city employes. Mr. Prial, who, as head of the Civil Service Forum, has kept in intimate touch with all recent efforts of city unions to better wage conditions, said that many of the unions alleged in the announcement made after the meeting to have been represented there were astonished to learn of the supposed presence of their delegates at the secret conference.

He insisted that the firemen were not represented at all and that if there was a policeman there he attended in a purely private and unofficial capacity.

Assails the Radicals.

"Mr. Schneider, who presided," Mr. Prial continued, "works in a private office downtown somewhere. The Union of Technical men of which he is President was formed a couple of weeks ago. There are only 100 to 200 city and county employes in the whole union.

Turning to a discussion of the Municipal Employes' Association, from which it has received overtures for amalgamation, Mr. Prial said that many of its members were men in the non-competitive civil service classes. Many, he explained, are hospital attendants, orderlies and the like, who get from $30 to $40 a month and who are largely wanderers. That organization, he said, would have to be reasonable in its demands and loyal and unthreatening in its attitude if it were to receive the support of the older organizations of city workers.

Seventy-nine delegates attended the meeting in the Health Department building of the Municipal and County Employes' Association. They represented thirty city and county departments and bureaus. George Stansfield, clerk in the Charities Department, was selected Chairman of the meeting, and Miss Catherine F. Reilly, a clerk in the Manhattan Borough President's office, was elected Secretary. This Committee on permanent organization was appointed: Samuel Pragger, Charities Department; Dr. Bayard Collins, Bellevue and allied hospitals; James Higgins, Municipal Civil Service employes; Miss Edna McKeever, Bureau of Child Welfare; Alexander Cooper, clerks, office of the Manhattan Borough President; Thomas W. A. Crowe, Law Department, and Miss Wilhelmina Rotherman, Health Department.

Pledge Their Loyalty.

These resolutions were adopted:

At the first meeting of delegates of the Municipal and County Employes' Association of the City of New York, held Sept. 19, 1919, at Centre and Walker Streets, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, for the purpose of perfecting organization, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the daily newspapers of this date contain conspicuous accounts of a meeting held at 5 Beekman Street, Manhattan, at which meeting it is reported that various groups of city employes affiliated with the American Federation of Labor met for the purpose of drawing all city employes into affiliation with the American Federation of Labor; and

Whereas, the newspaper accounts represented that the employes who so met represented over 100,000 city and county employes, which would be practically the entire number of persons on the payroll of the city; and

Whereas, the employes of the city and county who are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are a very small percentage, the vast majority of city employes being affiliated with no labor union; and

Whereas, the name of the Municipal and County Employes' Association of the City of New York was coupled with this meeting of employes affiliated with labor unions and confusion has been created in the public mind thereby and the public is led to believe that the Municipal and County Employes' Association has radical objects and methods and is working for the unionization of city employes, be it

Resolved: 1. That the Municipal and County Employes' Association hereby declares that it has no affiliation with organized labor, has no intention of affiliating and has no connection with the movement in connection with which the meeting at 5 Beekman Street was held, nor has any knowledge of it, nor did any person connected with the Municipal Employes' Association with any possible authority attend the said meeting.

Resolved 2. That the Municipal and County Employes Association is being formed for the purpose of improving the conditions of all city and county employes, and that it has as its only present object to persuade the administration and the public that the salaries of all city employes should be substantially increased to compensate for the enormous increase in the cost of living that has taken place while the salaries of the city employes for the most part have stood nearly still.

Resolved 3. That this association is to be strictly an organization of city employes, organized by departments, with none but city employes eligible for membership, with no outside affiliations and no outside leadership. That it is the express intention of this association to co-operate with the Mayor, the Board of Estimate, and the heads of the departments for the promotion of the efficiency of the services. That for the purpose of securing an increase in salary or redress of other legitimate grievances the only weapons to be employed will be those of respectful petition to our superior officers and duly constituted authorities. That we consider our first duty as public servants to be loyalty to duty and to the administration. That we have full confidence in his Honor, John F. Hylan, our Mayor, and in the honorable members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and in the members of the honorable Board of Aldermen, and in our respective department heads, and that for the attainment of our objects we will take no steps to discredit them in the estimation of the public or to lower in the public estimation the dignity of the position of a public office employe.

Discuss Their Demands.

The Organization Committee will meet at Bellevue Hospital tomorrow night to formulate the wage increase demand, and will report its findings to a meeting at the Health Department Building Monday night, at which two delegates from each city and county department and bureau are to attend. Various opinions as to the extent of an increase were debated at last night's gathering, some favoring a flat 50 per cent. rise "all along the line," and others suggesting a flat increase of $100 to those receiving $600 or less, and a graduated percentage for those receiving more than that.

TEACHERS WANT MORE PAY.

Montclair Organizing for an Increase Due to Cost of Living.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 19.—Montclair teachers, who have an organization numbering 250, are agitating for another increase in wages owing to the hight cost of living. In business pursuits an increase in salary became effective as early as three years ago, but the Montclair teachers, except in the cases of a few of the lowest-paid teachers, have yet to receive the first installment of the increase granted by the Board of Education last year.

While the Board of Education made what seemed at the time a liberal increase, two items of additional expense will almost use up the total increase—that of board and laundry and the burden incurred by the failure of the Teachers' Retirement Fund. A new Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund has been established by the State of New Jersey, which, while a welcome change from uncertainty to certainty, will nevertheless be a large additional expense. A bonus of $25 per month for the coming year has been suggested as proper additional compensation for the teachers.

ASK MONEY TO PUT UP PAY.

Police and Fire Departments Increase Appropriation Requests.

The request of the Commissioners of the Police, Fire, Health, and Charities Departments for appropriations for 1920, made public yesterday, show large increases over the allowances granted for this year. The request for the biggest increase was submitted by Police Commissioner Enright. His estimate for the conduct of the department during 1920 was $24,396,679, an increase over 1919 of $3,340,544. The increase includes a rise of $150 a year for each of the 9,894 patrolmen, a rise for Sergeants, Lieutenants, and Captains, and one of $4,000 for the Chief Inspector of Manhattan and one for $800 for the Chief Inspector of Brooklyn and Queens.

In the Fire Department the total allowance in 1919 for personnel service was $10,343,008, to which $9,108 in special revenue bonds was added during the year, making a net total of $10,353,117. The Fire Commissioner's request for 1920 is $10,730,084, a net increase of $377,967. The request includes an increase for all the firemen in the several grades. In the estimate there are no increases to officers.

The Health Department requests $4,811,409, a net total increase for all services of $720,318.

President John R. Voorhis of the Board of Elections requests $393,595 over the appropriation for this year. He explained that a Presidential primary for the election of delegates to the national conventions will be held next March and therefore more money is needed. The total amount requested for his department for 1920 is $2,119,090.

The Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals request a total of $2,774,171 for next year, an increase over 1919 of $305,007. The high cost of supplies is the reason given for the increase. A decrease of $1,424 for the coming year's allowance is requested by the New York County Clerk. His total request is for $169,193.

The Commissioner of Public Charities and the Commissioner of the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity made no summaries of their requests. The Register of Kings County for this year received a total of $239,410, including transfers and special revenue bonds. For 1920 he requests $338,200, a total increase of $98,789.

ENRIGHT PROMISES A RISE

"Before the End of the Year," He Tells Training School Graduates.

Police Commissioner Richard Enright definitely promised the police higher pay before the end of the year, in a speech delivered last night to the graduating class of the training school of the department. He added that he hoped it would be still higher by the time the new men became eligible for promotion in five years. The Commissioner characterized the force as having reached the point of highest efficiency, as being pervaded with idealism as never before, and as being an army which had never known defeat.

The Commissioner's speech came at the end of exercises in the 71st Regiment Armory, during which the 112 members of the graduating class gave an exhibition in calisthenics, military drill, boxing, jiu jitsu, and resuscitation from drowning. All of the work was under the direction of Acting Captain Charles E. Schofield. August Bauer, who stood at the head of the class in both mental and physical achievement during the training course, was presented by the Commissioner with the Bloomingdale trophy, a silver-mounted pistol. The exercises were the first of their kind ever to be held for the benefit of the public. On previous occasions they have taken place at Police Headquarters, in the presence of a few invited guests. Deputy Commissioners Frederick A. Wallis and A. Drum Porter also reviewed the men.

After congratulating the recruits upon having completed the course of training, Commissioner Enright said that they were entering the force at a time when policemen were badly needed, and concluded:

"When I entered the department, twenty-three years ago, the pay was much lower, the hours much harder, and the ethics much lower. There was no such idealism prevailing as now. The time when advancement was obtained by having friends has passed away. Your pay will be higher before the end of the year, and I hope that before you have presented yourself for advancement it will have gone still higher. Nobody now interferes with your advancement, for men are appointed in the order in which their names appear on the civil service list. If you do not succeed in advancing, you have only yourself to blame. You have the good-will of the Commissioner and the people, and I wish you all the honor that this splendid service can give to a man."

STATE FUND FAVORS TO DONOR OF CAR

the affirmative, and said he had refused.

Manager Baldwin, recalled to the stand, was questioned at length in regard to the relationship between the Wynkoop Service and the State Fund. He said Wynkoop had placed insurance with the State Fund in "considerable volume," but that the State had not paid any commission for the business. Asked what portion of the total of $78,601 dividends credited to policy holders of special groups Wynkoop would be entitled to from the State Fund the witness replied approximately $39,000.

Upon interrogation, Mr. Baldwin admitted that some of Mr. Wynkoop's policy holders had been previously insured in the State Fund.

Folders In Wynkoop's Hands.

Mr. Dawson then read into the records letters purported to have been written by the Assistant Manager of the State Fund to the Service, one of which was in substance:

"I understand that about ten days ago you took the Cutler Desk Company's folder out of this office with Mr. Black's permission. Will you please return this folder at your earliest convenience?"

Black, the witness said, was a former claim clerk. Another letter written by Black referred to a folder having been taken to Buffalo by Mr. Wynkoop and it contained this paragraph: "You will confer a great personal favor by making an effort to return the Cutler Desk Company folder as soon as you possibly can." Mr. Black, the witness said, is now working for the Wynkoop Service.

Getting down to the automobile incident, the witness asked to be allowed to explain the matter and he said: "Mr. Wynkoop, who is a trusted friend of myself and family, was calling one evening. A member of my family had been ill and there were circumstances that rendered the domestic situation somewhat peculiar at the time. Mr. Wynkoop very impulsively requested the member of the family who had been ill to select a motor car and asked the privilege of paying for it. It was a very generous and thoughtful and kindly act on his part."

"I would rather you did not spend so much time in characterizing it," interrupted Mr. Dawson. "Just give us the facts."

Says Mitchell Approved.

"After considering the matter," went on the witness, "I had doubts about the acceptance, because I realized that it might be misconstrued and misrepresented and used in some damaging way, and after talking with Mr. Wynkoop and expressing my scruples he had suggested—I think the suggestion came from him—that I talk the matter over with the Chairman of the Commission, Mr. Mitchell, who always was a trusted friend as well as my superior. I went to Mr. Mitchell and told him the circumstances under which the gift had been offered and I asked him if he could see any reason why it should not be accepted in the same spirit in which the tender had been made. He told me that he could see none, that it was a purely personal matter and he was satisfied it had no relation whatever to the business of the State Fund or the affairs of the State Industrial Commission. The gift was, therefore, accepted."

Mr. Baldwin admitted that the license for the car was issued in his own name and that he had signed an affidavit to this effect.

After further testimony regarding the car Mr. Dawson asked: "If it would look ugly at all, it would look ugly for it to be given to your wife rather than to yourself, would it not?"

"My thought," replied the witness, "was that this was a fine deed on Mr. Wynkoop's part; that it was capable of misconstruction, but that if no concealment were made, and if I told the circumstances to the Chairman of the Commission, my superior, the story never could be dragged up and never be given this ugly connotation."

"An Ugly Connotation."

"The mere fact that either you or Mr. Wynkoop could think of an ugly connotation in connection with it was enough to put you on your guard that it was very likely to be given that?"

"I thought that the decision of the Chairman or his opinion in the matter was decisive; that was what settled my mind."

"The Chairman never gave a decision until after the car had been bought and paid for and you signed the papers for the license?"

"But the transaction could easily have been stopped right there, that was the point. I was so absolutely conscious of the perfect cleanness of the motives of both sides in this transaction that the word of the Chairman settled it for me."

Upon further interrogation, Mr. Baldwin admitted that he had bought at one time a second hand car from Mr. Wynkoop for which he paid $1,200 in monthly installments.

"During your intimate personal relations with Mr. Wynkoop, had you transactions with him in the matter of borrowing money at any time?" asked Mr. Dawson.

"Yes," replied the witness," there were some transactions. He assisted me in making loans at one of the banks."

"By indorsing for you?"

"Yes. Those loans were all duly paid."

The hearing was adjourned until Wednesday, Sept. 24.

Governor Smith, at the Hotel Biltmore, last night said he had never met Mr. Baldwin and did not know him. He said, however, that there was something about the automobile gift in a preliminary report made by Commissioner Connor.

TELLS LABOR TO GO TO WORK

French Socialist Leader Warns Convention Against Extremists.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—A. Merriham, Secretary of the Metal Workers' Union, created excitement at the Labor Federation Convention in Lyons yesterday by denouncing "the wave of immorality which threatens to submerge all classes of society—the working class more than any other."

M. Merrihan, who is one of the Socialists who conferred with the German Socialists at Zimmerwald, Switzerland, during the war and who formerly was one of the most aggressive labor leaders in France, took the floor to defend the executive committee of the Federation against criticism by the extremists for the failure of the proposed general strike on July 21 last.

He ridiculed the pretensions of extremists in labor organizations who talked of the four-hour day and said what organized labor needed was to get to work.

"You talk of a revolutionary situation," he said, "but, left to itself, the proletariat could accomplish nothing. The war has sharpened all appetites and provoked all sorts of covetousness in all circles, even among the workers. Idealism has foundered under base material preoccupations. Money is everything? No one wants anything but money. We must save the working class from that wave of immorality."

M. Merriham's speech made a deep impression on the delegates, which was evidenced in a great ovation as he left the platform.

CHICAGO CARPENTERS WIN.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—The carpenters' strike in Chicago was settled tonight at a meeting in the Hotel La Salle. The carpenters get $1 an hour, the wage for which they have contended during a ten weeks' test of strength with the contractors. The men are to return to work on Monday.

The strike of the carpenters, who numbered 16,000, caused a complete tie-up of building operations in Chicago and forced 115,000 men out of work. The carpenters received 80 cents an hour up to the time of the strike. The contractors offered to compromise their one-dollar-an-hour demand with a wage of 92½ cents an hour, but the men refused. Negotiations have been in progress for weeks.

WHELAN TO ABSORB AMERICAN TOBACCO

United Retail Stores Corporation to Take Over $92,000,000 Concern.

EXPECT LARGE STOCK ISSUE

Newer Organization Formed Last June on Chain-Store Plan.

J. B. DUKE ALSO INTERESTED

Announcement Regarding Present Transaction Will Be Issued Next Week.

It was learned in the financial district yesterday that negotiations have almost been completed for the absorption of the American Tobacco Company by the United Retail Stores Corporation, which was formed only last June by George J. Whelan.

The deal, when it goes through, will involve at least the amount of the American Tobacco Company's capital, which is approximately $92,000,000, and it is understood that there will be a readjustment of this capital.

This, it was learned yesterday, will result in the issuance of 3,000,000 shares of no par value stock in place of the $100 par value stock now outstanding, and it is understood that stockholders in the United Retail Stores Corporation will be offered the right to subscribe to the new American Tobacco issue.

At the same time it is reported that the capitalization of the buying company will remain unchanged. At present it consists of 1,600,000 shares of common stock and 100,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative preferred stock without par value.

The common stock of the corporation sold yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange at $106 a share.

Although no official confirmation of the transaction could be obtained yesterday from Mr. Whelan, he did say that he expected to make an official announcement regarding the American Tobacco Company on Wednesday of next week.

Statement to Come Later.

While Mr. Whelan refused to comment on the report that his company had bought the American Tobacco Company, he did not deny it, and his statement that an announcement would be forthcoming next week regarding American Tobacco was considered as significent. It lead to the belief that the basis for the exchange of old stock in the latter concern, and, possibly the purchase price paid by United Retail Stores, may be announced at that time.

Associated with Mr. Whelan in the United Retail Stores Corporation is James B. Duke, who was President of the American Tobacco Company before it was broken up by dissolution proceedings which were started by the Government under the Sherman anti-trust law. Both men were closely associated in the original American Tobacco Company.

When the United Retail Stores Corporation was formed under the laws of Delaware it was announced that its purpose was the operation of a chain of stores throughout the world markets. This was very much in line with the interests represented by the combination of these two well-known tobacco men, as Mr. Duke spent most of his time in England after the breaking up of the American company, where he directed the policies of the British-American Tobacco Company.

Mr. Whelan, who recently returned to this country after a trip abroad, was quoted as follows:

"I have studied the retail business of this country for over a quarter of a century and I know that it presents the biggest future of any business now before the American public. The United Retail Stores Corporation has been organized for the special purpose of carrying out this retail chain stores idea to its ultimate conclusion in this country and in foreign countries. I do not believe that our business in this country is one-tenth of what it can be made along progressives lines, which are safe and conservative.

"Under an offer made to common stock holders of the United Cigar Stores Company in July, whereby they could exchange their holdings for a double amount of the common stock of the United Retail Stores common stocks, a large percentage of the capital of the former concern has been absorbed by the latter."

J. B. Duke a Director.

Officers of the United Retail Stores Corporation are George J. Whelan, President; W. R. Perkins, S. S. Whelan, and S. B. Woods, Jr., Vice Presidents. In addition to the officers James B. Duke is a director.

Just what is the magnitude of the additional business which will now be controlled by the purchasing company as the result of the deal is indicated by the annual report of the American Tobacco Company for 1918. This showed that the sales of the company and its subsidiaries in that year aggregated $144,470,069, while total net income was $17,215,257.

The balance sheet of the American Company also showed that in addition to its $92,000,000 capital stock there was a total funded debt of $27,026,500, and that the company owned $30,710,102 worth of stocks and bonds. At the end of last year the company also had on hand more than $10,500,000 in cash.

Officers of the American Tobacco Company are: Percival S. Hill, President; C. A. Penn, C. S. Keene, W. H. O'Brien, George W. Hill and J. H. Mahler, Vice Presidents. Among the Directors are J. C. Brady, Daniel Hall, J. E. Lipscomb, Jr., A. L. Sylvester as well as the officers mentioned above.

Among the companies which are controlled by the American Tobacco Company are The American Cigar Company, with a capitalization of $20,000,000, which in turn controls the Havana Tobacco Company. The last named concern in turn controls the Havana Commercial Company H. De Cabanas y Carbajal, and Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd.

The outstanding stock of the company at the end of 1918 was $40,242,400 common stock, and $52,699,700 preferred, both classes of $100 par value. It is this stock that will be readjusted and probably exchanged for the new 3,000,000 shares of no par value stock. The funded debt of the company as of Dec. 31, 1918, was $2,026,500, and there was an issue of $25,000,000 7 per cent. serial gold notes dated Nov. 1, 1918, outstanding.

CLEMENCEAU URGES TREATY RATIFICATION

Settles Electoral Law Dispute and Clears the Way for Coming Elections.

PARIS, Sept. 19, (Associated Press.)—Premier Clemenceau's intervention in the debate on the electoral law, which threatened to be prolonged indefinitely, settled the discussion in a fw minutes today, the Government taking the stand that the elections should be held according to the law of July last, providing for proportional representation.

The debate on the subject had been going on in morning sessions for nearly three weeks. The solution is considered in parliamentary circles to be a great step toward the prompt prorogation of the Chamber and subsequent elections.

Premier Clemenceau refused to answer a request that he fix a date for the elections, saying:

"Ratify the Peace Treaty first. Immediately upon ratification I will inform the Chamber of the date of the elections."

The electoral law debate was on when Aristide Briand, former Premier, asked the Government to define its position and bring the debate to a conclusion.

The Socialists, in an attempt to taunt the Premier, said that Briand had forced his hand and inflicted a check on his policy. M. Clemenceau replied:

"There is a check for some one. As for me, I have suffered others. There is one, however, which I could not survive—that is a check by Parliament before the whole country."

The Chamber had intended to hold an evening sitting tomorrow to try to ratify the Peace Treaty, but after a consultation with Foreign Minister Pichon, Minister of Marine Leygues, and Premier Clemenceau a postponement until Tuesday was agreed upon.

SAFETY IN CONSTITUTION.

Congressman Towner Sees Bolshevism Peril in Amendments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The Constitution of the United States stands as a bulwark against the rise of Bolshevism in the United States, declared Representative Horace M. Towner of Iowa, speaking in the House today at the celebration to mark the anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution. He advised against changes in the fundamental document, saying that changes at this time gave an opportunity for the radical element to force amendments that might be detrimental to the interests of the country.

Mr. Towner touched upon the elastic powers of the Constitution, which, he said, were so wide as to give the President the greatest power in war enjoyed by any ruler. He insisted that the regulations that have been the outgrowth of war should be repealed upon the declaration of peace, and that the country should return to the normal conditions promised by the Federal Constitution.

"We should understand," he said, "that Bolshevism is now an existing institution in the United States. The Communist Party, recently organized, according to a statement issued by its secretary, belongs to the same group of International Socialists as the Bolsheviki of Russia."

NEW NATIONS FAVOR LEAGUE

Czechoslovakia and Poland See Their Hope in Covenant.

In a cablegram received yesterday by the American Mid-European Association, Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, President of the new republic of Czechoslovakia, said:

"I consider the authority of a League of Nations, practically conducted, as very desirable. It would be the organic institution and culmination point of the Peace Conference. I expect that practice will necessarily bring about certain alterations of the peace conditions. All reasonable and honorable politicians and statesmen who are earnestly willing to prevent a new war will accept a real League of Nations with gratitude. Especially for the smaller and small nations this League will be a blessing."

The Mid-European Union, of which Dr. Masaryk is Chairman, announced that Ignace Paderewski, President of the Council of Ministers of Poland, had declared the League of Nations essential to Polish independence.

WADSWORTH SPEAKS AGAINST THE LEAGUE

Urges Reservations to Articles X. and XVI. and Monroe Doctrine on Senate.

NELSON PLEADS FOR POLAND

Minnesota Senator Attacks Second Reservation Proposed by the Lodge Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—In the first set speech he has delivered in the Senate on the League of Nations, Senator Wadsworth, New York, today maintained that the contract into which the United States is asked to enter under the treaty is likely to prove the destruction of American national unity. Injection into American life of European politics had already begun, he asserted, and if a permanent engagement was undertaken to have a hand in all of Europe's affairs, this would be greatly extended. He urged the adoption of the reservations proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee as to Article X. and XVI. of the League covenant and as to the Monroe Doctrine.

At the outset Mr. Wadsworth took issue with President Wilson's recent statement that the League of Nations was bigger than the Government of the United States.

"It is bigger than any man or any party," said Senator Wadsworth. "It is not, however, bigger than the Government of the United States, for that is the representative and agent of the people of the United States, and unless our institutions have already proved a failure, anything that is bigger than the Government is bigger than the people; and to that doctrine, as enunciated by the President in a recent speech, I cannot subscribe.

"Already we see the effects in this country of the proposal contained in the covenant of the League of Nations; already we see the effects of the partial participation in which this Government has indulged in European frictions and disputes. Some examples have come to my personal attention.

"Within eight days of the President's appeal to the Italian people over the heads of their Government regarding Fiume my mail was filled with letters and petitions and circulars from Italian-born citizens in the United States, urging me to use what influence I had to see that the United States took sides with Italy against Jugoslavia in regard to Fiume. Instantly European politics was in American politics.

"I have heard from delegations of Lithuanians who, in the same way, seeing the United States about to cast a deciding vote perhaps as to whether there shall be a Lithuania independent of Poland, or independent of Russia, have written me and doubtless other Senators to urge that we use our influence in behalf of their mother country.

Taking up Article X., the Senator said: "To my mind the President has settled it, and settled it right, as to its meaning. He said it was a binding moral obligation. All the play in and around the meaning of the word 'advice' means nothing."

"I hope the reservation recommended by the committee, reservation No. 2, will be adopted by the Senate, for if it is not adopted, and we sign this contract with Article X. in it as now proposed, we will be under obligations when the call comes, to send our soldiers and our money in a fruitless endeavor to maintain for an indefinite period the status quo of 1919. When we stop to comprehend what that means, I do not see how we can escape the conclusion that the Americans of the future are in for a forlorn hope."

"I rejoice that the Committee on Foreign Relations proposed a reservation which gives an adequate and accurate definition of the Monroe Doctrine, for the Monroe Doctrine I regard as the principal bulwark protecting the safety and independence of the people of the United States," he continued. "I shall never consent with my vote to have the meaning of that doctrine passed upon by a foreign body. I shall never consent to have it interpreted, as was suggested by some of the British members of the Peace Commission, by a League of Nations. It should not be under the jurisdiction of anybody but Uncle Sam. He, and he alone, is competent to interpret it. He, and he alone, can be called upon by his people to enforce it."

Following Senator Wadsworth's speech, which was warmly applauded by the occupants of the galleries, Senator Nelson, Minnesota, who has already spoken in favor of reservations, in a brief speech attacked the second reservation of the Foreign Relations Committee as unjust.

The Allies, including the United States, set up the new States of Poland and Czechoslovakia, he said, and now, if this reservation was adopted, the United States would in effect say to them that the United States had no further interest in them.

"This reservation," he said, "in its entirety throws overboard and scatters to the four winds by its disavowals the whole moral weight and influence of the United States. It not only does that, but it says to Poland and Czechoslovakia, 'Although we have joined the Allies in giving you statehood, we are wholly indifferent to your future welfare. It is no concern of ours whether you live or perish as a State. It is true we have breathed a little life into you by the treaty, but having done that we washed our hands of the whole business. We have no further concern in your future well-being.' This is akin to the poor, disconsolate, helpless mother who deposits in a basket her unfortunate offspring on the doorstep of some person whom she hopes will take care of the poor infant, and then leaves it."

Senator Nelson insisted that a moral responsibility rests upon the allies, as well as upon our country, to help the Russian people get rid of "the bloody terror" of Bolshevist rule.

The presence of American soldiers in Russia was justified, he said. If an adequate force had been put upon the Murmansk coast, he declared the Bolshevists rule would now be at an end.

DE VALERA NOT SATISFIED.

Insists Irish Freedom Be Safeguarded in League Covenant.

Speaking further yesterday concerning President Wilson's answers to the San Francisco Labor Council's questions regarding Ireland, Eamonn de Valera, President of the "Irish Republic," issued a statement last night, in which he said:

"Nobody with a particle of common sense would have faith in the benevolent interest in Irish freedom promised from a body constituted as is the proposed League of Nations. In it the defendant nation, England, is represented, more powerfully represented than any other member of the league, while the plaintiff nation, Ireland, has no representative at all.

"Under the present code of so-called international law the representative of Britain can, if he chooses, prevent the Irish case from being heard on the plea that it is purely a domestic question for Britain alone to deal with. If by the favor of some benevolent representative of some third nation and by England's consent the case did come up for a hearing, it would be considered and tried in secret with Ireland's advocate in no better position than a witness. Finally, should there be any prospect of a decision in favor of Ireland, England's representative could always use his veto under the clause that provides for a unanimous vote.

"The proposed covenant of the League of Nations will, if ratified, be an instrument of international compact. What the Irish people seek is that their right to liberty be explicitly safeguarded in that document, not left to the benevolent interest of some possible benevolent representative of another nation.

"It is not the Irish people who have diffidence in the justice of their cause; they have a well founded diffidence in those whose interest it is not to administer justice, but rather to bolster up justice."

WALSH ASKS THE PRESIDENT.

Inquires About Article X. and Britain's Territorial Integrity.

Frank P. Walsh announced last night that he sent this telegram to President Wilson:

"The Executive Committee of the Irish Race Convention in session here has directed me to wire you the following question: 'Is Ireland included in the territorial integrity of Great Britain, proposed to be guaranteed by Article X. of the covenant of the League of Nations?' They instruct me to say that a definite answer upon this point will clarify the minds of millions of our fellow American citizens.

"An answer addressed to me at 2142 Woolworth Building, New York City, will be promptly transmitted to the committee, which again meets at New York on Monday, Sept. 22, at 10 A. M.

"FRANK P. WALSH,

IRISH LOAN SALE OPENED.

$1,250,000 in Bonds Are Offered—Prospectuses May Be Seized.

DUBLIN, Sept. 19.—Subscriptions for the Irish Republican loan of £250,000 were opened today. No reliable data regarding the response is as yet available.

In advertising the loan large parcels of prospectuses are known to have been sent to local Sinn Fein agencies throughout the country for hand distribution, but many others were mailed in the British postoffice. There is some speculation as to whether these latter will be delivered or confiscated as ilegal matter.

Oppose Votes for French Women.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The Electoral Committee of the Senate has decided to report unfavorably on the Chamber of Deputies' measure which would give vote to women.

port such a reservation should the Johnson and Moses amendments be voted down. There is no way of converting the Johnson amendment itself into a reservation, it was stated, as it provides for altering the voting strength of the United States, but the point would be covered in part at least by the reservation in the form suggested.

Leading supporters of the Johnson amendment tonight declared that they had the votes to insure its adoption. Though some Republicans will vote against it, there are enough Democrats who favor it to come out for it on the final roll call, it was asserted. While his statement is disputed by Democratic leaders, Republicans adhered to it insistently, and predicted that the treaty's supporters would be disagreeably surprised when the vote was taken.

Realizing the importance of the test that is ahead, both sides today were doing their utmost to hold their forces. Present plans for the struggle are based upon the assumption that some supporter of the treaty will move early next wek to go back to the Johnson amendment, which was temporarily passed over at Senator Lodge's request.

There is no disposition to combat this motion. If there were, the test of strength could be had right there, though it might not be absolutely conclusive. Senator Lodge is disposed, he said, to have the fight on the merits of the amendment, rather than a parliamentary point. Once the amendment is called up, the forensic guns are expected to begin booming, first from the opposition to the League and then in reply from the Administration side of the chamber.

Senator Borah is preparing for a leading part in the fight. He is ready to take the ground that President Wilson was mistaken in saying that Great Britain could not outvote the United States, or else, Mr. Borah will hold the assembly of the League serves no useful purpose, and is merely a debating society formed for the purpose of allowing nations which otherwise would not have been represented to become members of the League. He will also assert that Great Britain was eager to have India given a vote, as evidence that Great Britain plans to use her votes effectively.

Stand on Wilson's Assurance.

The arguments against the amendment are to be based principally on President Wilson's assurance at San Francisco that the United States cannot be outvoted, because the vote of the American representative upon the Council is necessary to the unanimous decision on which all important League action rests, and the further ground that the amendment should be rejected because its adoption would involve sending the treaty back to the Peace Conference

The vote on the amendment may not come for ten days or two weeks, or it may come much sooner. Senator Lodge said today that he wished to have Senator Moses's amendment relating to the voting of British dominions in disputes in which the mother country is involved cosidered at the same time. This may complicate the debate.

Following speeches today by Senators Wadsworth and Nelson, the reading of the treaty was resumed in the Senate, and the League of Nations covenant was finished. Senator Moses's amendment was reached and passed over under the same understanding that was had relative to the Johnson amendment—that it was subject to call at any time. Senator Lodge said he wished it to come up with the Johnson proposal, as the two were closely related.

At the request of many Democratic Senators, the Senate today adjourned until Monday. Senator Lodge said that owing to the constant pressure that was being exerted from the Democratic side for speed in the consideration of the treaty, he had decided to have the Senate sit on Saturday, but was requested by Democrats to allow the week-end to be devoted to rest. He replied he would do so if a general demand arose.

JOHNSON INSISTENT ON TREATY DELAY

Declares That in Sixty Days Popular Sentiment Will Force Its Defeat or Amendment.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 19.—Senator Johnson of California in an address before a special session of the Legislature this morning, presented arguments in opposition to unqualified ratification of the League of Nations covenant. He expressed the opinion that if action on the League could be delayed sixty days the people would insist upon its defeat or amendment so as to protect the country's interests.

"Public sentiment against the League is growing every day and is fast assuming the proportions of a revolution," said Senator Johnson. "Its friends realize that if it is not rushed through now before the people have had an opportunity to understand it, their cause is hopeless. That explains the haste to have it ratified without amendment.

"The statement that immediate action is necessary to stabilize business is absurd.

"The pitiless logic of events is gradually dispelling the halo with which its advocates have enveloped the so-called League of Nations. The diplomacy and intrigue, the wars and counterwars of which we catch a hasty glimpse through a rigorous European censorship, are slowly but surely presenting it in its true aspect and making plain its real design. The unbridled and irrational emotionalism which greeted the suggestion of a League 'to promote peace and prevent war' and which was utilized to the full with a people sick of the carnage of the great world conflict before the terms of the League of Nations were known, and before its provisions were understood, is with the lapse of time gradually passing.

"As our people become nearer normal and see again with clearer vision, they begin to understand the iniquity of the thing that is sought to be fastened upon America. The treaty of peace was made in accordance with the contracts secretly sealed and delivered among England, France, Itlay, and Japan. We talked of what the treaty should contain, but the treaty when written contained what the other nations wanted and followed their secret bargains."

The Senator declared great burdens are imposed on the country under Article X., and said that it meant the sending of American soldiers abroad for many years.

DULUTH, Sept. 19.—Senator Johnson, addressing a large and enthusiastic audience in Duluth tonight, asserted that America's entry into the League of Nations would mark the formation of a partnership between the one going, solvent country in the world and certain European bankrupts, who, he said, had come to despise and detest us secretly.

"The League of Nations," he said, "comes to us after its principal members have been gorged with territory, with their boundaries and their limits increased beyond the wildest dreams and with other immense tracts of the world's surface yet to be distributed among them.

"After these extraordinary accessions of territory, the one going, solvent national concern on earth undertakes by Article X. to guarantee forever these extraordinary territorial limits. This section freezes the world into immutability. It assumes to put the world in a straitjacket, wherein there can be no movement for the betterment or progress of humanity."

The crowd which heard Senator Johnson packed the largest hall in the city and hundreds were turned away.

ANNOUNCE BRITAIN'S TREATY WITH PERSIA

$10,000,000 LOAN ARRANGED

British to Supply Advisers—Agree to Respect Persian Independence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The full text of the agreement between Great Britain and Persia was made public in Washington this afternoon.

The most prominent feature of the treaty is a loan of £2,000,000 at 7 per cent., redeemable in twenty years. This loan, which Great Britain offers to Persia, will have precedence over all the other debts of Persia, except a former loan of £1,250,000 on May 8, 1911. In return for the new loan Persia pledges her customs receipts.

Great Britain agrees to supply, at the cost of Persia, expert advisers, military officers, munitions, and equipment in order to form an army to preserve order in Persia and along her borders.

Letters from the British Minister at Teheran to the Persian Prime Minister state Great Britain's intention to aid Persia in recovering war claims and arranging her boundary lines. In one letter the agreement is made that Great Britain will make no charge for her troops sent to the help of Persia during the war, while, on the other hand, Persia will charge no indemnity for damage caused by those troops.

To Respect Persian Independence.

"1. The British Government reiterates, in the most categorical manner, the undertakings which they have repeatedly given in the past to respect absolutely the independence and integrity of Persia.

"2. The British Government will supply, at the cost of the Persian Government, the services of whatever expert advisers may, after consultation between the two Governments, be considered necessary for the several departments of the Persian administration. These advisers shall be engaged on contracts and endowed with adequate powers, the nature of which shall be a matter of agreement between the Persian Government and the advisers.

"3. The British Government will supply, at the cost of the Persian Government, such officers and such equipment of modern type as may be adjudged necessary by a joint commission of military experts, British and Persian, which shall assemble forthwith for the purpose of estimating the needs of Persia in respect of the formation of a uniform force which the Persian Government proposes to create for the establishment and preservation of order in the country and on its frontiers.

"4. For the purpose of financing the reforms indicated in Clauses 2 and 3 of this agreement, the British Government offers to provide or arrange a substantial loan for the Persian Government, for which adequate security shall be sought by the two Governments in consultation in the revenues of the customs or other sources of income at the disposal of the Persian Government. Pending the completion of negotiations for such loan, the British Government will supply on account of it such funds as may be necessary for initiating the said reforms.

"5. The British Government, fully recognizing the urgent need which exists for the improvement of communications in Persia, with a view both to the extension of trade and the prevention of famine, are prepared to co-operate with the Persian Government for the encouragement of Anglo-Persian enterprise in this direction, both by means of railway construction and other reforms of transport; subject always to the examination of the problem by experts and agreement between the two Governments as to the particular projects which may be most necessary, practicable, and profitable.

"6. The two Governments agree to the appointment forthwith of a joint committee of experts for the examination and revision of the existing customs tariff, with a view to its reconstruction on a basis calculated to accord with the legitimate interests of the country and to promote its prosperity."

Treaties to Be Revised.

One of the letters, addressed by the British Minister in Teheran to the Persian Prime Minister, reads in part:

"I trust your Highness has been able, during your successful direction of affairs of the Persian State, to convince yourself that his Britannic Majesty's Government have always endeavored to support to the utmost the efforts of your Highness's Cabinet on the one hand to restore order and security in the interior of the country, and on the other to maintain a policy of close co-operation between the Persian and British Governments.

"His Britannic Majesty's Government will be prepared in due course to co-operate with the Persian Government with a view of the realization of the following desiderata:

"1. The revision of the treaties actually in force between the two powers.

"2. The claim of Persia to compensation for material damage suffered at the hands of other belligerents.

"3. The rectification of the frontier of Persia at the points where it is agreed upon by the parties to be justifiable.

"The precise manner, time, and means to be chosen for pursuing these aims shall be discussed, as soon as practicable, by the two Governments."

MORGENTHAU SEES GERMANY FOR WAR

viting an onslaught which German arms unquestionably will make within a few years unless Germany's enemies intrench themselves through constructive work and establish the nations which threaten to weaken themselves and their allies through greed and jealousy.

"Germany has gone over into Russia. Her people are organizing there, and they will marshal Russian resources and utilize them in combating the rest of the world, unless a strong Poland is created as a protection for Europe.

"With her great industrial resources and wonderful railway systems dominating Central Europe, Germany is in a very fortunate position. She is strong and virile, and capable of great commercial and military effort. Nations like Italy, Greece, Rumania and Jugoslavia, which are extending their territory and spreading out in all directions, have not the industries to bring them that which makes Germany powerful. Furthermore, they are, in many cases, trying to swallow up peoples of different races and aspirations. They are trying to govern more than they can handle.

"Germany will leave France alone, perhaps, but she inevitably will try to gobble up Russia and many of the small countries of Central Europe.

"The task of the United States is clear. She must begin through her Allies, she must equip statesmen in the international school and create the first General Staff that has ever existed, so as to have leaders who will realize what the world developments are.

"An America which is ready, mentally and physically, to stand behind the League of Nations can hold the balance of power in the world. If the United States does not measure up to its responsibilities, Germany may win the next time and secure domination of the world."

PRESIDENT QUOTES ROOSEVELT'S VIEWS

must be reason for it, as this unrest was not "whimsical."

The treaty, Mr. Wilson went on, was not a statesmen arrangement, but a movement for the liberation of peoples and the release of the humane forces of the world.

"I have never heard this," he said, "in the speeches of the gentlemen who are opposing it. If they did tell you, they know that the resentment of the nation would rise and sweep them off their feet."

The principle of the League of Nations, which he sought to have put into effect, he continued, was the expression of the beliefs of all generous men which had been growing for generations, the dream of the friends of humanity throughout all ages.

"I repudiate as a fellow-American," he said, "anyone who would permit this question to be considered in regard to the elections of 1920."

It was at this point that the President made reference to the utterances of Colonel Roosevelt and Senator Lodge. He said, by way of preface, that he wished to refer to a statement by a man who had been "one of the most energetic, practical, and distinguished" leaders of thought in the United States.

In his article, the President said, Colonel Roosevelt expressed the belief that there was one permanent plan for obtaining peace and that was by pledges among the great powers to abide by the decisions of a common tribunal, and if necessary to use force to carry out the decisions. He quoted Colonel Roosevelt's statement and then added:

"This is a very worthy utterance made by Theodore Roosevelt, and I am very glad to align myself with it."

Colonel Roosevelt was idolized here and the huge crowd listened with intense interest, not knowing whether to cheer or remain silent. There was a ripple of hand clapping in some parts of the great crowd and then the applause was stilled.

Before quoting from Colonel Roosevelt the President quoted from the speech of Senator Lodge at a banquet in May, 1916, which, the President said, he himself attended. He read at length what Lodge then smaid about the work of the League to Enforce Peace. In this address, according to Mr. Wilson's quotation, Senator Lodge stated that he believed that when Washington warned the nation against entangling alliances he did not mean that the United States should not join with other assembly of the League of Nations, and by other members of the League."

The President went on to discuss the question of the six votes that Great Britain and her colonies have in the assembly of the League of Nations, and pointed out that under the League covenant no action could be taken without the concurrence of the American delegate.

Taking up the reservations proposed by the majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the President said that "in effect some of these reservations amounted to a declaration that the United States was unwilling to assume the same obligations as those assumed by other members of the League.

"I want to say with all the emphasis I am capable of," he went on, "that that is unworthy of the honor of the United States."

America, the President said, was the biggest thing in the world where high principles were concerned and must measure up to her proper standards. The United States, the President went on, had the spirit and energy to accomplish righ which no other nation could contribute to the cause of humanity.

Upon his arrival in San Diego today the President was driven to the U. S. Grant Hotel and then to the Exposition grounds. As the automobiles of the President's party left the Fair Grounds and approached the Stadium it was found that no precautions had been made to prevent automobiles from being parked along the roadway, and the President was help up several minutes in the jam. Finally his automobile was turned off the road and over a gutter, which gave the President and Mrs. Wilson a good jouncing.

During the ride through the Exposition Grounds Mrs. Wilson rode with the wife of G. A. Davidson, President of the Exposition. When the automobile left the grounds Mrs. Davidson gave way to the wife of Mayor Wilde. This arrangement was made because of the keen competition for the honor to ride with Mrs. Wilson.

The President was the guest at a dinner given at the U. S. Grant Hotel tonight by Mayor Wilde, at which Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury in McKinley's cabinet, presided. There were about 200 guests.

Southern California Pro-League.

Mr. Wilson continued to gain ground today in his campaign for the support of the Treaty and the League of Nations, as his train entered Southern California, where he was greeted by crowds at every station.

During his visit to this district the President was told that Southern California was about 80 per cent. pro-League, despite the fact that Senator Johnson retained his personal popularity.

The pro-League sentiment is not entirely for accepting the League without interpretative reservations, but inquiry shows beyond a reasonable doubt that most of the people are opposed to any course that would wreck the treaty. They want the League of Nations to be given a chance, with the United States as one of its leading members.

The vote in Southern California is, as a rule, the deciding factor in State political contests, and supporters of the League here say that the sentiment in the sountern counties would overcome any opposition in San Francisco and the north, and assure the League a two-thirds vote in the State, if such a vote were to be taken.

The controversy over the treaty and League turns on non-political lines. Republicans, Democrats, and Progressives are divided on the question.

Here, perhaps, more than in any other region which the President has visited, the women are influential. They have full suffrage and take an active part in things political. In the southern counties they represent at least 50 per cent. of the voting strength, and have not failed to realize their power. The result has been a free discussion of public questions by the members of a dozen or more organizations of women. The League advocates say that the women of Southern California are practically all in favor of a League. It is certain that leading women of all political faiths have been doing effective missionary work in its behalf.

In illustration of the extent to which they have made their power felt, Mrs. Josiah Evan Cowles, National President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has been selected as chairman of the meeting to be held tomorrow in Los Angeles, which is staged in connection with the visit of the President to this district.

Attitude of the Women.

The attitude of the women of Southern California was summed up today by one of their leaders as follows:

"They feel that the League of Nations may at least be effective in postponing war and that there is a good chance that it will spell the end of war. Therefore they are in favor of giving it a chance to operate.

"They are not opposed to reservations and in fact would be glad to have reservations made that would protect legitimate interests of the United States in the event that they did not destroy the large things at stake. Frankly, they do not believe the League covenant is a perfect document—they don't think any 'man-made' document could be just that."

The women have been discussing also the commercial features of the treaty and League covenant at their meetings and have come to the conclusion that the United States would be put at a great disadvantage if it refused to enter the League.

The Shantung agreement in the treaty of peace is not the big Japanese issue in this state, it would appear, and President Wilson's explanation of the matter seems to have been reasonably satisfying. The real Japanese issue relates to means of preventing the Japanese, now multiplying with great rapidity, from acquiring property through the increase of children, who are American citizens when born on the soil of the United States.

Large acquisitions of property rights through these child-citizens is going on in the Sacramento district in the north and in the Imperial Valley in the south.

Houses are said to be overflowing with these young citizens and no state law has been devised that will refuse them the right to own land. Many thousands of acres are being taken up, it is said, in Florin Township, in Sacramento County. It is reported that of seventy-nine births recorded at one time, seventy-five were Japanese.

As compared with the Shantung agreement, this issue of the right to acquire land titles is of more importance in the minds of Californians.

Warm Greetings at Every Station.

Coming south from Oakland, the President's train entered the beautiful San Fernando Valley this morning. At every stop the people were out in large numbers and gave him a cordial greeting. There were many Japanese in some crowds and the little men and women and children stood by, some grinning, some solemn of face, but all undemonstrative.

A brief stop was made in Los Angeles en route to this city and here a large crowd was on hand. There were hundreds of railroad employes at this point and it was a matter of comment that there was no show of resentment against the President because of the firm stand he took recently in ordering the men, who had gone out on an unauthorized strike, to return to work, with the alternative that the Government would use its full power to operate the lines. There has been little evidence of industrial unrest since the President entered California, although it had been predicted that trouble might be found.

South of Los Angeles the President's train passed through rich orange groves and by rows of stately palms and then for miles along the shore of the Pacific. There were cheering crowds at every station.

QUOTES REPUBLICAN LEADERS.

Lodge's and Roosevelt's Utterances Cited by the President.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 19.—President Wilson's address at the Stadium today was in part as follows:

If anybody discusses this question (the League of Nations) on the basis of party advantage, I repudiate him as a fellow American and in order to validate what I have said I want to make one or two quotations from representatives of a party to which I do not belong. The first I shall make from a man who has for a long time been a member of the United States Senate.

The President here quoted Senator Lodge as saying at a banquet in May, 1916:

"No one, I think, can feel more deeply than I do the difficulties which confront us in the work which this League (the League to Enforce Peace) undertakes. But the difficulties cannot be overcome unless we try to overcome them. I believe it can be done. Probably it will be impossible to stop all wars, but it certainly will be possible to stop some wars and thus diminish their number. The way in which this problem is to be worked out must be left to this League and to those who are giving this great question the study which it deserves. I know the obstacles, I know how squarely we will be met with the statement: 'This is a dangerous question which you are putting into this agreement, that no nation can submit to the judgment of other nations, and we must be careful at the beginning not to attempt too much.

"I know the difficulties which arise when we speak of anything which seems to involve an alliance, but I do not believe, when Washington warned us against entangling alliances, he meant for one moment that we should not join with the other civilized nations of the world if a method could be found to diminish war and encourage peace.

"This League certainly has the highest of all ambitions for the benefit of humanity, and because the pathway is sown with difficulties is no reason that we should turn from it."

The President then quoted ex-President Roosevelt as having written in an article, published in October, 1914:

"The only prominent move for obtaining peace which has yet been suggested with any reasonable chance of attaining its object is by an agreement among the great powers in which each should pledge itself not only to abide by the decision of a common tribunal but to back with force the decision of that common tribunal. The great civilized nations of the world which do not possess force actually or immediately, potentially, should combine by solemn agreement in a great world league for peace and righteousness."

A very worthy utterance by Theodore Roosevelt. I am glad to align myself with such utterances as that. I subscribe to every word of it, and here in concrete form is the fulfillment of the plan which they advocate. We cannot in reason, we cannot as lovers of liberty, we cannot as supporters of right, turn away from it.

When I find a man who in a public matter will not state his side of his case I know that his side of the case is the losing side, that he dare not state it. And at the heart of most of our industrial difficulties, my fellow citizens—and most of you are a witness to this—lies the unwillingness of men to get together and talk it over.

Half of the temper which now exists between those who perform labor and those who direct labor is due to the fact that those who direct labor won't talk differences over with the men whom they employ. I am in every such instance convinced that they dare not talk it over. Not only that, but every time the two sides do get together and talk it over together they come out of the conference in a different temper from that with which they went in.

There is nothing that affects the attitude of men like really frankly laying their minds alongside a fair and manly and open comparison.

You have here (in the treaty) what the world must have, what America went into the war to obtain. You have here an estoppal of the brutal, sudden impulse of war. You have here a restraint upon the passions of ambitious nations, you have here a safeguard of the liberty of weak nations, and the world is at last ready to stand up in council and discuss the fortunes of men and women and children everywhere.

Autocratic powers may spring up, but there is only one soil in which they can spring up: That is, the wrongs done to free peoples of the world. So long as wrongs like that exist in the world, you cannot bring permanently peace to the world. I go further than that: so long as wrongs of that sort exist, you ought not to bring permanent peace to the world.

For my part, I will not take any part in composing difficulties that ought not to be composed, and the difficulty between an enslaved people and its autocratic rulers ought not to be composed.

WHAT ROOSEVELT WROTE.

His Views as to Joint Action to Enforce Peace.

The statement of Colonel Roosevelt to which the President referred in his spech at San Diego yesterday was part of an article published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Sunday, Oct. 18, 1914. In part the ex-President said:

"The one permanent move for obtaining pace which has yet been suggested with any reasonable chance of attaining its object is by an agreement among the great powers, in which each should pledge itself not only to abide by the decisions of a common tribunal but to back with force the decision of that common tribunal.

"The great civilized nations of the world which do possess force, actual or immediately potential, should combine by solemn agreement in a great World League for the Peace of Righteousness. A court should be created—a changed and amplified Hague Court would meet the requirements—composed of representatives from each nation; these representatives being sworn to act in each case as judges, pure and simple, and not in a representative capacity.

"The nations should agree on certain rights that should not be questioned, such as their territorial integrity, their rights to deal with their own domestic affairs, and such matters as to whom they should or should not admit to residence and citizenship within their own borders. All should guarantee each of their number in the possession of these rights. All should agree that other matters at issue between any of them, or between any of them and any one of a number of specified outside civilized nations, should be submitted to the court as above constituted.

"They should, furthermore, agree not only to abide, each of them, by the decision of the court, but all of them to unite with their military forces to enforce the decree of the court as against any recalcitrant member. Under these circumstances, it would be possible to agree on a limitation of armaments that would be real and effective.

"If any nation were unwilling to go into such a general agreement with other nations, it would, of necessity, have to depend upon its own armed strength for its own protection. This is the only alternative. Treaties, unbacked by force, cannot be considered as an alternative by any sober persons of sound judgment."

EXPLAINS "FREEDOM OF SEAS."

Not an Issue if the League Comes Into Being.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 19.—For the first time during his speaking trip the President told at a dinner tonight why it was not thought necessary to define "freedom of the seas" at the Peace Conference.

Declaring that one of the reasons that America went to war was for the freedom of the seas, the President said that under the League of Nations it "became unnecessary to define" freedom of the seas. It was accepted, he said, that the doctrine was for the protection of neutrals while other nations were at war. "There are no neutrals under the League," he added.

Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury under President McKinley, introduced the President, after remarks by Mayor Wilde. Mr. Gage said that if McKinley were alive he would say to President Wilson: "God bless the work you are doing—I stand with you."

Replying to a reference to the Philippines by Mr. Gage, the President said that under the League the Pacific possessions could be assured political independence. That instrument, he said, would be a guarantee against external aggression.

ORDERS PRESIDENT TO REST

Dr. Grayson Insists on It—Mr. Wilson Has a Slight Cold.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 19.—Although the President's health is said to be excellent, sixteen days of travel and speechmaking have been very fatiguing and Dr. Grayson is insisting that there be more opportunity for rest whenever possible. Mr. Wilson also has a slight cold, and during his address last night in Oakland his voice broke several times.

On the doctor's advice he adhered strictly to the rule against rear platform speeches today at several California cities where his train made brief stops.

Crowds had gathered at nearly every station along the way, and wherever his train came to a stop the President went out and shook hands. One of the largest turn-outs was at Santa Barbara, where the crowd tried in vain to get him to talk.

At Oceanside the crowd cheered when the President appeared on the platform of his car, and men and women called for Mrs. Wilson, who came out and bowed.

The President was smiling at the reception accorded the "first lady of the land," when one man in the crowd said in an audible whisper: "I don't wonder he smiles."

To allow more time for rest during the remainder of his stay in California, President Wilson decided today to curtail his program and spend all of tomorrow in Los Angeles.

The President and his party will spend the night in Coronado, according to present plans.

WILLARD REPORTED OUT.

Resignation from Railroad Executives' Steering Committee Rumored.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has left the Steering Committee of the Railroad Executive Association, it was said in Washington tonight. Whether Mr. Willard had actually resigned could not be confirmed, but it was reported that he had done so because of a difference of views with some of the other members. The Steering Committee has been directing the policy of the railroads in relation to the legislation now before Congress concerning the future of the systems.

Opposition has been expressed before the Congressional Interstate Commerce Commission by some of the executives to the inclusion in the proposed legislation of the plan of the Association of Security Holders for provisions for a fixed percentage rate return and taking excess earnings from the wealthier roads. It is on this issue, it is said, that Mr. Willard split with other members of the Steering Committee. Recently when appearing in behalf of the Security Holders' Association, he approved the fundamentals of their plan, contending that it was necessary to do something about excess earnings, and that Congress should fix the rate minimum.

SHIPS AND CREDITS GERMANY'S NEED

WILL DELAY BUILDING SHIPS

BREMEN, Sept. 16.—"I have talked with shipowners and merchants who formerly had worldwide connections and with allied and neutral representatives who are at present in Hamburg and Bremen trying to re-establish the bonds of commerce. The voice of the commercial neutral is very loud in these cities, where there are also many Americans, but the tardiness of English firms in sending representatives is very much commented upon.

The general feeling among commercial people, both German and foreign, is one of hopefulness. It is recognized that recovery will be slow, and that the present generation, which has to rehabilitate the value of the mark and feel the first shock of paying the Entente claims, will never again know pre-war prosperity; but still it is felt that Germany is going to recover, and that with allied help a good beginning can soon be made.

Of course, "allied help" means that German firms are again to enter into competition, but Germany cannot pay the claims made against her unless such competition takes place, and the idea that Germany can for years to come be a serious rival of any allied country is scouted here by all in the best position to judge. I have been through a number of large warehouses in Hamburg, and if Germany has large stocks of goods waiting to be exported, they are certainly not in Hamburg. Germany has china and glass and potash to export, but few things in such quantities as need cause alarm in Entente countries. The problem is this: Germany has factories, docks, railways, labor and everything required for productive purposes. She is destitute, however, of all those raw materials which she formerly imported from abroad to feed those factories and, owing to the almost vanished value of the mark, she is unable at present to buy those raw materials. How to finance herself and so employ her productive resources is the problem she is attempting to solve and the problem about which I inquired during my stay in Bremen and Hamburg.

Germany Destitute of Ships.

Certain elementary facts are thoroughly realized here. It is recognized that Germany's overseas trade is absolutely dependent upon the Allies, that Germany's recovery as a whole is equally dependent upon the Allies, and that Germany is destitute of ships to carry her exports and imports. Prior to the outbreak of the war Bremen had a tonnage of 1,300,000, and Hamburg of 2,600,000, while now the tonnages owned are respectively 56,500 and 82,500. All Germany owns now only 3¼ per cent. of her pre-war shipping tonnage.

As against these realities Germany has two assets which she considers to be of considerable value. She has a large market to offer, and she has large labor power. Germany wishes to pledge these two assets in exchange for long-dated credits by which and by which alone she can recover sufficiently; and those credits would have to be furnished in the form of raw materials are food supplies to enable Germany to tide over the worst of the post-war period. Realizing that she has to go on short rations for many years, Germany will probably place an embargo upon the importation of luxuries and is certainly prepared to use in home consumption only the barest subsistence minimum.

Beyond that minimum Germany will re-export all the raw materials sent her in the form of manufactured articles, thus really exporting the value of her labor. By this labor value and by those home products which Germany can export, it is hoped that in the course of years Germany will be able to re-establish the value of the mark and to repay credits and interest.

Among the materials which are most pressingly required are oil cakes, to improve the food supply and all textile materials, such as wool, cotton and jute. This problem of restocking Germany is one of tremendous magnitude. One estimate made to me is that from two to three billion pounds would be required. This sum is of course impossible. The Allies could not supply it, nor could Germany swallow it if granted. But £50,000,000 is frequently mentioned as the minimum sum to enable Germany to make a proper start.

We now have the habit of thinking of America when we talk of credits and raw materials, but Germany, while not minimizing the importance of America, is thinking equally of England. It is fully recognized that England and the British Empire are guardians of tremendous sources of raw materials, and German merchants are looking toward England with as much anxiety as toward America, which is why the comparative absence of English business representatives outside the occupied territories is being so much commented upon.

Plan of Chartering Foreign Tonnage.

As regards shipping, I had a long talk with one of the directors of the North German Lloyd Company of Bremen as to the prospects. As the statistics just quoted show, Germany is bereft of tonnage, but her shipping companies are of course to be compensated by the Government for the losses incurred. With this capital, however, the German shipping companies are not to begin building their new fleets right away. At present they are to charter ships wherever possible—and in this connection Holland, Scandinavia and America are mentioned as likely fields to keep the German flag on the high seas to some extent and to cope with that increase in emigration which is expected in the immediate future. When freights have come tumbling down, as they are expected to do, and when the cost of shipbuilding is reduced accordingly, then Germany will begin to rebuild. Her yards have been extended during the war and are now capable of an annual output of 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 tons.

Such, then, is the problem facing Germany, and such the possible means of solution. It is true that there are other factors, such as the political situation, but this is regarded as stable, even though still liable to temporary shocks. Coal and currency are two dominating factors. No one doubts that with a full output from her mines Germany will be able to fulfill her treaty obligations as regards coal deliveries and to supply her own requirements. Currency must be dealt with on the basis of credits for raw materials from England and America. These credits, it is realized, will be in the nature of a gamble—a gamble upon Germany's ability to maintain order during reconstruction and upon her ability within the period of credit to restore the value of the mark—but without such a gamble Germany must go bankrupt and until some international arrangement is come to German business men will probably continue to be as unwilling to enter upon contracts as all the Entente representatives I have spoken with assure me they are at present.

BERLIN SHOPS CLOSED IN STRIKE OF PROTEST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—Berlin retail dealers in food supplies are so indignant against the local food distribution that today they closed their shops for six hours as a protest against the proposed introduction of compulsory communalization of food supplies to tide the city over the period of scarcity, which is aggravated by corruption and the low value of the mark.

The shopkeepers assert that they suffered greatly during the war, and that they ought to get more consideration than is shown them under the communalization proposals. To draw more attention to their grievances they decided that the usual protest of a strike was necessary, and so today some 75,000 shops were duly and solemnly closed from 10 in the morning to 4 in the afternoon. Bakers, grocers, butchers, and greengrocers all took part in this strike, which was carried out in most districts of Greater Berlin and the suburbs.

But opposition was encountered in the east and north. There circulars had been distributed among the shopkeepers by a number of consumers, who threatened to boycott the shops if they participated in the strike—a threat which effectually crushed in many cases the desire to take part in the protest. No great inconvenience was caused to the public, as supplies could still be obtained from those irregular sources which are Berlin's mainstay as regards food supplies.

Nowadays no protest is ever made without holding a meeting, and the striking shopkeepers met in conclave in Philharmonic Hall in the afternoon. At this meeting a long resolution was presented which was in the nature of a treaties upon the effects of communalization in the economic sphere and upon the deterimental effects to consumers which might be expected as a result of municipal shopkeeping. Indignant speeches were made at the meeting, which continued after the shops reopened.

While there has been a tendency to treat the whole matter lightly, there is at the same time an underlying significance in this strike protest. It is an addition to the growing number of instances in which the bourgeoisie has shown that it can organize for strike action, and in the coming months this ability may be of great value. There has been talk here lately of the necessity of a dictatorship of moderates if agitation by the Extreme Left or Right becomes serious, and such a dictatorship would depend for its success very largely upon the organizing power of the bourgeoise.

With all its many difficulties, Berlin has at least one great mainstay. The purchasing power of the mark may have declined almost to the vanishing point; coal, gas, and food may be insufficient, but there are always moving pictures to keep one's spirits up. A walk along the streets might suggest to a stranger that enough picture "palaces" existed to satisfy one city; but apparently the suggestion would be wrong. Berlin, the intellectual city, as one newspaper sarcastically comments, is to have no fewer than twelve new motion palaces. Several of these have already been opened, among them the biggest one of the lot, a huge place, accommodating 4,000 people, while others are being rapidly pushed to completion. Presumably one effect will be to give more work to whatever body looks after Berlin's public morals campaign, which was opened some time ago and is directed against the exhibition in picture houses of propaganda films dealing with sex problems. These films have been markedly popular here. They are prominently advertised and largely attended, but it is difficult to find where the propaganda comes in and what is the end to which it is directed. These films are really rather revolting, when not merely stupid, and are a sign of decadence in Berlin rather than of any desire to scare people into cleaner behavior.

WANT MONEY THREAT TO CURB GERMANS

ALLIES CHARGE PERFIDY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Once more the Allies find themselves confronting a serious problem in giving order to Germany. This time it is the question of the Baltic provinces.

Last Monday the Supreme Council decided to send to the German Government another note saying that von der Goltz and his army must get back from those provinces to German soil. This note was to have been sent in reply to the German representations that the Berlin Government was very sorry about the whole business, but was not responsible because it could not make von der Goltz and his army come home, that it had ordered them home, but they would not come. It disclaimed all aid and comfort to von der Goltz.

The note planned by the Allies was to have told Berlin that, notwithstanding all that, the German Government must get von der Goltz out of the Baltic provinces, whether it was responsible or not for his being there.

Yesterday, while the note was being prepared, unquestionable proof came from Germany that von der Goltz and his 40,000 men were being supplied from East Prussia and that the Berlin Government was sending the supplies. Accordingly, the note is for the present held up, it is said. Whether it will be sent or not is a question.

"What is the use?" is the attitude taken by a not unimportant part of the Peace Conference.

The suggestion was made, upon the receipt of the news that Berlin was responsible for supplying von der Goltz, that Poland be asked to expel the Germans from the Baltic provinces. This suggestion came from Marshal Foch's staff. It was disapproved by the Supreme Council, on the ground that the council was trying to put Poland in a peaceful condition and that to set the Poles against the Germans in the Baltic provinces would mean war with the Germans wherever Poles and Germans touched. Furthermore, it was hinted that it was by no means certain that the Poles could finish the affair if they started it.

At the meeting of the Supreme Council today attention was turned toward ways and means to get the Germans out of those provinces. No public announcement of the conclusions were made, but it is understood that the outcome may be that the American Government may be looked to to make a statement that the Federal Reserve Board will frown upon any proposal of American banking interests making advances to Germany so long as she misbehaves in a way which not only displeases Washington, but might throw Germany again into war with England or France, or both.

There is, of course, no proposal on foot for the American Government to advance money to Germany, but it is said that certain American banking interests stand ready to make such advances as soon as the Peace Treaty is ratified. Germany needs credits badly, and it is the belief in certain quarters here that withholding American cash or credit might have a wholesome effect on her.

In the situation the French are repeating their talk about an advance of the Allies from the Rhine. Such a move would mean little more than that the French would occupy Frankfort and Mannheim. However, this plan has not taken definite form, although if an ultimatum were sent it would probably be in the form of such a threat.

In the meanwhile von der Goltz stays in the Baltic provinces, nursing along the German plan of annexing those territories.

FIUME UNDER GUNS OF ALLIED SHIPS

Belief D'Annunzio's Forces Will Be Ordered to Evacuate the Town.

POET DEFIES GEN. BADOGLIO

Is Said to Have Army of 11,000 Men and Supplies for Three Months.

KING AGAINST BLOODSHED

Duke of Aosta May Use Influence to Induce D'Annunzio to Surrender.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—After a conference between Allied commanders at Abbazia, Allied warships have left the harbor of Fiume and have levelled their guns on the town, according to a German Government wireless report quoting advices received in Berlin from Laibach and Vienna.

The dispatch states that it is assumed an ultimatum will be sent demanding that Captain d'Annunzio's forces evacuate the town within twenty-four hours.

ROME, Sept. 19.—The time limit fixed by General Badoglio, Deputy Chief of Staff, for the Italian troops that left their posts in the armistice zone around Fiume and entered the city with Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio to return to their commands expired last night. Latest advices from the scene of Captain d'Annunzio's coup showed his forces were still in control of the city.

Colonel Scillani, chief of the staff of General Badoglio and a personal friend of Gabriele d'Annunzio, has returned from Fiume, where he had a conversation with the poet, who said he had previously informed all the allied countries, including the United States, of his intention to occupy Fiume.

According to the Messaggero, the land and sea blockade of Fiume is complete. The National Council of Fiume is supplied with foodstuffs for three months. D'Annunzio is reported to be suffering from fever.

Great significance is attached here to a long interview the Duke of Aosta had with Premier Nitti after an equally long audience the Duke had with the King. The Duke of Aosta is popular with the troops and a close friend of Gabriele d'Annunzio, whom it is believed he may be able to influence.

Among measures adopted by the Government to prevent reinforcements from reaching the Italian "irregular" troops in Fiume is a military order removing the magnetos from airplanes at all aviation camps. D'Annunzio has already succeeded in gathering about him at Fiume airplanes forming part of his famous squadron.

It is reported that Jugoslav troops are concentrating on the frontier between Fiume and the hinterland. There are indications that people not essential to the defense of the place may be compelled to leave so that the armed forces may be able to holdout longer.

The inter-allied forces which left Fiume after the arrival of Captain d'Annunzio's troops are reported to be at Abbazia, about two miles northwest of the city, where they are awaiting instructions.

Trieste Volunteers Join d'Annunzio.

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—A dispatch from Laibach states that d'Annunzio, whose army has increased to over 11,000, including 1,600 volunteers from Trieste, refuses to obey the orders isued by General Badoglio, who is on an Italian warship.

D'Annunzio insists he will fight to the end if attacked and if forced to will blow up Fiume. There is an unconfirmed report that the Jugoslavs, among whom discontent is increasing, intend to occupy Sussak as a reprisal until d'Annunzio departs.

The German papers are publishing long articles concerning the coup d'etat at Fiume, which is compared with Danzig. The German press recommends the similar capture of Danzig, but the Poles are taking precautions.

Italy Calm Over Fiume.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Sept. 19.—Italy on the whole is taking the Fiume episode calmly. Prime Minister Nitti seems to have been by far the most affected, and not without good reason, for the coup has fallen at an inopportune moment and he fears to fall under suspicion in the eyes of the Allies.

Certain mischievous tongues have spread it that the Government was not wholly in the dark and many foreigners resident here have been assured of this by Italians, but Nitti's anger, amazement and annoyance on first hearing the news proved his ignorance.

Though d'Annunzio was supposed to be very busy on his Tokio air trip, due to start Oct. 15, he had of late been a constant visitor to Venice, staying in the palace which was once the favorite resort of Prince Hohenlohe. There he constantly received friends from all parts of Italy and only a couple of days before his march entertained a large party at night and gave them the toast, "To Fiume, heroine of freedom in a world both vile and mad."

Premier Nitti has re-established the censorship with regard to Fiume. Papers must submit their notices to the censor. This seems a very bitter pill for the editor of the Popolo d'Italia, a stanch ally of d'Annunzio and an apostle of Fiume's rights. A portion of his front page in one issue is blank, and instead of the article prepared, he had printed in large letter from top to bottom, "Made white by order of Nitti, the bargainer of his country's dignity."

The San Marco of the navy left Fiume harbor almost stealthily, General Gasioli, beloved by all, had to leave almost as a deserter. Generals Marietti and Rossi bade no farewell to their friends.

General Pittaluga, who has capitulated to the Poet, was sent with strict injunctions to repress all disorders and to prevent the soldiers mixing with the civilians. D'Annunzio's troops in Fiume have taken over the billets formerly occupied by the Italian contingent of the interallied garrison.

A large number of this contingent have gone over to the invaders as well as many of the population and sailors from the Italian battleships. There has been no fighting. Communications from Fiume to Rome, Venice and Trieste have been suspended, so that the city is now completely isolated.

LENOIR GETS RESPITE ON VERGE OF DEATH

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Announcement was made at 8:45 o'clock this morning of the postponement of the execution of Pierre Lenoir, who was tried with Senator Humbert and others on a charge of communicating military intelligence to the enemy, and who was to have faced a firing squad at dawn today.

The neighborhood of Vincennes woods, where the execution was to have taken place, was put under a strong guard of soldiers from the 13th Artillery Regiment at 5:30 A. M. A short time afterward Major Gromier, commander of the troops at Fort Vincennes, and M. Raux, Prefect of Police, arrived, and a firing squad from the 26th Unmounted Chasseurs took up position.

At 6:10 o'clock two automobiles left the fort and drove rapidly in the direction of the execution grounds. Men and women going to work, seeing the soldiers, remarked: "It is all over for Lenoir," but at 6:45 o'clock it was learned that the execution had been delayed for a short time.

The military justice, a party of lawyers, and a chaplain went to Lenoir's cell, finding the condemned man very calm.

"My father taught me not to fear death," he said, "and I shall die courageously. I love France and never betrayed my country."

Asked if he had any communication to make to the party, Lenoir replied:

"At the moment of death I repeat what I have always vainly asked—to be confronted with Joseph Caillaux."

[Joseph Caillaux, former Premier of France, is now under arrest in a hospital near Paris under charges similar to those upon which Lenoir was convicted.]

MAY URGE POLAND TO HALT INVASION

ANXIOUS FOR HER FINANCES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—The Supreme Council in a few days will probably call on Poland to cease pressing operations against the Russian Bolsheviki. This step does not mean love for the Bolsheviki, but consideration for Poland. In other words, the Peace Conference believes that the State which it has created has for the present advanced quite far enough into Russia and had better begin to get down to a peace basis. It was satisfied to have Poland fight the Bolsheviski in self-defense, but now that her armies have in some regions penetrated 200 miles into Russian territory the Conference begins to believe that the necessity for self-defense has passed.

It will be represented to Poland that she will have difficulty in getting financial help from private sources while she is at war on all sides, and that she will find it impossible at this time to get funds to conduct a war of conquest. Apparently none of the allied nations care to finance Poland in the struggle against the Bolsheviki. Certainly America is not undertaking that task, nor is England, and France has not the money to spare for it.

It is not perfectly plain what attitude the ambitious Poles will take toward the suggestion that they let up in their pursuit of the Russian Reds. They have been very successful and have taken a huge slice of territory. It is the feeling of the Peace Conference leaders that for the present the Poles should keep this territory from Lenin's domination, but there is no disposition to let it become permanently a part of Poland.

On the other hand, some of the most ambitious Poles are inclined to incorporate in Poland the land which they now hold after having taken it from the Bolsheviki. Whether the Poles will consent to stop where they are or will try to carry on their successful flight is matter of conjecture. The delegates most friendly to Poland say that she will be in a bad economic plight if she keeps on making war on the present scale. She needs money now, and financiers dislike to loan it to warring nations. Herbert Hoover recently pointed out that if Poland was to get down to any basis promising prosperity, she must cut down her military operations and use her rolling stock to move food and raw materials instead of soldiers and munitions.

This decision of the Peace Conference will bring rejoicing to Lenin and Trotsky, for the Poles have been the most successful allied force against the Red armies. With the Polish pressure withdrawn, the Bolsheviki will naturally have greater force to expend in other directions. If the Allies succeed in getting the Germans out of the Baltic provinces, that will mean a further lessening of the pressure against the Bolsheviki, although the change there will be more theoretical than real.

It is probable that the voice of the American delegation will carry much weight in advising Poland that she has done well enough against the Bolsheviki and should let well enough alone. Poland looks to the United States for financial and economic aid in the reconstruction she so much needs, and whatever the American representatives have to say about her program will receive keen attention. There is no question that the Americans will be firm in representing that Poland has sufficiently defended herself against the Bolshevist aggression and should stop driving in the direction of Russia.

BRITISH GLAD TO QUIT NORTH.

Evacuation of Archangel Proceeding Under Great Difficulties.

ARCHANGEL, Sept. 16.—The evacuation of the Archangel front by the British is proceeding as smoothly as could be expected, in view of the formidable difficulties attending the operation, including a shortage of shipping and river boats. The difficulties have been enormously increased also by the fact that in addition to the soldiers thousands of civilians are being removed.

Small raids against the Bolsheviki are being continued, for the purpose of screening the movements of the troops and keeping the Soviet forces guessing.

A number of British troops are now here ready to embark. The men are in high spirits at the prospect of returning home.

LITHUANIA REJECTS PEACE.

Envoys in Paris Deny Red Report That Negotiations Have Begun.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The Lithuanian delegation here has issued a formal denial that its Government had agreed to discuss peace with the Russian Soviet, as stated in a wireless message received from M. Tchitcherin, Bolshevist Foreign Minister.

The denial says that Lithuania, on receiving such a proposal from the Sovit Government, had replied that, its troops having been victorious over the enemy, Lithuania would continue to reject any proposals for negotiations without the full consent of the Allies.

A Berlin dispatch dated Sept. 15 stated that representatives of Letvia, Lithuania, and Esthonia, in conference at Riga, had decided to accept the Russian Bolsheviki peace proposal.

WON'T LOAD SHIP FOR SIBERIA.

Seattle Longshoremen Claim Violation of Peace Treaty.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 19.—Business agents of the local longshoremen's union, backed, it was said, by approval of the Central Labor Council, have refused to allow longshoremen to load a shipment of arms and munitions destined for Siberia on the Shipping Board's steamer Delight, it became known today. The labor agents held the handling of such material was in violation of the labor section of the Peace Treaty.

Operators of the vessel said the shipment would be loaded.

ARMENTIERES AMID RUINS OF WAR

8,000 Persons Already Back and Rubbish Heaps Are Being Cleared Away.

OUR RED CROSS AIDS MAYOR

And an American Company Has Offered a Loan with Which to Rebuild the City.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ARMENTIERES, Sept. 18.—Faith may certainly move rubbish heaps, as I saw today in the burning sunshine which glared down upon the ruins of Armentières. In Armentières itself there are now 8,000 people living, though I remember a day in 1917 when, with a steel hat on my head and a gas mask very handy, I went with one other man down streets of ruin where we walked close to the wall, listening with both ears cocked to ugly noises overhead and seeing not one human soul or any living thing in this ugly little town.

That was after the days when the Germans finally abandoned the kind of truce they had kept to spare the place while we spared Lille, and smashed it from end to end with high explosives and filled it with poison gas from thousands of shells. Six hundred British soldiers were gassed at that time and 500 civilians, mostly women and children, whose bodies were brought out from their cellars on doors and shutters by men of the Royal Army Medical Corps when the storm eased off a little.

That was the time of Armentières's agony. In June of 1917 there was not one house in the town which remained undamaged, and two thirds of the houses and all the churches and schools, the Town Hall and other public buildings were just skeletons of masonry, gutted form roof to cellar.

Women Folk Calmly Knitting.

So they stood today, when I saw them again. Nevertheless, as I have said, 8,000 people are back again. I saw many of the women and girls sitting in the shadow of broken walls, knitting and sewing outside the ruin of their homes as placidly as though there were knockers on the front doors, or front doors in the framework, or any rooms within beyond partitions of oilcloth and brown paper, or at the best matchboarding.

I passed some smartly dressed girls, neat as a new pin, parading down a street which would have inspired Captain Bairnsfather, as though it were the Boulevard des Italiens, Paris. I went into a little estaminet and over a bowl of admirable coffee under a ceiling of brown paper chatted with a man and woman who had come back to their home and started business again. They talked in a kind of duet, the bass voice of the man and the shrill voice of the woman taking up the recitatif, which contained all the tragedy of Armentières and most of the drama of the war as it had passed through the souls of these two humble, brave, clear-eyed peasant folk.

But Armentières is not sitting down in its ruin quite helplessly. Besides German prisoners at their forced labor—poor wretches—the men folk who have come back are clearing away rubbish heaps and getting down to foundations and making ready for a new town to rise. They have as their leader a man of energy, spirit, and big ideas. It is M. Chas, their Mayor, who has put up a number of wooden huts in the Grande Place opposite the remnant of his old Town Hall, and there, as I learned today from his assistant, he is hard at work on the present and future and not thinking too much of the past.

For the present, with the help of the American Red Cross, which has done good work, he is organizing the food supply and health conditions, none too good, of the 8,000 citizens who have come back. He is getting the water supply in order again. He has opened schools amid the ruins in wooden huts for 730 children, who are being taught, to their real joy, by their old instructors, after the first touching reunion.

Out of the fifty-seven cloth factories which helped to make the wealth of Armentières, one is working again, and every soul in town is proud of that and listens to the whirr of its machinery as a magic melody, out of which will come the music of a new life. The famous Brassières d'Armentières, which supplied the best beer in France, are all destroyed, and nothing can be done in that way yet, but the future has its promise.

Mayor's Dream of the Future.

From what I hear of M. Chas from those who serve him, he is a man who thinks in a big way and is more than a phrasemaker. He is a "realist" facing facts, but his vision of the new city of Armentières, for which all the plans have been made, holds more of beauty than was in the town which has gone—a town where many people lived in filthy little cottages, surrounded by squalor which debased them. He is planning a fair city, with good houses for workers, and pleasure gardens to which they may go after their toil.

The financial side of the vision is one of hard fact not to be ignored in a poet's dream. To wait until the French Government can apportion a share to each city and village in the devastated regions of the indemnity from Germany is to wait, it seems, until the people are sick with despair. They are already feverish because so little is done. Another way is suggested in the case of Armentières.

An American company has offered to advance a large amount of money as a loan out of which the new city may be built. A billion and a half francs is the sum proposed, but that is an exaggerated figure, the interest of which would cripple the resources of the population of 37,000, although it would be guaranteed by the great manufacturers.

But in the idea of some such loan there may be the means of quick recovery, and somehow, by one means or another, the Mayor of Armentières and the Elders of the city are determined that their vision shall rise in reality out of the dust. That is their dream, and the people have faith and courage in facing the future from the holes in the houses which are now their windows.

As they dig, the workmen still find pockets of mustard gas, from which they retreat gasping, and as they clear away the bricks they find unexploded shells which burst at the touch of a pick, and in cellars of ruins which have been choked up they find bodies of fellow-citizens whose houses were their tombs. The tragedy of the war is told by the stones about them.

The writing on the walls is clear to read, but by work and faith the future holds fair promise, when all the filth of war shall have been covered up and beauty will come to flower in this poor, stricken town of France.

Boys Without Money Arrested After Trip to Albany and Back.

A tired looking chauffeur, who said he was Edward J. Tobin of 103 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, pulled his taxicab up to the curb at Broadway and 169th Street late yesterday afternoon, hailed a passing policeman and told him that he had two young men in his cab who were not able to pay their fare. He wanted them arrested. The policeman opened the door, looked in, and said to the chauffeur: "How much do they owe you?"

"One hundred and fifty dollars," replied Tobin, who added that they had traveled to Albany and return. The party went to the West 177th Street Station. There the prisoners, who were charged with disorderly conduct, said they were George Woodward of 549 Seventy-eighth Street, Brooklyn, and Henry McNaughton of 154 West Ninetieth Street. Both were extremely young.

Tobin said his fares engaged him Thursday night outside the Atlantic Avenue station of the subway and said they wanted to go at once to Albany on important business. The trip took six hours. They stopped at a hotel all night and yesterday morning the boys wanted him to drive to Troy. He refused because he could not get any money from the boys, and they started back to New York.

On the way down he learned they had no money and had them arrested by the first policeman he saw. The boys would say little except that they had gone to Albany to look for work.

WEST INDIES TO GET MAIL BY AIRPLANE

Second Assistant Postmaster General Sails for Havana to Complete Arrangements.

URGES FIXED AIR POLICY

Post Office Department Wishes to Co-ordinate Aerial Activities with Those of Other Services.

The inauguration of aerial mail service between the United States and the West Indies in the near future was promised by Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, who sailed yesterday for Havana to make the preliminary arrangements. In an interview, he outlined some of the plans of the Postmaster General for extending the aerial mail service in this country. Mr. Praeger urged greater co-ordination of aeronautics in the United States, and also offered a solution of the problem, centring on the adoption of a fixed national policy, which he had evolved.

"The Post Office Department, which has successfully established the aerial mail, does not feel it just to be excluded from the unified service which may be developed by the Congressional committees now considering the whole subject of aviation," Mr. Praeger said. "Two bills for a Department of Aeronautics are now before Congress. I am opposed to both of them, because they do not recognize what the Post Office Department has accomplished. We desire to co-ordinate our activities with those of military, naval, and civil services, but we do not feel that the interests of the Post Office Department should be subordinated to military or naval interests any more than those two branches would feel that they should be subordinated to us.

"The aerial mail is a new development for which the Post Master General is rightly responsible. It has been my privilege, as his Second Assistant, to immediately direct the aerial mail. I believe it is possible under a co-ordinated system to divide our affairs into two main branches, one of which will be personnel and the other the air mail contractors. It is absolutely necessary for the Post Office Department to operatet the aerial mail. There are few landing fields except those which we have established, and there are no laws regulating aerial traffic. After we multiply our fields and lay down flying rules, then it may be necessary to call in flying mail contractors who would operate practically the same as the star routes are now run.

"But these must be under the control of the Post Office Department. The immediate executive of the aerial mail would find it practicable to co-operate in the development of special equipment with both the aircraft industry and with the Director of Military Aeronautics, through his special equipment department. We would also co-operate with civil aeronautics in so far as it had anything to do with the carrying of mail, as, for instance, the establishment of landing fields and the laying out of routes. Our personnel branch would likewise work with the personnel and operation branches of the Department of Aeronautics, and especially with the civilian activities. A similar plan could well be followed by the branch under which mail contractors, if such are necessary, will operate."

AIR LINER LANDS 14 IN WASHINGTON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The Lawson air liner C-2 landed at Bolling Field at 12:56 this afternoon, carrying fourteen passengers, who declared they had ridden "easier than in a Pullman car." The ship left Mineola at 8:40 this morning and had an easy voyage over Philadelphia and Baltimore until she reached the upper end of Chesapeake Bay, when heavy weather and a head wind caused delay.

Alfred W. Lawson, designer and owner of the ship, brought with him copies of THE NEW YORK TIMES, which were received at Bolling Field and delivered to Cabinet Secretaries Baker, Glass, Redfield, and Lane, to Vice President Marshall, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Speaker Gillett, General Pershing, and the Washington correspondent of THE TIMES.

Senator Kirby of Arkansas met the C-2 at Bolling Field and through him Mr. Lawson invited all Senators to make a flight. The designer said tonight that he would take up twenty Senators at a time, beginning tomorrow. He has also extended invitations to General Pershing, Secretary Baker, General March, General Mitchell of the Air Service, other Generals, and the Admirals now in Washington.

The C-2 will remain in Washington two or three days and will then start for San Francisco, making stops at Dayton, St. Louis, Omaha, Salt Lake City, and Reno.

"I believe I have lifted the airplane out of the class of a liability," said Mr. Lawson today. "This is the first time it has been developed as something useful instead of being employed either as a toy or a fighting machine. I have got a Pullman instead of a hand-car. I believe that I can develop a transportation system that will save millions of dollars' worth of time to the American traveling public."

The party on board today had luncheon and walked up and down the "lounging room" of the car, just as if they were on shipboard. "And we missed a dusty road," said Miss Felicity Buranelli.

The crew and passengers included Mr. Lawson, Charles Cox, pilot; Vincent Buranelli, engineer; Miss Buranelli, Andrew M. Surini and Carl Schory, mechanics; Frederick A. Steele, Evan J. David, Tracy H. Lewis, and Miss Katherine Brody, newspaper correspondents; Mrs. Steele, Frank Shober, Richard Wightman, Vice President of the Aeronautical Touring Association, and Mrs. Wightman.

International Zionist Convention Engages Patrick Geddes for Work.

LONDON, Sept. 1, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—The planning of New Jerusalem and its proposed university has been intrusted by the International Zionist Commission to Patrick Geddes, Professor of Botany at St. Andrew's University, Scotland.

Mr. Geddes, who is considered one of the greatest living authorities in civics and social survey, will work in co-operation with Dr. Weizmann, head of the British Zionist Commission. While in Palestine he will organize a department of sociology and civics for Bombay University, and in the cold season will carry out the Indian town planning work at which he was previously employed.

RY GOODS DEALERS PPOSE PRICE FIXING

National Retail Association Speaks for Free Market Based on Supply and Demand.

PROFITEERING IS DENIED

Keen Competition Declared to be Ample Safeguard Against Unduly High Prices.

Through its Executive Secretary, Lew Hahn, the National Retail Dry Goods Association, 200 Fifth Avenue, yesterday issued a statement declaring that the association was unalterably opposed to legislation designed at maintaining a fixed price for any commodities dealt in by its members. The statement asserted that the law of supply and demand and the American custom of free markets without combinations were all that was necessary to maintain a fixed price. The statement in part follows:

"By a vote of 317 to 60 the members of the National Retail Dry Goods Association have again committed the association to a policy of active opposition to price-maintenance legislation. Coming at this juncture when governmental agencies and large bodies of consumers are endeavoring to bring reductions in the cost of necessaries, this overwhelming vote of the retail dry goods merchants to oppose the fixing of minimum prices on any article of merchandise is symptomatic of the desire on the part of all wide-awake, progressive merchants to keep their trade highly competitive and in this way to serve the public honestly, giving the consumer advantage of such efficiency and economy as the individual stores may be able to effect.

"The advocates of price maintenance desire to set up a plan under which they shall have the power to name a minimum price below which retailers will not be permitted to sell their merchandise, while the Government's concern has been to establish temporarily a maximum price below which any dealer may sell his merchandise if circumstances permit him to do so. The whole idea of such artificial restrictions, however, even when adopted by the Government only temporarily and in a period of unusual stress, is obnoxious to the American business man, and is contrary to the soundest economic practice.

"Under our present system, which permits the fullest play of competition in the distribution of merchandise, prices will always find their lowest level commensurate with the cost of distribution and a fair fee for the distributor's service. If it needed anything to confirm the stand of the National Retail Dry Goods Association against the passage of laws whose purpose is to abolish the freedom of the market the present movement on the part of the Government for lower prices would thoroughly establish the fact that only by preserving freedom of the market, the present movetected."

The master butchers of the city have agreed to show their wholesale bills upon request.

Urges Wholesalers Not to Increase Prices Pending Inquiry.

Oscar S. Straus, former Public Service Commissioner, who has been appointed to sit as the special representative of the United States Attorney General at all meetings of the Fair Price Committee's sub-committee of wholesale meat dealers, was present at the meeting the committee held yesterday afternoon in the offices of the Federal Food Administrator, Arthur Williams, in the Consolidated Gas Company's building at Fifteenth Street and Irving Place, to consider raising the price of meat. It was the first meeting Mr. Straus had attended.

"It will take me away from other matters of importance," said Mr. Straus, "but I am glad to be here if I can render a public service. It is, however, a very ungrateful duty, for the simple reason that we are groping to do the right thing between the dealer and the public, and that means that at the start there is going to be difference in viewpoints.

"I ask you to make a sacrifice of your personal interest, if needs be, for patriotic motives. The old saying is that bread is the staff of life. I might say that meat is the two legs on which life rests. There ought not to be—there must not be—any increase in the price of these 'two legs' pending the investigation we are making. I ask you, therefore, that no increases be made under the circumstances. Otherwise I shall be compelled to advise the public that prices advanced without my having an opportunity to investigate the causes."

W. H. Noyes, Vice President of Swift & Co., Chairman of the committee, in reply to Mr. Straus, declared that the members of the committee would stand behind him. He added that Swift & Co. would not increase prices until there had been a full opportunity to examine its books. Leo Joseph, Vice President of the New York Dressed Beef Company, subsidiary of Armour & Co., and Irving Blumenthal, Treasurer of the United Dressed Beef Company, a subsidiary of Swift & Co., also promised to allow Mr. Straus to examine their books before raising prices. It was stipulated, however, that a certified public accountant make the examination.

Other dealers said they could not agree to maintain present prices, although they promised to co-operate with the Fair Price Committee and Mr. Straus in every way possible.

At the meeting were F. J. Bisbee, President of Joseph Sterns & Sons, subsidiary of Morris & Co.; A. F. Glascow, representing the Indianapolis Abattoir Company; H. C. Mills and A. H. Van Pelt, representing Armour & Co.; I. Stiffel, representing Wilson & Co.; Charles J. Higgins, representing Morris & Co., and George J. Edwards, representing Swift & Co.

Mr. Williams announced last night that he had been informed by Louis Marshall, Chairman of a sub-committee of the Fair Price Committee appointed to investigate labor and material costs relative to the baking of bread by the Jewish master bakers of Greater New York, that after a careful and painstaking investigtion the committee had decided there was no justification for a price increase at this time, and that the price of 9 cents a pound maximum must remain in force.

CALLS MEAT A CURSE.

Doctor Predicts Disease Scourge as Result of National Diet.

Poor people in this country are under weight, the people of moderate means cannot pay their butchers' bills and the entire nation is in danger of a scourge of beri-beri, pellagra, or other plague because of the large amount of meat consumed, was the consensus of opinion of the speakers at the morning meeting of the international conference of women doctors at the National Young Women's Christian Association yesterday. Dr. Graham Lusk, Professor of Physiology at Columbia, and Dr. E. V. MacCullum, Professor of Chemical Hygiene at Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, were the speakers. "Meat is the curse of the American nation today," said Dr. Lusk, and the cause of the high cost of living. The calories in meat only represent 42 per cent, it is expensive, and a family eliminating meat largely could save three-fourths of the cost of its food."

Dr. MacCullum said the poor especially felt that they must have meat and that this diet kept them continually under weight. He told of experiments upon animals fed on meat who grew prematurely old and died, while others fed daily on green foods and fresh vegetables thrived. It was Dr. MacCullum who predicted a visitation of plagues if less meat and more green food were not eaten. The next session of the conference will be on Monday, Saturday and Sunday being devoted to sight-seeing and other recreations by the doctors.

M'ILVAINE OPPOSES BAKER ARMY BILL

CONDEMNS TRAINING PLAN

Holds "Universal" Scheme for Making Soldiers Valueless in Period Proposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Major Tompkins McIlvaine, Chairman of the Military Training Camps Association of the United States, which is the national organization of the reserve and other officers who received their preliminary instruction at Plattsburg and other civilian training camps, was a witness today before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs. In the course of his examination Major McIlvaine produced a copy of a letter which he recently wrote to Secretary Baker in response to a letter from the Secretary in which the Major was asked, as head of the Training Camps Association, what he thought of the so-called Baker-March army reorganization bill, which is now before the Military Committees of the two houses.

Major McIlvaine begins his reply to Secretary Baker by pointing out that from his acquaintance with Regular Army officers he is convinced that the bill "does not represent the best thought of the army, and that the description of the bill as the General Staff bill is therefore erroneous." He adds that in his opinion the bill, in its main features, is "thoroughly unsound and would therefore perpetuate our worst mistakes." Major McIlvaine then adds that, while the bill provides for a standing army of 576,000 men and for three months' training for the youth of the country, it makes no attempt to organize these young men into a citizen army. He says that the period should be six and not three months.

"From the military standpoint the universal training provisions are valueless, because (1) the period of training is too short, as already stated; (2) because the young men trained are not organized territorially, according to the places of residence, into a reserve; (3) because no adequate provision is made for the training of citizens as officers, non-commissioned officers and enlisted specialists to act as the leaders of the citizen army, and (4) because no citizens, not even the half-trained young men, can be summoned to the colors or organized into units until after a 'formal declaration of war,' and even then we shall have to wait until, through the slow machinery of the Draft Law, they can be registered, examined, selected, called to the colors, given additional training and knit into some organization.

"On the whole, the bill is really as bad as it could be."

"On the other hand, the plan our association advocates, (which is embodied in the National Service act, also now before Congress,) is a citizen army system, based on the American and democratic principle of equality of obligation as opportunity for all. This system has been tried out in democratic countries, notably Switzerland and Australia, and has proven a success. It is suited to our own institutions, and traditions.

$3,800,000 CARGO GOES DOWN

Two Explosions Sink an American Steamer—Recently Hit Mine.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The steamer West Arvada, which on Sept. 16 struck a mine off Terschelling, on the Dutch coast, foundered today after two explosions in the hold of the vessel. It is considered probable that a large part of the valuable cargo may be salvaged, but that the vessel will be a total loss.

The West Arvada was a United States Shipping Board steamship, sailing from Galveston Aug. 20, with a cargo of 21,920 bales of cotton, valued at more than $3,800,000. She was destined for Hamburg.

WIFE SUES O. A. BARNARD.

Separation Action Marked Off When Attorneys Fail to Appear.

Papers filed in the Supreme Court yesterday show that Mrs. Lydia M. Barnard, wife of Orin A. Barnard, of 820 Fifth Avenue, head of the dry-goods commission house of O. A. Barnard & Co., of 50 East Forty-second Street, has brought an action against her husband for a separation after having filed a suit in 1917 for a divorce and withdrawing the action upon becoming reconciled.

Mrs. Barnard alleges that her husband took her on a trip to the White Mountains after she withdrew the divorce suit, but not long afterward he ejected her from their home at 820 Fifth Avenue. She went to Lowell, Mass., and has lived there since. She says her husband gave her $250 a month to May 3d last, but she has had nothing since and brought the separation suit to compel him to support her.

The plaintiff stated that her husband sold his stock in J. H. Lane & Co., for $245,000 in 1917 and has had an income of $100,000 a year since. They paid $18,000 rent for their city home, she said, and the household expenditures were $10,000 a year.

Mrs. Barnard asked $2,000 a month alimony and $7,500 counsel fees, but when the application came before Supreme Court Justice Lehman yesterday the attorneys did not appear and the case was marked off.

COME TO CHICAGO TO PUBLISH AND PRINT

Chicago extends an earnest invitation to the publishers and printers of New York to locate here. Chicago is the logical spot for your business. It is a geographical, commercial, and distributing center of the country. The best printing of the country is done here now. Labor here believes in reasonable discussion instead of radical force. Banking facilities are admirable. Postal conveniences are unusual. The Illinois Manufacturers' Association extends this invitation to the publishers of New York, and will respond promptly and helpfully to any inquiries by mail, wire, or in person.

Chicago Leads in Printing

The finest color work in America is done in Chicago. It is the printing center of the country today. For every printing office, large or small, is busy, and every one of them has facilities for immediately expanding the volume of its work. Your printing can be handled here now, if you are a publisher; you can profitably establish yourself here, if you are a printer.

Labor Situation is Excellent

Chicago printing establishments are manned by the highest type of expert men. Labor here rejects the radical element. Labor disputes when they occur are subject for discussion and not for radical aggression. This is especially true in the printing trades---a point of vital interest to the publishers.

Chicago the Center for Supplies

Chicago is a natural center for raw materials in supplies required for both printing and publishing. Freight rates to Chicago by both rail and water are moderate. Docking, warehouse and delivery facilities are splendid. The service of transportation lines in this respect to manufacturers in the Chicago district is unrivaled.

Chicago is the Great Central Market

It is the crossroads between the ore producing North, and the cotton growing South, the commercial East, and the agricultural West. It is America's principal piano market, the world's greatest mail order center, the world's hugest meat packing point, the leading stove and furniture market---no other place makes as much machinery, sells as much grain or handles as much lumber.

A Great Advertising Center

It will be a business economy for every publisher to locate in Chicago. Every publisher knows the tremendous volume of advertising within even a night's ride of Chicago. The rapid growth of the well-equipped advertising agencies of Chicago is evidence of the fact that we are the heart of the most fertile advertising field possible to find. And Chicago is furthermore the ideal center for securing advertising from all parts of the country.

An Economy in Distribution

The publisher who locates in Chicago at once effects an economy in his postal bills. He effects a great saving in the zone postal rates. More than that, he secures a prompter, quicker distribution of his publication, for his publishing office and mailing plant is located at the strategic center for all purposes.

Great Banking Facilities

The publisher or printer who makes Chicago his location will find banking facilities equal to every requirement. The banking institutions of Chicago are famous for their policy and resources. Their officials are keenly alive to the needs of business and are unusually well informed as to business conditions throughout this section as well as the world.

A Good Place to Live

Chicago is one of the finest spots in the world for a home. On the shores of Lake Michigan, with miles and miles of bathing beaches, with hundreds of city and country clubs, with all the delightful advantages of both city and suburban life, and a network of boulevards, connecting all parts of the city and surrounding country, Chicago answers all demands of those who would live pleasantly and well.

This invitation is extended to every publisher and printer in New York. We will be glad to give you all desired information. We will be glad to have you come to Chicago and let us put you in touch with the situation as it will interest you.

THE REPUBLICAN LEADER.

Senator Lodge does not seem to be a great leader. The longer he goes on leading the more we are inclined to believe that Blaine and Thomas B. Reed were somewhat more capable than he. He permits Senator Hitchcock, who is no great tactician himself, to manoeuvre him into a false and ridiculous position. He becomes alarmed over the prospect that Mr. Hitchcock will undertake to force a vote on the Johnson amendment to the Treaty, and that if he does there will be no way to prevent it except by filibustering. A Republican Senate filibustering against peace would, of course, be an intolerable spectacle, especially when the only excuse that could be given would be that the Senators necessary to a roll call were out on the stump "trailing Wilson."

So it becomes necessary to call the far-wandering Senators home, at least long enough to vote on the Johnson amendment. In the old days a word of command from such a leader as Blaine or Reed would have been enough. Leader Lodge does his best; he gets Borah back in Washington. But how to get Johnson? Apparently Leader Lodge has small control over Follower Johnson, even in a case where Mr. Johnson's own amendment is concerned. So Mr. Borah, who seemingly has more influence with Mr. Johnson, telegraphs him an account of the situation, and Mr. Johnson decides to return. That accomplished, Mr. Lodge telegraphs Mr. Johnson that his return is not really necessary after all.

There are two kinds of leaders in Washington. One is a real leader and the other is a "whip." The whip makes no pretensions as a leader. It is his task to see that everybody is there when emergencies require it. The leader plans policies. The place of whip is distinctly inferior to that of leader. It is a hard thing to say of a Cabot, a scholar in politics, a man of heaven knows how many years of experience in the high politics and the low, but the conclusion is irresistibly borne in upon us that so far from being a leader, Henry Cabot Lodge is not even a competent whip.

Meanwhile, how astonished Gilbert M. Hitchcock must be! Doubtless, like most of the rest of the Senate, he has been more or less under the spell of Mr. Lodge's reputation and that Brahmin aura—if we may confound for the moment two apparently irreconcilable ideas—which surrounds him. When he began his little essay in parliamentary tactics, did he really expect to throw the brooding Buddha of Nahant into a panic and make manifest so glaringly the fatal lack of leadership in the Republican Party? The result must have surprised and delighted him. Mr. Hitchcock is a statesman of respectable attainments, but no genius; yet in the first round he has floored his adversary in the best manner of David B. Hill.

We would not detract from Mr. Hitchcock's achievement; but it is doubtful if he could have done it if the Republican Party had had a real leader. Elihu Root has retired and Theodore Roosevelt is dead.

HATRED AND FELLOWSHIP.

In England as well as here at home some persons who are careful and troubled about many things fear for the souls of those who, they say, show by their spoken and written words that they hate the German people as intensely as they hated the German Government while the war was in progress. A writer in The New Statesman of London has expressed this fear, though his dread is happily tempered by the saving grace of humor; and in this country a gracious and kindly clergyman, who has done good work in the diplomatic service of his Government, has been accused of "preaching bitterness and hate."

The matter is not so important as it seems to those men and women who see in the expression of honest indignation over frightful wrongs a sign that the era of peace on earth and good-will to men is further off than it was thought to be before the war. It will adjust itself, but adjustment will not be hastened by attacks upon those who have not shrunk from placing responsibility where it belongs.

In so far as resentments exist, the Germans are to blame, and they can be removed only by those who created them. It is not enough to cease to do evil. The wrongdoer must learn to do well. This is just and sensible. In the long run the fellowship of the world is open to all who earn it and are capable of enjoying it. Hatred cannot block their way, because it will disappear before their own good-will.

GENERAL PERSHING BEFORE CONGRESS.

General Pershing receiving the thanks of Congress was a manly and attractive figure. He seemed to be unconscious of the eminence he had won as a soldier, and his manner was so simple that he must have disarmed critics who affected to see in him an exemplar of militarism. His work in the field done, General Pershing was an average American in point of view, a man of the people, as much of a democrat as Champ Clark himself, who claimed the General as a sample of the "sort of men Missouri "grows when in her most prodigal "of moods." That genial good nature and sense of humor that have been denied by General Pershing, because he realized his task in France and performed it without fear or favor, came to the surface in a trying situation for a modest man, the cynosure of all eyes in a joint session of Congress, the galleries crowded with his admirers. The remarks he made on the historic occasion became the man. While they had a certain eloquence because of their sincerity, they were most generous in giving credit to Americans of all classes and conditions who had played their part in the war, at home as well as "over there." In a way that was tactful and always in the best of taste, he forgot no one. In what he said of the army he had led there was a touching spirit of affection and loyalty:

> Never have men faced a more difficult task, nor borne greater hardship, and never have troops shown a finer spirit of willingness or more resolute purpose * * * Whether billeted in French, Belgian, or Italian villages, or in the camps of England, our men have left behind them a standard of frankness, of integrity, of gentleness, and of helpfulness which will give the other nations of the world a firmer belief in the sincerity of our motives.

General Pershing's tribute to "our "war-worn allies, whose tenacity, "after three years of conflict, made "possible the effectiveness of our ef-"fort," and his testimony to the spirit of friendship engendered by comradeship in arms, was as handsome an expression of appreciation and gratitude as any man has uttered. It was General Pershing's estimate of the fighting qualities of the French, the British, the Belgians, and the Italians, and of their great service to the cause of liberty. Vainglory and boastfulness are evidently foreign to this stalwart American soldier. Tha he looked beyond the war with a clear vision appeared in his judgment that the conflict had "welded together "our people and given them a deeper "sense of nationality." It was an ordeal greater than battle for General Pershing to stand before Congress, hear his praises sounded, and express his thanks, but it was another victory for him.

THE BULGARIAN TREATY.

Despite the loss of Thrace, Bulgaria has come out well enough from the war. She is allowed to have an outlet to the Aegean, though what she has done to deserve it no man can say. President Wilson was doubtless right when he insisted on this provision, that there might be no seed sown for future wars; although Bulgaria's record is not rich in promises of peace, no matter what she gets or does not get. Mr. Wilson knew this, of course, but wanted to make sure that if Bulgaria does try to upset the peace of the Balkans again she will be plainly in the wrong. So she will; but again her record does not give much room for the belief that she cares anything for the opinion of the world, or that the mere matter of being obviously in the wrong would ever weigh heavily with her.

Otherwise, the treaty which Bulgaria must sign is pretty much like the treaties with Germany and Austria. The principle that any nation which is a party to an unprovoked war must pay damages for it is observed in all three cases, though the damages are limited to payment for actual destruction of life and property, and are therefore not indemnities. An indemnity would mean the reimbursement of the nations put on their defense by the aggression, and nothing of the kind is or has been demanded. There is no earthly reason why it should not be, except that the disturbers of the world's peace are not able to pay such an indemnity. Otherwise, no doubt, the Peace Conference would have exacted it. Nations unjustly and wantonly attacked, like Belgium, France, and for that matter the United States, should in justice be reimbursed for the expenses forced upon them by the aggression. But Germany, Austria, and Bulgaria cannot pay such an indemnity, and there is an end of it. As for actual damages, Bulgaria's bill comes to $445,000,000, and an allied commission will see to its payment.

On that commission the United States will not be represented, but if it is true that this country will sign the treaty the decision is wise, even though we were never technically at war with Bulgaria. We thereby serve notice on Bulgaria that we shall not tolerate, any more than will the other signatories, any attempt to avoid her obligations. If we were to hold aloof, encouragement might be given to that tricky nation to keep the word of promise to the ear only. There has been a sentimental pro-Bulgarian propaganda in this country for years, to which some men who should know better have lent their names and influence, and America's abstention from the treaty would be enough to give these individuals material to work upon. Why this feeling of tenderness should persist for a faithless nation whose hands are stained with blood is to be explained only on the theory that many well-intentioned persons have for a long time interested themselves in Bulgaria's welfare and upbringing, and have the benefactor's love for the protégé. Sympathetic as they have always been toward Bulgaria, willing to condone every offense she might commit, their sympathies were never broad enough to embrace heroic and devastated Serbia, slaughtered Montenegro, or misused and mutilated Greece.

A DATE FOR THE RECESSION OF SHANTUNG.

It is not hard to see the reasonableness of the Japanese explanations concerning Japan's failure to fix a date for the return of Shantung to China. The Peace Treaty has not yet been ratified by the number of nations required to put it in effect. Even after it is ratified Germany has, if she chooses to take it, a term of three months in which to define the extent of her holdings. China, perhaps, still entertaining a hope that the United States Senate will come to her aid, has failed to indicate any willingness to negotiate with Japan on the subject, although the Japanese have made overtures to her. Naturally, Shantung can be returned to China only by agreement between her and Japan, and China, we are told, holds off from making the agreement or even from consenting to discuss it.

The President of the United States has assured the people, and his assurance is borne out by official statements from Tokio, that Japan has promised to retain only such rights in Shantung as are now possessed by private corporations, which means that she will compete with them in the railroad business. When one looks back on the ruthless extortion of land from China in the past, always on utterly inadequate pretenses, such, for example, as the reparation Germany demanded for the murder of two German missionaries by rioters, Japan's conduct appears more moderate and humane than that of some other nations. She purposes to negotiate with China concerning these concessions, but asserts that she has been unable to get any indication of willingness on China's part to negotiate or confer.

These are the reasons given by Japan for her inability to fix a date, while at the same time she assures the world that the date will be early. Nevertheless, Japan could greatly improve her position in the eyes of the world if she could find a way to fix it and announce it. When she herself ratifies the Peace Treaty it will be in effect as the law of the world, no matter how long the American Senate may choose to debate it. It is reported from Tokio that the Privy Council is to take up the Treaty within a few days, and ratification will not be long delayed. It would be greatly to Japan's interest if, immediately upon ratification, she should announce a date for her retirement from Shantung. Then, if China should still refuse to negotiate, the blame would be upon China, not Japan. Such a course would be in consonance with Japan's true interest, which is to conciliate the opinion of the western world.

SAWING OFF THE LIMB.

The agitators of the many labor unions that are now blocking industry throughout the land in order to enforce their particular demands may well consider the plight of the rioting shipyard workers at Camden and way stations who are in protest against the increased cost of the local trolley service.

The increase resulted from a suggestion of the War Labor Board, which had ordered a considerable advance in the pay of conductors and motormen, and then realized that it could be met only by a corresponding advance of fares. To make this as equitable as possible, the Public Utility Commission introduced the zone system, which very naturally caused friction and delay in its early operation. The shipyard workers registered their protest against this delay and against the increased fares by stoning and smashing up the cars, blocking the tracks with logs and greasing the rails. In many instances gangs rushed past the fare collectors or climbed out of the windows, shouting that in refusing to pay they were "asserting the rights of labor." The authorities countered by discontinuing the service to the shipyards. Thereafter rioters asserted the rights of labor by walking to their jobs or by paying the price of an improvised jitney service. When an ancient cartoon pictured a farmer perched upon the outer end of the limb of a tree which he was sawing off near the trunk, the imminent fate of the farmer was obvious to the meanest intelligence. But how does his attitude differ from that of the Camden shipyard workers?

Our late victory over Germany was won at the price of many hardships, but of these the hardship suffered by organized labor is by far the least. The wages of unionized men have advanced at a pace that has lagged little if at all behind the advance in the cost of living, and in many cases has far outrun it; and now these men under radical leadership are demanding that they be released from the last shadow of war sacrifice. Their multiplying strikes have caused a decrease in national productivity which was estimated, some weeks ago, at $5,000,000 a day. Lately it was estimated that it had risen to $10,000,000 daily. The expense of waging war against Germany was only three or four times greater. There is no water in the sands of the desert and you cannot provide wage funds from the income of closed factories. And the striker is not alone in his siege perilous. If he falls through a general paralysis of industry the whole community falls with him, including those who gave their all to the war and are still giving without murmur or complaint.

In the matter of the New Jersey zone-fare crisis, meantime, the responsible public is proceeding in a responsible manner. Militia reserves are protecting the property of the company—in some cases Federal property. The shipyard service will presently be renewed. On those portions of the line that have been free from rioting, the service is continuing with less and less trouble and delay arising from the new system—partly, to be sure, because the number of passengers is small. The Town Commissioners of Montclair have raised the question whether the State Commissioners have exceeded their authority in introducing the new rates without consulting the municipalities affected, and the situation as a whole has been taken up by candidates for nomination in the approaching fight for the Governorship. These are the legitimate methods of popular government and will doubtless throw a light upon a much vexed subject which will be as helpful as the rioting of the shipyard workers was suicidal and absurd.

A MIDDLE CLASS UNION?

In the attempt to organize capital upon national lines there is nothing particularly new. It began shortly after the civil war and proved to be one of the chief incentives to the national organization of labor. What distinguishes the new movement now under way in Illinois is the frank statement that its inspiration comes from the success of the American Federation of Labor, and that it will maintain a staff at Washington, the business of which will be to make manifest the claims of capital, and of commercial enterprise in general, upon the nation's legislators. The farmers have profited similarly by the example of labor, and their national body has already a handsome house and home at the capital. Only one element is lacking to complete the organization of the nation along class or factional lines for the purpose of exacting legislation.

In England a middle class union has long been projected, but as yet there are no notable results. Here the project has been suggested, more or less obscurely, for a dozen years—with results that are nil. Even the emphasis which the war has thrown upon the plight of the middle class has not resulted in action, nor as yet in a definite plan. What is the reason for this forbearance? One factor is sheer lethargy, but there are others which are far less discreditable. It is in the middle class that the ancient American tradition is strongest, the true spirit of our institutions most pure. To the ingrained American mind there is something dubious, and indeed dangerous, in the practice of government by lobby. An instinct persists that the place for political action is the polls.

That the brain worker has a grievance, and a deep one, is obvious. It is also obvious that political results are tending more and more to proceed from organized factions or classes. The logic of the situation might seem to indicate, in the not distant future, an effective middle class union. It might not be altogether a calamity. As matters stand, a tendency is developing toward the unionization of the middle class on the model of the American Federation of Labor. Several professions are already affiliated, notably teachers, musicians, and actors. The feeling against the subjection of artists and professional folk to the dictates of labor organizations is instinctively strong. If the issue is between a complete capitulation to the labor federation and an independent organization of its own, there can be no doubt about the choice of the champions of the middle class.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

May Exceed Rohlfs's Aviation Record.

That the altitude record of 34,610 feet, made by Roland Rohlfs on Thursday in a flight from Roosevelt Field, will stand for some time unsurpassed and unequaled is probable. That it will remain the ultimate attainment in this form of endeavor would be contended only by those who do not realize how far from full development is still the art of building and operating airplanes, and what a temptation to men of the temperament that makes aviators is the existence of such a record as this.

Obviously, to beat that record requires only a better engine and a better plane, and as both are sure to come in time, the setting of new marks—of many of them, indeed—is next to inevitable. Unlike the reaching of the North Pole, however, flight for height offers to the ambitious an infinite number of successes—it cannot be achieved once for all, for while the earth's atmosphere, in theory, has its limit, beyond which is nothing but ether at absolute zero, no machines of the sort now used can ever reach that limit, and from now onward the approaches to it will be by steps growing ever shorter and shorter in a diminishing series. Just conceivable is it that some day an aviator, properly guarded from cold and asphyxiation, will rise fast enough to throw himself by acquired impetus out of the atmosphere, and fall back into it when he loses momentum. For that matter, it is also conceivable that one could go fast and far enough to reach a region where the attraction of some other celestial body was stronger than that of the earth, but the aviator who did that would never get back, and the conditions for ultimate landing are such as to require more courage than even aviators possess.

Nothing Gained by Altitude.

While it is more than probable that Rohlfs's altitude will be passed by himself or others, it is already something more than fairly evident that by doing so nothing of any except what may be called sporting value will be achieved. Already it has been shown that the future navigation of the air by means of planes equipped with motors will all be done at heights far less than he attained this week.

That Rohlfs once encountered a slight rise of temperature as he increased a great elevation to a greater proves that by chance he encountered a warm current at an unusual height; it did not even hint the existence far aloft of a permanently warm or warmer stratum. On the contrary, there is sufficient reason for believing that atmospheric conditions grow steadily worse and worse for mechanical flight after the aviator has risen above the confused currents produced by terrestrial irregularities of contour and radiating efficiency.

In practice, that will be the "ceiling" of the flying age. There has been some talk of seeking the rarefied air of great heights in order to increase speed by diminishing resistance to forward motion. For a missile, utilizing a single original impulse, that would be advantageous, but for an airplane a gain of that sort would be exactly balanced by the decreased pulling power of the propellers. And the aviator's engine needs oxygen as much as he does himself, though not as quickly, and to supply its demands as his are supplied, while possible, would involve complications not to be considered except from the sporting standpoint.

Again the birds are the best guides; they never fly high except for reasons that have nothing to do with what might be called—if one were a German philosopher—absolute altitude, or altitude-in-itself.

Grace and Force in Archbishop's Speeches.

Since Cardinal Mercier has been in this city there has been revealed to a considerable number of its citizens what a comparatively small number knew before—that in Archbishop Hayes it possesses, besides a great prelate, a man of notable ability as a public speaker. The many speeches to diversified audiences which it has been the Archbishop's duty or privilege—presumably it was as much the one as the other—to deliver at dinners and ceremonies of welcome since the Cardinal came have been marked to a very great degree by eloquence, simplicity, and lucidity. Presumably prepared with some care, these brief orations have shown no signs of study, and they have had the grace and force that come only to speakers who are not slaves to manuscript or notes.

In all that the Archbishop has said, too, there has been full recognition of the fact that Cardinal Mercier has earned the admiration and the affection not of one element of the American population but of all of it. His own Church welcomes the Cardinal no more sincerely, with no more heartfelt gratitude and appreciation, than do all those in the other churches and in no church who feel moved to acclaim a brave defender of justice and right against wrong and ruthless oppression.

This peculiarity of the Cardinal's welcome in America Archbishop Hayes has never forgotten. Therein is he like the Cardinal himself.

Production the Only Remedy.

It is not alone in Germany that signs are appearing of a new appreciation by "labor" that the one remedy for the ills due to the high cost of living is to be found not in higher wages, but in more work, more thrift, and more production. This truth has emphatic expression in a letter recently sent by J. T. Brownlie, Chairman of the Executive Council of the Amalgamated Society of British Engineers, to the Secretary of the Parliamentary Committee of the British Trades Union Congress.

In this letter Mr. Brownlie—who is, by the way, a labor leader with a long record of often fierce fighting in defense of union demands—quotes as highly important a statement made not long ago by Mr. Hoover: "There is no use of tears over rising prices; they are to a great degree a visualization of insufficient production." And Mr. Brownlie himself writes: "The mere raising of nominal wages, without an increased production in the necessaries of life, is no solution of the difficulty."

He writes, too, that, as labor unions are now more powerful than ever before in all their history, so have their responsibilities been increased in the same proportion, and he adds: "However much we may reject the criticism of those who are not trade unionists, we cannot evade our responsibilities to the community." And the first responsibility, he insists, is to increase production.

THE TREATY IN THE SENATE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Compromise always brings agreement, indeed, but never full satisfaction to any party. Nevertheless, it is often unavoidable if the tangled and troublesome affairs of men and nations are to be peacefully composed.

The Paris League of Nations covenant-treaty was the resultant of many diverse views and demands on the part of the representatives of the participating powers, which had to be in some way accommodated to each other so as to secure indispensable unity of action. Suggest what alterations we may, there still would be diversities of opinion in the conference to be harmonized. Would-be modifiers seem to imagine that their new proposals would be immediately accepted by all concerned. But, on the contrary, they would find fresh attitudes to be reconciled. It is far from certain that their amendments would be adopted without change, or even adopted at all; and should they be indorsed in whole or in part there would be scarcely any less general dissatisfaction with the document entire than there was before. The changes made would please some, but would displease others. So we should be no nearer universal approval than now.

The most ordinary common sense teaches that no group of men could ever produce a world pact which nobody would object to and everybody acclaim. Even our own national Constitution at first was so bitterly assailed by hosts of critics that its rejection, with all the dire consequences, was very possible; and though it was at last voted into effect, it was afterward frequently amended, and it is today held, in not a few quarters, to need further emendation. And this it will have from time to time if future conditions require it. But to this day it has proved a workable and most beneficent code. Such, it may safely be predicted, will be the League of Nations covenant, with all its present actual and supposed defects. These—as the instrument itself provides—can gradually be remedied as they disclose themselves in practice. Thus we shall eventually have a very excellent and effective, if not perfect, arrangement for assuring the peace of the world.

Why do the opposition Senators rant so viciously over the alleged shortcomings and ignore utterly the benefits promised under the covenant? One would gather from their carpings that there is no good in it, whereas it is the best thing of the kind that could have been evolved at this juncture—considering all the difficulties and the highly complicated circumstances. Republican censors seek to convey the impression that if President Wilson had asked their party's statesmen to co-operate with him in the peace deliberations a more satisfactory result would have been attained. But this is purely conjecture. It is more than likely that in such case criticism would have been quite as fierce, intolerant, and malignant. This is the usual manifestation of human nature when confronted with anything new and progressive.

Fortunately, in spite of intemperate opposition and the tremendous hullabaloo raised against it, the covenant-treaty is winning ground on its merits, and its ratification finally seems to be predestined. It is a great epoch-making indenture calculated to revolutionize for the better the procedures of mankind. If it shall not prevent all wars nor right all injustices at once, it initiates a powerful movement in that direction; and it provides the only hope humanity at present has of lasting peace and righteous dealing in international affairs.

Misinformation About the Treaty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Certain anti-League newspapers in this section of the country, under great headlines but slender text, so completely distorted Senator McCumber's report on the Peace Treaty as to convey to their readers the "information" that, by this report, whose text they surreptitiously suppress, all differences between the anti-League majority and their recalcitrant brother from Dakota are shown to have been completely reconciled.

The appalling ignorance of a large part of the anti-leaguers outside of the metropolitan regions of the country is but to be expected when one takes into consideration the campaign of abject misrepresentation that is thus being waged by the little newspapers throughout the country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If not regarded as impertinent or otherwise improper, the writer would like to offer to Senator Lodge and his following a few suggestions about the League of Nations and their relation thereto.

If they expect to so turn this proposition, before giving it their sanction, that no question can possibly arise in the future which will not require interpretation of it, then they expect to turn out a product of prevision more nearly perfect than ever before emanated from the mind of man.

The Constitution of the United States is generally regarded as a great example of its kind, but are not our legislatures and courts confronted without ceasing to determine the question whether or not an enactment or proposed enactment is constitutional?

The purpose of the League of Nations is too clearly set forth in the instrument itself to require elucidation before trial. Why not try it as we are daily trying the United States Constitution, and have been trying it for some 132 years?

For and Against.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The way it seems to me to line up is this:

Against the League: Lodge, Knox, Borah, Bolsheviki, Socialists, I. W. W.'s, Parlorduds, "The Stationary Party," Pro-Germans, and the fellow with a grudge.

For the League: The normal people.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In 1914, at Chatham, Ontario, Canada, as the boys were enlisting in the Canadian Army, I joined with a young hero, by the name of Arthur Hulme, in the 18th Battalion, C. E. F. He claimed that his home and people were in New York City, which I have every reason to believe is the case. We became great chums and went to France together. He died a hero's death at the battle of St. Eloi, Flanders, in April, 1916. I wish to locate his people, because I hold a gift from him which I know they will greatly prize. Will you kindly give me your aid in this matter and try to locate them in your paper? And I feel it is a duty to his people.

BISHOP BURCH IN CHARGE.

Bishop-elect Charles Sumner Burch of the Episcopal Diocese of New York announced yesterday to a group of 100 clergymen and laymen that he would personally lead the Every Name Campaign for church betterment in this diocese and called upon leaders among the laity and clergy to aid him. The fact that his election has not yet been approved by the House of Bishops, the Bishop-elect said, would not prevent him from assuming the leadership, "in spite of any criticism that might come for what some might term premature utterance."

The Bishop-elect said that he would send out "a ringing pastoral letter," rallying all churchmen to the support of the campaign, the purpose of which is to expand the church's activities, not only in membership and financial support, but also in the spiritual activity of the laity. His declaration was received with applause, which was renewed when Oscar W. Ehrhorn, a member of the Every Name Campaign Committee, moved the acceptance of the offer with the thanks of the General Committee, whose meeting yesterday at 281 Fourth Avenue was the occasion of the Bishop-elect's appearance.

"I regard this Every Name Campaign, with its intimate connection with the nation-wide campaign of the church, as the greatest undertaking in the history of the church," Bishop Burch said. "It is a spiritual call to the membership of the church of unlimited possibilities. I have here a report which stands as an indictment of this diocese in its campaign work. It tells us that the organization is not completed in many parishes—that there is no diocesan-wide comprehension of this campaign.

"We have no right to say that New York can not compass this great objective. We have had evidence all over New York—in many parishes—of what can be done when the spiritual sense is aroused. New York has always been a leader in such movements. It will not fail this time.

"During the last four months there has been no leadership in the diocese, owing to the irreparable loss we suffered in the death of Bishop Greer. But the situation has now changed. You have honored me and are entitled to look to me for leadership. I had long determined before my election to the Bishopric to give all that was in me to the successful prosecution of this Every Name Campaign. If it meets with your wishes, I will serve at once now, and summon clergy and laity alike to give their utmost cooperation in prosecuting this campaign to a successful conclusion."

Lewis B. Franklin, former director of the Liberty Loan organization at Washington, who is in charge of the campaign in this state, the Rev. John Brian McCormick, director of the campaign throughout the country, and the Rev. Dr. William H. Milton were the other speakers at yesterday's meeting. William Fellowes Morgan, Chairman of the General Committee, presided.

URGES A TWO-CENT PIECE.

Memorial Association Wants Roosevelt Portrait Engraved on Coin.

The plan of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association to have the Government reissue the two-cent coin, withdrawn from circulation in 1874, but to have the new coin bear on the obverse a bas-relief portrait of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, similar in general effect to the Lincoln penny, was brought to the attention of Secretary of the Treasury Glass, and was referred by him to the office of the Director of the Mint. Acting Director of the Mint M. M. O'Reilly has expressed to the President of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association his interest in the suggestion, but adds that without authority from Congress his department cannot undertake preparation of a new coin.

The Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association in its campaign to have the Government reissue the two-cent coin points out that the adoption of this plan will be a matter not only of public convenience, but a national tribute to our ex-President as well. Every citizen will be asked to write his Senator or Congressman requsting that he support a measure for the coinage of a Roosevelt two-cent piece. A special committee is being formed by the association to push this work, and it is intended to obtain the aid and co-operation of such firms and corporations as are affected by the one or two cent increase.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder if many old New Yorkers do not remember the time when the rate of fare on the elevated lines was 10 cents during the non-rush hours and 5 cents during the rush hours. This plan worked no undue hardship on the public and would seem a reasonable solution of the present situation.

THE NEW COMER.

So, then, I died. . . .
They laid me reverently down beside
A kindred maiden that had long grown dust.
The cool green grasses and the mold and rust
Covered the granite tomb wherein she dwelt.
And as, beside her, all the years I felt,
"Greeting, sweet cousin!" came a whispered voice,
"Have you fair news the sleeper to rejoice?"

Fair news! What knew I that she had not known
Lying through ages 'neath her granite stone?
Was sky more blue to me than she had seen,
Or valley lovelier in its dress of green?
Chirp the small crickets softlier in the grass,
Or sing birds sweeter songs as centuries pass?
Of these things that I loved so wondrously
Surely no newer word could ever be!

I said: "What would you hear, of all the world,
That would delight you most? Of flags unfurled
From sea to sea that freedom might be won
For all the nations underneath the sun?
This, dear kinswoman, was the thing wherefore
You journey to this far New England shore!"

"Nay, nay!" spake wistfully the voice, "I would Hear of new things. The olden deeds were good—
All in their place. But I have wearied grown
Of these old thoughts that I so well have known.
I have so long been thinking here of these—
Tell me new things, sweet cousin, an' you please!"

Then, from the life that I had laid aside,
I conjured back the days or ere I died—
For I had also borne a youthful heart!—
And told her of the world; of books and art,
Of music and the drama, and of plays
That I had seen; of all the city ways—
The noise and bustle, and the traffic strife
That had become too burdensome to bear.
Where patient waited still Eternal Life—

MERCIER TELLS HOW WE CAN AID BELGIUM

LOUVAIN WRECK DESCRIBED

Says Fear of American Press Was All That Kept Germans from Imprisoning Him.

Cardinal Mercier, who was acclaimed by crowds on lower Broadway and on Fifth Avenue yesterday, told of the present plight of Belgium, educationally and socially, in his address at a luncheon given in his honor by General George Wood Wingate at the Bankers' Club.

He said that many Americans whom he had met during his stay in this country had suggested that America would like to give assistance in aiding in the reconstruction of Belgium, and he told of the wreck in which Germany had left Belgian educational institutions, in the restoration of which outside help will be needed.

After giving thanks in eloquent words for the help which the United States had given to his country during and since the war, he continued:

"I have been told that you wish to know whether our nation of the present day has recovered from the blow we got during the war. Well, old people surely are not anxious to resume their work. Many of our workmen are compelled to idleness—not only at the time when the Germans came to our country and took away to Germany 70,000 of our workmen, protesting that they were idle, but at the present moment there are a good many of them who remain necessarily idle, because, although they are of good will, their factories are destroyed. The Germans, before leaving our country, destroyed simultaneously the machines of our factories. These we want. We want also raw materials for working. From that point of view I make an appeal to the men of your great city; but still it is not my department to insist personally on that; it concerns our Government. It is more specially my task, I think, to tell you that we want also moral and social support; moral and social support. Our people were always, before the war, energetic, and those of our friends who have been in our country know how many ruins lie on the ground. Our great University of Louvain, the most ancient of all universities, where I spent twenty years of my life as a professor, not only the buildings—some buildings were destroyed—but the instruments of the laboratories and the instruments of scientific research are lost—are stolen and lost.

Bishops Had to Borrow.

"During the war we were obliged to give living to the professors, one hundred and forty professors, so all the funds we had saved before the war are now given away, and even the Bishops of the great university were obliged to borrow money from societies for the most urgent necessities of life. Personally, for my clergy and for my colleges—and in my dioceses there are twenty-five colleges—each of the professors got during the war four hundred francs—that is, forty dollars a year; and in order to get that sum, the great benefactors of the country being away or being also damaged by the war, I was obliged also to borrow money from societies, financial societies. We have in Belgium now one hundred churches, schools and orphanages and schools of every kind that have been destroyed. I cannot rely much on the people, who have themselves lost a good deal of their money, and, therefore, I am obliged, although it is rather a little humiliating for us, to appeal to others.

"I hope as soon as we have recovered that we shall ask nothing from foreigners in the future, but at this moment just what your President said, what your people said, may be now accomplished, even by ourselves.

"If on the second of August on 1914, we had said, 'We accept the bargains proposed by the German Empire,' we would have spared our commonwealth, we might even have increased our wealth. But our King, our Government, as has been said, willingly and freely sacrificed ourselves.

"What we want now is not arms, but what we want is—we fairly recognize that we have a claim to be established in our former position, in our former normal condition of life. We are more ambitious than this; we are not satisfied to be restored to our old normal condition. We have the ambition to become a strong people, finer and more prosperous than before. I think I know your generosity; I may rely on New York for help in that way. If any of you gentlemen will have the kindness to use your influence to establish a committee which would be a committee for social reconstruction for Belgium, I think our cause would be gained.

"When I was in Baltimore, and yesterday when I was in Albany, they said, 'We would like to help you, but the initiative must come from New York.' I anticipate that you will be the initiators. I thank you all. You are our friends, for all that you did and what you will be able to do for our Belgium."

A large crowd cheered the Cardinal on his arrival and departure from the Equitable Building, where he met a large number of prominent citizens at a reception at the Bankers' Club before the luncheon tendered to him by General Wingate, at which 120 were present.

Pays Tribute to Press.

Later in the afternoon, Cardinal Mercier repeated his tribute to the press of this country at a reception at the New York Public Library held by the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents of America, saying that fear of the press of this country had been the only deterrent that prevented the Germans from imprisoning him. He said that journalists before the war had not been considered remarkable for discretion, and he proceeded to praise the absolute secrecy maintained by the press of this country and in other allied countries regarding troop movements, submarine warfare and other military and naval subjects.

"Such discretion," he said with a smile, "was a great virtue, and, considering that it was practised by journalists, a very great virtue indeed."

A gold pen was presented to the Cardinal by Acting President Marcel Knecht on behalf of the Association, and a medal of Joan of Arc was presented to him by the association, represented by two little Alsace-Lorraine girls. Other speakers were Myron T. Herrick, former Ambassador to France, and Melville E. Stone, General Manager of the Associated Press.

A large crowd gathered in front of 431 West Forty-seventh Street, the Church of St. Albert, the only Belgian Church in the city, where the Cardinal arrived at 6 o'clock. The street was decorated with American and Belgian flags. The Cardinal saw a woman in the crowd holding a little baby up to see him. He stopped and the crowd gave way to let the mother through to the famous priest, who took the baby and blessed it. The child was Mary Teresa Parker, the four-months-old daughter of Mrs. Hester Parker of 505 West Forty-seventh Street.

Cardinal Mercier made addresses in three languages to a large audience, composed largely of Belgians, at the Hotel Astor last night. He spoke first in English and then followed in Flemish and French, describing German atrocities in terms which drew murmurs of horror from his audience. The reception at the Hotel Astor was held by the Belgian Bureau. Before the dinner a few guests attended a dinner given in honor of the Cardinal by Pierre Mali, Consul-General for Belgium.

SAYS CARRANZA PLANNED INVASION

OIL MEN TELL OF OUTRAGES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Senator Fall, Chairman of the Sub-Committee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations which is investigating the Mexican situation, placed in the record of that committee today a report filed with the State Department just prior to this Government's recognition of the present Mexican Government, in which report it was stated that if control of the country were given to Carranza it would be but a short time before he would face other revolutions the force of which no leader of his (Carranza's) strength would be able to overcome.

The report was written by K. C. Weller, an official of the American Red Cross, and was transmitted to the State Department by Brigadier General C. A. Devol, U. S. A., then the acting head of the American Red Cross.

Mr. Weller stated that at that time, which was the early Fall of 1915, Carranza was so confident of his power that he had even contemplated an invasion of Texas and said this information was communicated to him by various Carranzistas, among them General Ellisondo, then commanding the Carranzistas in the State of Coahuila. Senator Fall said that the report had never before been made public. He added that the day after the Red Cross, at the instigation of Carranza, was ordered out of Mexico it was officially announced in Washington that Carranza would be formally recognized.

The witnesses before the committee today were the Rev. Dr. Henry Allen Tupper, who has been for years a close personal friend of Carranza; Amos L. Beatty, the general counsel of the Texas Company, one of the largest of the American corporations engaged in Mexican oil production, and C. H. Rathbone of the Scottish-Mexican Oil Company, a British corporation, a majority of the stock of which is owned by Americans.

Dr. Tupper Explains $4,000 Check.

Dr. Tupper, who is a former President of the New York City Baptist Ministers' Conference, and who is now the pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city, is a warm personal friend of Carranza, and he places in evidence many letters he has received from the Mexican President.

Dr. Tupper said that he had been in Mexico fourteen times in the last thirty years, four times since the coming into power of Carranza. Early in his narrative he referred to the $4,000 check that was introduced in evidence last week and which was indorsed to Dr. Tupper by the Mexican Minister of Finance. Dr. Tupper averred that he had never received a cent in the way of remuneration for anything he had done for Carranza, and that he had refused pointblank to receive such remuneration. Carranza, however, insisted that Mexico should be permitted to pay the actual expenses he had incurred while in Mexico. Thereupon Dr. Tupper compiled an itemized bill of his actual expenses and it was these expenses which the check placed in evidence covered.

It was during the examination of Dr. Tupper that the Weller Red Cross report was placed in the record by Senator Fall. Senator Fall asked Dr. Tupper if he had any information as to the attitude of Carranza toward the American Red Cross in 1915, and Dr. Tupper replied in the negative.

The report covers the period of Aug. 25 to Sept. 25, 1915. Within less than ten days after the Red Cross relief workers arrived on Mexican soil the relief train of which Mr. Weller was in command was attacked by Carranzista troops. Mr. Weller in his report to General Devol, says the attack was made on Sept. 4, not far from the town of Sabinas in the State of Coahuila.

The train was proceeding slowly and was near Baroteran, passing through a cut, when about 800 Carranzistas opened fire, there being about 400 men on one side of the track and the same number on the other. Within a few minutes after the rifle firing began machine guns opened fire on the train. The reason there was no slaughter of the people on the train was due to the fact that everybody remained prostrate on the car floors while the fusilade was on.

Cars Marked With Red Cross.

"Each car," added Mr. Weller, "was plainly marked with the Red Cross sign on both sides. The signs could be seen for a mile. I was told by a man who was with the troops, but who was formerly employed by me in Mexico, that they (the Carranzistas) were fully aware of our identity, but that they shot up our train simply to show their disrespect for any American institution.

Before leaving, the Carranzistas, Mr. Weller states, were "very anxious to know about the success of their compatriots with the Texas revolution," and that they seemed to be under the impression that "the Carranza lines extended to within a few miles of San Antonio (Texas)."

Mr. Weller next narrated the story of what the Red Cross found in Baroteran after the battle there between the Carranzistas and Villistas.

Several times the train had to stop so that dead bodies piled upon the tracks ahead of the train could be removed. In the town we found the body of Dr. Cioiano Rivera, a Mexican Red Cross worker. He had been executed near his Red Cross car. In one instance a husband and wife had been shot through and through with the same bullet, and their two little children were found crying over the dead body of the father.

The "Texas revolution" to which Mr. Weller alluded was the fight near Brownsville between American regulars and Mexican troops, the latter of whom, according to the Texas rangers, were uniformed members of Carranza's army. Captain Hanson of the Texas Rangers, who is attached to the Fall committee, said today that when the committee goes to the border the Texans will prove that Carranza was responsible for the September, (1915,) raid in the Brownsville district.

Beaty Tells of Recent Outrages.

Mr. Beaty, who followed Dr. Tupper, told of the murder of Edward House and J. M. Stevenson, in the last few weeks by bandits in the Tampico country. Both of these men were employed by the Texas Company. He read a long list of robberies in recent months, in which his company was the victim, the amounts stolen varying from a few hundred dollars to thefts in which thousands were obtained by the bandits.

He said his company was now paying $2,000 a month to the rebel leader, Pelaez, and that unless this tribute was paid the property would be destroyed. He also stated that Carranza had held up the company's ships in order to enforce the payment of about $301,000 in advance taxes

At the conclusion of Mr. Rathbone's testimony the committee adjourned until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Francisco Villa has written a letter to a friend in Washington giving some details of his present operations south of the Rio Grande. This letter has been placed at the disposal of Government officials. It was written from Villa's headquarters in the northern part of Durango, where he went after the Juarez attack, when United States troops crossed the border and drove the Villistas out of the city.

Villa wrote the letter on Sept. 5, and in it states he is well supplied with ammunition and has the largest force of men under his command he has had since 1915. He took the city of Lerdo, near Torreon, last month, he writes. This information was a surprise to officials here, fir if it is correct the Mexican censor has kept it from being made public. He adds that he is well supplied with funds, having captured from a train recently more than a million pesos in Government gold and silver coin and bullion.

CARRANZA TO TAKE A TRIP.

Will Visit Northern Part of Republic—May Protest Lynching.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 18, (Associated Press.)—President Carranza will leave tomorrow for a trip of several weeks' duration to the northern part of the Republic. Arrangements have been completed for a large party to accompany him, including several members of the Cabinet and a strong military escort.

The Foreign Relations Department has announced that the Mexican Consul at Denver, Col., has been instructed to obtain all facts as, to the circumstances surrounding the hanging recently of two Mexicans at Pueblo, Col. This action, it is stated, is being taken with a view to a possible formal protest to the United States Government.

SHONTS NOT NEAR DEATH.

Rumors circulated last night to the effect that Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, who has been ill at his home, 930 Park Avenue, had suffered a sinking spell, were denied last night by Dr. J. Bentley Squier, who is attending Mr. Shonts.

Dr. Squier said that although Mr. Shonts was in a serious condition, as he has been for the last few months, there was little danger of his immediate death. At the Shonts home the rumor was also denied, and a member of the family said that the patient was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

DAUGHTERS CONTROL HAMMERSTEIN STOCK

Stepmother, as Executrix, Protests—Petitioners Bought Stock When Sold at Auction Last June.

The two daughters of Oscar Hammerstein, who were not mentioned in his will leaving all his property to his wife, Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein, take full possession of the chief asset of his estate, his stock in the Hammerstein Amusement Company, through an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday against the protest of Mrs. Hammerstein, as executrix under the will of her husband.

The daughters, Mrs. Stella Hammerstein Keating of 54 West Eighty-second Street, and Mrs. Rose Hammerstein Tostevin of New Rochelle, asked for an order directing that a meeting of the stockholders of the Hammerstein Amusement Company be called for the election of officers and that the officers be directed to transfer on the books of the company, in their names, 3,998 of the 4,000 shares of stock in the corporation.

In granting the application Justice Guy ordered the election for Sept. 30 at the office of the corporation, 151 West Thirty-eighth Street, and directed George Blumenthal, the Secretary, as sole surviving officer since the death of Mr. Hammerstein, the President and Treasurer, on Aug. 1, to conduct the meeting. The court stated that after three Directors have been elected they shall name the officers, who shall then transfer the stock to the petitioners. Mr. Blumenthal and Mrs. Hammerstein are directed to turn over all books and documents, and the company must buy new books to take the place of those now lost.

The two daughters state that their father organized the corporation in 1898 with $100,000 capital, and it has been the owner of the leasehold of the property now sublet to the Rialto Theatre Company. He was the "dominating spirit and dealt with the company as if it was his own property," they say. With the exception of two shares held by dummy Directors, he owned all the stock. They say that in 1911, when their mother, Mrs. Malvina Hammerstein, obtained a divorce, he executed an agreement to pay her $200 a week alimony for life and on her death to pay the same amount to his daughters during their lifetime. He deposited the stock with the Equitable Trust Company as security under the agreement. He defaulted in payments and the trust company gave notice that it would sell the stock at auction, although he had testified in the bankruptcy proceedings against him a few years ago that he transferred the stock to the present Mrs. Hammerstein in consideration of their marriage.

Upon receiving notice of the proposed sale of the stock Mr. Hammerstein sued to restrain the sale on the ground that it was in violation of the agreement and that his equity could not be foreclosed. Mrs. Hammerstein, through her attorney, stated in the suit that she had no interest in the stock.

In denying the injunction Justice Mullan said that the case was "singularly devoid of legal basis and of appealing ground for the intervention of a court of equity." His ruling was upheld by the Appellate Division, and upon the sale of the stock on June 11 last the daughters bought it for $50,432.

In opposing the application of her stepdaughters for the election of officers and the transfer of the stock to them, Mrs. Hammerstein, as executrix under her husband's will, stated that there had been no refusal of their request to transfer the stock, and for that reason the application should be denied. She said:

"Mr. Hammerstein intended to bring a new action to regain his property, but his death prevented. He was a creditor for a large sum, the amount of which I am unable to determine. In 1912 he paid off a mortgage of $100,000 with his own funds, and had since expended large sums to preserve the assets and property. His estate is the largest creditor and is vitally interested in the preservation of the assets and the proper management of its affairs."

JEWISH DRIVE GAINS ANOTHER MILLION

BUILDING FUND GROWING

Charity Worker Says 10,000 Unfortunates Are Turned Away Annually for Lack of Room.

Another million dollars was contributed yesterday toward the ten-million-dollar goal of the United Building Fund Campaign of the Federated Jewish Institutions. This, according to Colonel H. A. Guinzberg, who is in charge of the drive, is the largest subscription handed in on any one day of any similar campaign. Of this amount $190,000 came from fifty-one clothing manufacturers, who contributed an average of $4,000 each. The report was made by William Goldman, Chairman of the Clothing Trade Committee, at the afternoon rally in the Hotel Biltmore

The members of the clothing trade who constributed toward the $190,000 were:

J. Schwartz...	$15,000	A. Zeeman.....	$5,000
J.Samuels&Bros	15,000	Epstein-C.Douglis Co.	5,000

Howard Field..	1,000	I. Cohen	1,000
J. Elsner & Co.	5,000	J. Yeska	2,000
S. Golde & Sons	6,000

A wireless dispatch from Felix M. Warburg, on the Steamship Rotterdam, came during the rally. His wish for the campaign was that it might run as smoothly as the ship on which he was sailing. One of the factors assuring the smooth sailing of the campaign was announced by I. Edwin Goldwasser, who, in the name of the executive committee, told the audience that all the expense of running the campaign was being borne by one individual and would therefore not be a drain on any part of the building fund itself.

Louis J. Robertson, chairman of the September campaign, in commenting upon the generosity which had been shown, said he could think of no greater tragedy than that of the sufferer who is turned away from a hospital door and is told that "there is no room," or of an orphan child who is denied even the foster care of an institution. "Yet ten thousand sick and needy," he said, "are refused admission to Jewish institutions in this city each year, because these institutions are over-crowded. The United Building Fund Campaign of Federated Jewish Institutions must raise $10,000,000 from September 14 to 21 to remedy this appalling condition by erecting new buildings, and by repairing and enlarging the old. Every man and woman must contribute to the limit of his means. It must not be said to the shame of our citizens that they refused to care for the sick and needy."

Office boys and clerks of the Emil Frankel Co., of the insurance division, yesterday were reported to have given $460 to the fund through David M. Bressler. Abner S. See and Depew gave $1,000. Other reports from the insurance division were: Rudolph Recht, $500; Charles Sachs, $300; R. A. Carroon & Co., $250, and Reuben Arkush, $8,000. Advertising trades, through Carl Kaufman, reported $28,747 total to date. The meat industry reported a total of $8,485. The jewelry industry reported up-to-date, $89,900. Charles Klingenstein, of the silk industry, reported a total of $252,281. J. Leon Lascoff reported for the druggists $1,000 above his quota.

Harold A. Saks, for the department stores, reported that the firm of A. Saks & Co., donated a contribution of $20,000, as follows: Horace A. Saks, $5,000; William Saks, $5,000; P. A. Conne, $5,000.

Mr. Saks reported that his quota of $210,000 was nearing completion and that by the end of the next week the full amount will be raised.

Irwin Untermyer and Alvin Untermyer, sons of Samuel Untermyer, contributed $6,000 to the fund.

The Merchants and Shippers Insurance Company through their president, P. Goldman, have promised at their next meeting to allot a definite amount to the United Building Fund Campaign.

Nahan Franko, the musician, played at this rally and offered as his contribution to the fund a part of the proceeds of the celebration of his fiftieth anniversary jubilee at the Hippodrome next month. Mr. Paul Reimers will appear next Tuesday.

PRAISES JEWISH WORK.

Herbert Hoover Commends Broad Non-Sectarian Spirit in Relief.

The work of the Joint Distribution Committee, which is carrying on the American Jewish Relief Work in Europe, was warmly commended yesterday in a letter sent by Herbert Hoover, head of the American Relief Administration, to Nathan Straus. He urged that the need for such work was never greater than at present, and gave high praise to the effectiveness, willing co-operation, and non-sectarian spirit with which the Joint Distribution Committee had conducted its mission.

"I am indeed glad," he said, "to see the effort being made by the American Jewish Relief Committee for sufferers from the war to raise further funds for its work in Europe. As you know, your organization has co-operated with us wonderfully in relief work at the most critical centres of Europe. I cannot speak too highly of the spirit and effectiveness of the Joint Distribution Committee in Europe, nor can I emphasize too strongly the critical necessity for its continuation.

"As you are aware, my colleagues and myself are endeavoring to carry on the special feeding of undernourished children through Central and Eastern Europe on a charitable basis over the forthcoming Winter. There are between four and five millions of these children, to whom the application of the term, 'undernourished,' conveys no proper indication of the state in which they exist. Your committee has taken over a considerable section of this work during the last six months in Poland and other sections of Central and Eastern Europe, and without their co-operation success would have been impossible. The broad, non-sectarian spirit shown by the Joint Distribution Committee, although primarily devoted to Jewish work, and their willing co-operation which my own administration has enjoyed place me under an obligation to to the committee. I do wish you every possible success, for there never was a greater need."

SHIP CAPTAIN KNIGHTED.

King George Honors Commander Hayes of the Olympic.

A cable message to the International Mercantile Marine Company announces that Captain Bertram Fox Hayes, O. B. E., C. B., G. M. C., D. S. O., commander of the White Star Line steamer Olympic, has been knighted by King George for his distinguished services during the war, when the Olympic was engaged in transporting American, Canadian, and British troops across the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean.

The knighting of Captain Hayes is the only instance where this honor has been conferred upon the commander of a mercantile steamer. The Captain, who is now enjoying a short vacation at Newfoundland, N. J., modestly omitted to mention this incident upon his recent arrival at New York aboard the liner Celtic.

ANOTHER SINGER HELD BY IMMIGRATION MEN

Luigi Morandi, a tenor singer who has been with the Metropolitan Opera Company for ten seasons in the chorus and singing minor roles, was detained yesterday when he arrived on the Italian steamship America from Genoa, and sent by the Immigration authorities to Ellis Island for further examination today by the Board of Special Inquiry.

The Immigration officials said that Morandi was held under the new ruling of the Secretary of Labor concerning contract labor, that aliens arriving here under contract were to be considered laborers unless they had achieved fame on the operatic stage and were paid high salaries, emphasizing this fact.

William J. Guard of the Metropolitan Opera Company said last night that he could not understand why if Urelio Bodini had been released on parole by the Immigration authorities pending the result of his appeal to Washington, against the order for his deportation, Morandi, who had been for so many years with the company could not have been treated in the same manner. Representatives from the Metropolitan Opera House were at the pier to meet the America and offered to put up bonds, but they were not accepted.

Mr. Guard added that he was going to Ellis Island this morning to interview the Acting Commissioner of Immigration, Byron H. Uhl, to see if he could get Morandi paroled before Sunday so that he would not have to spend the week-end in the detention pen. An appeal will be made on his behalf, Mr. Guard added, to the Secretary of Labor at Washington similar to the one sent there for Urelio Bodini.

MAYOR PROCLAIMS FIRE DAY

Oct. 9 Set Apart for Preventive Measures and Publicity.

Mayor Hylan yesterday issued a proclamation regarding Fire Prevention Day, in which he says:

"Announcement is hereby made that Oct. 9, 1919, will be observed in the United States as Fire Prevention Day. The proper observance of this day is essential to the welfare of our city.

"During the year 1918 $290,000,000 worth of property was destroyed in the United States by fire. New York City's share of this was $9,558,725. While this loss is less by $4,739,798 than for the year 1917, 90 per cent. was due to preventable causes, and approximately 75 per cent. was due to causes having their origin in the homes of the people. In New York City alone 125 persons were burned to death.

"To arouse our citizens to the magnitude of the fire waste and to impress upon them their individual responsibility for this economic loss and to induce them to take more interest in the subject of fire prevention, I do designate and set aside as Fire Prevention Week Oct. 6 to 11, 1919, both days inclusive."

The proclamation orders that the week designated be devoted to the removal of rubbish and that tests be made of sprinkler equipment, lighting and heating fixtures, &c. It is further recommended that during the week special instruction be given in the public schools on fire prevention. Clergymen are also requested to bring the subject to the attention of their congregations, and storekeepers and transportation companies are asked to exhibit fire-prevention displays and placards.

YANKEES WHITEWASH TIGERS AND GAIN IN BATTLE FOR THIRD PLACE

MOGRIDGE TAMES TIGERS; YANKS WIN

Holds Detroit Batters to Three Hits and Huggins's Clan Takes 7 to 0 Victory.

THIRD PLACE LOCALS' AIM

See Chance to Pass Jennings's Team and Boost Standing Before End of Season.

George Mogridge piloted the Yankees to victory over Detroit yesterday at the Polo Grounds and in doing so administered as neat a trimming to the Tigers as they have experienced this season. The Yankee portsider, working with exceptional control through the nine innings, made the Tigertown crew roll over, play dead, and perform various other feats that pertain to crushing defeat. When the pastime was concluded the Yankees skipped off Henry Fabian's meadow on the wings of a 7 to 0 victory.

Mogridge's effort was, perhaps, his best on the uptown ballyard this season. He yielded but three hits and never permitted himself to be caught in a tight hole. From end to end of the game Mogridge went along at the same smooth pace, sending the Tigers back almost as quickly as they advanced to the plate. He fanned six of them. Pep Young managed to make the greatest impression on the Yankee hurler. Pep's indent was to the extent of two hits.

Pep got his first hit in his initial appearance against Mogridge and collected his second and longest blow in the fourth, when he lashed out a double to left. Dyer, who replaced Jones at third in the fourth inning, rapped out the remaining Tiger safety in the eighth, when he singled to centre. The only other Detroit athlete to reach first was Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who got on in the opening inning through a fielder's choice. All told but four men reached first and only one of them got any further in his travels. Young raced from second to third on an infield out in the fourth stanza.

Strong Support for Mogridge.

Back of Mogridge was a defensive cordon which reminded some of the 2,500 who saw the fracas of the Yankees early in the season when the fight for the calico was fraught with interest. Errorless support was given the Yankee lefthander, with never even a quiver in the defensive machine. The Yankees just now are battling for third place, which carries with it a share in the juicy world's series plum. Judged on their game yesterday they are more sure of this berth than a country minister is of his flock. Detroit is the obstacle which stands between Miller Huggins's crew and the coveted third place, and Detroit doesn't sound nearly as ominous as it used to. The Tiger's claws and teeth are conspicuous by their absence.

Ernie Boland, a sort of a Yankee enigma, started against the local outfit absolutely ignorant of the savage mood the Yankees were in. It didn't take Ernie long to realize his standing in New York. As a sort of a "feeler", Sam Vick nicked the Detroit hurler for a single to start the game, but Ernie got through the first frame without further maltreatment. In the second, however, the Yankees unloosed themselves of a lot of revenge, and in the process Boland was shelled off the mound in a barrage of five resounding hits and four large runs. George Cunningham was then called in as a lifesaver, and checked the Yankees' second inning outburst. Cunningham looked just like Boland to the Yankees in the succeeding innings, and he was bumped and battered around the lot for eight more hits, which, with a life-sized misdemeanor by Flagstead and a couple of erratic throws by Cunningham, gave the Yankees three more runs before time was called.

Yankees Start Early.

Boland felt the fury of the Yankee disposition with the start of the second inning. Duffy Lewis launched the offensive with a resounding single to center. Lewis raced to third on Bodie's thump to the same garden, but Ping was avaricious and tried to stretch his single with the result that he overslid second base and was touched out by Young. Ping didn't like Umpire Dineen's decision and didn't hesitate to say so, but what Ping said to the arbiter wasn't overheard in the stand. At any rate it didn't matter, for the worst was yet to come.

Muddy Ruel slashed a single to left, scoring Lewis and then Mogridge laid down a neat sacrifice bunt, on which Ruel scampered to second. Vick here injected his second blow of the day, a single to right, scoring Ruel. When Boland intercepted Flagstead's throw to the plate and heaved the ball into the Detroit dug-out, Vick advanced leisurely to third. Peckinpaugh drew a pass and then Baker furrowed the grass in right field with a single which scored Vick and sent Peck to third. That was the end of Mr. Boland.

Cunningham began where Boland left off and while serving to Pipp unburdened himself of a wild pitch which permitted Peckinpaugh to tally with the Yankees' fourth marker. Pipp lofted to Flagstead and ended the rally.

The fourth found Cunningham off at a difficult angle and Flagstead emulating a sieve, with the result that two more runs were added to the Yankee total. Starting this frame Mogridge drew a pass. Vick singled to right for his third blow, and when Flagstead let the sphere roll through his legs to the fence, Mogridge romped over the rubber, followed closely by Vick.

In the seventh the Yankees went off on their last foray and were helped considerably by Cunningham. The Tiger twirler disposed of Lewis on strikes, but evidently wasted all his "stuff" in this feat for he immediately winged Bodie on the wrist. Ruel rose to the occasion with a single to centre, sending Bodie to second. This excited Cunningham so much that he hit Mogridge with a pitched ball, filling the bases. Vick lifted a long sacrifice fly to Cobb and Bodie dashed over the rubber with the Yankees' seventh run. Peckinpaugh tried to chase his team-mates home with a savage infield smash but was thrown out by Dyer.

CLUB OWNERS FILE ANSWER.

Another chapter in the Carl Mays case was added yesterday to the long list of official documents filed since the beginning of the litigation concerning his services. The St. Louis and Cleveland clubs played at the Polo Grounds during the few days immediately following the granting of the temporary injunction against interference with Mays, and officials of both clubs were served with copies of the restraining order. Their answer, made up for the most part of denials, was filed yesterday in the County Clerk's office.

The document closely follows the lines laid down by defendants' counsel in the argument about the motion for a continuance of the temporary injunction which the New York club obtained against Ban Johnson and his agents pending trial.

The defendants deny that the plaintiff is entitled to a permanent injunction and that Carl W. Mays is entitled to continue a player on the New York club. They further declare that it was not necessary to hold any hearing, with Mays present to defend himself, before suspending him.

Curves and Bingles.

The Yankees' chances of landing third place took a decided jump with this victory. If the present gait is maintained the Tigers will leave here on the lower rung of the first division ladder.

Manager Hughey Jennings was not near as noisy as he is accustomed to being. There wasn't an opportunity for the famous "E-yah" all afternoon.

The Tiger leader did get mildly excited in the fourth, when Young got as far as third, but Mogridge quickly squelched the managerial outburst with what he thought best for Heilman.

Heilman's fly, which closed this frame for the Jungaleers, was long and hard hit, but Duffy Lewis was playing deep in left and hardly had to move for the catch.

Manager Huggins just looked on and chuckled to himself.

Cobb faced Mogridge three times, but didn't get into the hit column in the box score. In fact, Mogridge had most of the Tigers swinging like the old barndoor most of the afternoon.

With the game clinched, Manager Huggins took two of his regulars out in the eighth. Gleich went to left field when the aYnks took the field, and when the Yanks took the field, and went to the plate for Pipp.

Umpire Dineen, working on the bases, got a large hand in the fifth when he made a one-hand stop of Flagstead's hot foul near the first base. Dineen didn't have to render many decisions on this corner for the Tigers, and was glad of the opportunity to do something.

Roger Peckinpaugh came near being disabled in the fourth in trying to get Young asleep at second after the Tiger infielder had doubled. In running in to take Mogridge's throw to the bag Peck drove his left leg hard into the sack and fell to the ground in pain. He was surrounded by players immediately, but after giving the leg a rubbing Peck hobbled to his position and continued in the game.

Veach made a spectacular catch of Lewis's hard fly in the third. The Tiger left fielder had to race over nearly to the fence, and after spearing the ball, completely around with the momentum of his dash. The play robbed Lewis of an extra-base hit.

The peppery disposition of the Yankees afield was best illustrated in the only double play of the game, which came in the eighth. After Dyer had singled, Ainsmith ripped a grass-burner to Peckinpaugh, who threw to Pratt, the latter relaying the ball to Pipp in time to get the Tiger catcher.

NEHF FEATURES IN VICTORY OF GIANTS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 19.—Arthur Nehf had the edge on Wilbur Cooper here this afternoon in a closely fought pitching duel, and the Giants got the decision over the Pirates by the score of 4 to 2. With proper support the final figures would have been half as large for each club, as a misplay by Grimm handed two runs to the Giants and an error by Art Fletcher was responsible for one run made by the home team.

Each of these sterling southpaws allowed the opposing batsmen three singles and a brace of doubles, but the New York sidewheeler scattered his blows much better than Cooper. One hit per inning was the limit for the Pirates, while the Giants bunched two of their five smashes in the sixth frame, and these, with a sacrifice fly, a stolen base, a fumble, and a wild pitch furnished the foundation for three runs. This carried the Giants to the front, and kept them there to the close of the game.

Art Nehf not only pitched one of his usual games, but he went out of the sphere in which a pitcher generally confines himself. The New York southpaw opened the winning rally in the sixth by driving a double to left field, and then he made a steal of third base before an out had been recorded. His dash to third brought about a change in the Pittsburgh lineup, as Barbare was badly cut or the left foot when Nehf slid into the bag. He was forced to leave the game, Whitted moving over from first base to third, while Grimm went in as Whitted's successor. Grimm later made an error that handed the Giants a brace of runs.

Kauff Shines on Bases.

Benny Kauff did some fast stepping in the eighth inning, which also helped in the run-getting. Kauff reached first on a fielder's choice, and promptly stole second. Frisch followed with a single to centre which did not seem long enough to permit Kauff to score, but Benny did not hesitate, and he made the plate safely, finishing up with a fine slide. The Giants had enough without this run, but that fact could not detract from the brilliant effort of Kauff.

Max Carey was the only home player who had any success against Nehf. The star of the Bezdek brigade collected three of the five hits made off the New York southpaw, one of them being good for two bases. Max drove in the run that put the Pirates in front in the third inning, but his two other hits were wasted. A double by Whitted and a single by Schmidt was the extent of the Pirates' stickwork, excepting that done by Carey.

Frisch got the first of New York's five hits, a single to centre in the first inning, but the blow arrived with two out and there was no scoring. In the Pirates' half Carey doubled to left with one out, but neither Southworth nor Whitted could chase him home. In the second each team was turned back by a fast double play, Cutshaw doing some fancy fielding in the New York half. Before starting the double play on Statz and Kelly Cutshaw made a great catch of Fletcher's blazing liner.

Pirates Score in Third.

The home team went to the front in the third inning, an error by Fletcher making the run possible. The Giants' Captain fumbled Cooper's roller and Nicholson sacrificed him to second. Carey shot a single to centre and Cooper registered. Max tried to steal second, but McCarty's accurate throw to Doyle beat the speedy Carey to the bag.

The Giants had a runner on first base with none out in both the fourth and fifth innings, but in neither instance did the runner advance to second base. In the fifth Nehf opened with a double to left and stole third. He held the bag while Burns was going out on strikes, and galloped home on Kauff's sacrifice fly to Carey. Frisch followed with a grounder to Grimm, who had replaced Whitted at first base, and he fumbled the ball, missing an opportunity to retire the side. A double to left by Larry Doyle sent Frisch around to third, and then Cooper made a wild pitch, which allowed both Frisch and Doyle to score.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—Chicago won the first game of its last series with the retiring world's champions today, 3 to 2, Cicotte yielding seven hits, well scattered. Sensational plays by Ruth, Risberg, and Eddie Collins featured the contest. Collins started two remarkable double plays. The White Sox bunched four hits for their first two runs and scored the winning tally in the eighth when Gandil doubled, went to third on Risberg's fly, and scored on Schalk's single to left.

COMMISSION PLANS RAPPED BY LEAGUE

Club owners of the National League, at a special meeting held yesterday at the office of President John Heydler in this city, went on record as refusing to concur in two recommendations made by the National Commission at its meeting in Chicago on Sept. 2, and also declared themselves strongly opposed to the continuation in office of August Herrmann, Chairman of the Commission.

At the meeting in Chicago the commission recommended the temporary abrogation of the national agreement with the minor leagues, also that no players be drafted from the minors this year and that the territorial rights of the International League cities of 1914 be taken away unless the league paid to the commission the sum of $8,700, loaned to the organization five years ago to combat the invasion of the old Federal League. The 1914 circuit included six of the cities now in the International League.

In answer to these recommendations the National League went on record yesterday as follows:

First. The National League does not concur in the recommendation made by the National Commission that the present National agreement be temporarily abrogated.

Second. We concur in the recommendation of the National Commission that the National League refrain from drafting minor league players during the year 1919.

Third. We do not concur in the recommendation of the commission that the territorial rights of the clubs of the old International League be not respected in the future unless its indebtedness to the National Commission be paid on or before thirty days after Sept. 2, 1919.

President John A. Heydler was in the chair and the meeting was attended by the following: Charles A. Stoneham, New York; Charles H. Ebbets, Brooklyn; George W. Grant, Boston; William F. Baker, Philadelphia; Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh; H. W. Mason and George Williams, St. Louis. All the above except the St. Louis representatives are club Presidents. William Veeck of the Chicago club and August Herrmann of Cincinnati were unable to attend.

At the close of the meeting President Heydler declared that the National League still was strongly opposed to the retention of Herrmann as Chairman of the National Commission.

"The National League has no candidate for the office," said Mr. Heydler, "and will abide by the choice of the committee which has been named to make recommendations. The league is more than ever opposed to a continuation of the present system and will demand that the head of the National Commission be a man not interested in a baseball club or a baseball park."

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—Bradley Hogg held St. Louis to five hits and Philadelphia won the first game of the series here today, 3 to 1. The first three men to face May scored all of Philadelphia's runs. Two passes and a single filled the bases and Tuero replaced May. Meusel's sacrifice fly sent in a run and Bancroft's double drove in two more. Hornsby scored the locals' lone tally with a tremendous home run drive into the left field bleachers.

Wingo's Hitting Chief Factor in Tail-Enders' 3 to 2 Victory.

With the score tied, 1 to 1, Wingo made his fourth hit, a triple in the eighth. Gerber knocked down Griffin's liner, but threw wild to the plate, trying to catch Wingo, and Griffin reached third, from where Galloway's single scored him with the winning run.

J. Walker, catcher, from Des Moines, played his first game with the locals. Pitcher Noyes was released to the Chicago Americans by the waiver route.

Jole Ray, the Illinois A. C. middle-distance star, failed yesterday in his attempt to shatter the existing world's record for the 1,500 metre run at the ninth annual outdoor track and field meet of the Prudential Insurance Company A. A., held at Weequahic Park, Newark, N. J. Ray covered the distance, beating four rivals, in 3 minutes 57 2-5 seconds. This time was 1 3-5 seconds slower than the mark hung up by Abel Kiviat at Cambridge in 1912. After covering the 1,500 metres Ray continued his run to the one-mile mark, in an effort to improve on Norman Taber's record of 4:12 3-5, but in this trial Ray failed again. His time for the mile was 4:15 3-5.

Ray made his record attempts in a special invitation 1,500-metre handicap run, in which Mike Devaney of the Millrose A. A.; Al Hulsebosch, Paulist A. C.; Harry Wigger, Paulist A. C., and Sydney Jackson, St. Christopher Club, competed against him. The little Illinois A. C. star conceded his rivals liberal handicaps. Ray did not overtake his rivals until two laps from the finish, when he moved into the van position and went over the cinderpath in a dizzy whirl trying for his records. He raced past the judges a winner of the 1,500-metre race by a margin of ten yards over Devaney, while Hulsebosch was third. Then Ray held his pace to the mile mark, striving unsuccessfully to lower the record. The Illinois star's intermediate times were: For the quarter, 0:58 3-5; for the half, 2:07; for three-quarters, 3:12, and for a mile, 4:15 3-5.

Loren Murchison, the New York A. C.'s speedy sprinter, failed to redeem handicaps he allotted in a 100-yard handicap dash. Murchison, with Pete White of the Salem-Crescent A. C., was penalized four feet. The Mercury Footer managed to win his heat in 10 2-5 seconds, but in the final Murchison finished a yard back of J. Carter, St. Christopher Club, who was allowed a start of four yards.

STEWARDS SUSPEND AQUEDUCT RIDERS

Three Jockeys Disqualified in Steeplechase—Another Bad Day for Favorites.

The judges at Aqueduct became strongly suspicious yesterday that the steeplechase race was not being run strictly on its merits, but was what is commonly known in the parlance of the turf as a "boat race," and as a result three jockeys were suspended and refused admittance to the track, while their cases were referred to the Stewards of the National Hunts Association.

The suspended riders were Taylor, Mahoney, and Fitzgerald. The latter had the mount on Ral Parr's Robert Oliver, which was an odds-on favorite, and which, it appeared, was not being permitted to do his best. The suspension of the other two came about after an investigation into the alleged coup to defeat the favorite.

There were five starters in the jumping event, and at the very outset Ardencraig bolted and was left. He did trail along later and take two jumps, when he was pulled up, being hopelessly out of the contest. Nonesuch set the pace, with Northwood second and King Simon, the victor eventually, running third.

Trailing by Forty Lengths.

Before the horses had made the first turn of the field Robert Oliver, which is one of the best jumpers in the East, was trailing forty lengths back of the leaders. It was quite evident to every one that, barring a mishap, Robert Oliver should never have been beaten off so badly, as he had not had a mishap. Fitzgerald seemed to realize this also about this time, for on the next turn of the field Robert Oliver made up much ground, and coming down the stretch he got up so close to the others that he finished third, only seven lengths back of the leader, being defeated for the place by Northwood. Robert Oliver was the last to finish, as it turned out, for Nonesuch lost his rider at one of the jumps in the stretch, but the favorite had already been allowed to run his own race and had passed Nonesuch before the mishap.

As soon as the horses came back to the stands Fitzgerald was called before the judges and, after a few moments of inquiry, was notified that he was suspended and that he would not be admitted to the course. The suspension of the other riders was made known after the officials had had a chance to make further investigation.

Louis Garth, who trains Robert Oliver, went to the stand and declared that he had supported his horse for the race. He explained that he was standing in the infield while the race was being run and that, at the beginning of the second turn, he yelled to Fitzgerald to send the horse along. He was just as eager as were the judges for the suspension of the jockey.

Only One Favorite Wins.

The rest of the program provided some good racing, although it was another bad day for favorites, as only one of them came home in front. This was W. R. Coe's Star Court, which won the last race, a dash for two-year-olds.

One of the best contests on the card was the Glorifier Highweight Handicap for all ages, at six furlongs, which went to A. K. Macomber's Fruit Cake, with The Boy second and Routledge third. This race witnessed the defeat of the Allies Stable's Masda, a full sister to Man o' War, which had been assigned the top weight with 133 pounds and which found she could not carry it successfully against such a field of sprinters. Masda has proved to be one of the best fillies of the season, but she was fairly staggered by her impost yesterday and was never a serious contender.

Routledge was made the favorite and was well supported, while Fruit Cake and The Boy, which led him over the finish line, were offered at generous prices and more or less neglected. Fruit Cake is a noted mud runner, but she displayed ability to go over a fast track, which was surprising to many. She dashed into the lead with the springing of the barrier and was never headed throughout the journey. The Boy took after her, while Stepson was third for a short distance.

Fruit Cake and The Boy ran well in front of the others all the way into the stretch, but there Fruit Cake drew away from her nearest rival and won by four lengths. Routledge had been slow to find his racing legs, but once under way, he made up ground rapidly and, coming through the stretch, went from seventh to third position, disposing of such good ones as Salvestra and War Drive. He was running nose and nose with The Boy at the finish. The latter would have been third in another few strides. Salvestra did not give up the chase, but she was passed by Routledge in the last few strides, so that the three horses came down to the wire so closely bunched that only inches separated them.

War Spirit Takes Close Race.

The Glen Cove Selling Stakes, which was down on the card as the feature of the day, brought out five starters for the seven furlong test, and the victory went to Miss T. Whiteford's War Spirit, which took the measure of Youneed and Tetley. The finish was close and the first three were lapped going over the line.

Youneed, which had displayed fine speed in his previous race, but had weakened at the finish, ran a better race yesterday and maintained his speed right to the wire, but could not withstand the rush which the winner made in the last eighth of a mile. Youneed set the pace at the start, but was taken back to third position rounding the first turn and War Spirit went to the front, with Thistledon second. Youneed was sent after the leaders when he reached the stretch, but he was close to the rail and Thistledon and War Spirit were running so close to him that Youneed was almost pinched against the fence. War Spirit seemed intent on crossing over in front of the other two as he came to the wire and it was all Fator could do to keep him straight on the course. Youneed could not get up in front again and in the last few strides gave way to Ttetley, which had been running strongly and without any interference.

BARNES BEATS MACDONALD AND McLEOD DOWNS McLEAN IN PRO GOLFERS' SEMI-FINAL TILTS

LONG JIM BEATS MACDONALD

Freddy McLeod of the Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C., was elected yesterday. It is he who will oppose the mighty and lanky Jim Barnes of St. Louis this morning and afternoon for the professional golfers' championship of America. McLeod came by his honor decisively and without much debate by triumphing over George McLean, the Great Neck professional, after thirty-four holes of play in the semi-final round 3 and 2. Barnes, the present title holder, held the whip hand over Big Bob Macdonald of Evanston, Ill., both morning and afternoon, and wrenched the decision on the thirty-second hole by 5 up and 4 to play.

Unusual interest is attached to today's final round. McLeod did not compete in 1916, the first and last year when the pros' title series was played, and therefore his chances against Barnes are at best problematical. Professional golfers generally make their rounds of the links by the medal score. The national open, as well as all other open tournaments, is decided in this manner, whereas the Professional Golfers' Association is decided by match play. In this week's playing over the Engineers' Links at Roslyn, L. I., McLeod has been fighting his way to the final via the lower half of the bracket and Barnes has been in the upper. As a matter of fact, the draw was regarded by many as a wee bit top-heavy with the majority of leading linksmen in the upper division. Barnes has reached the last day by defeating in succession Carl Anderson, Otto Hackbarth, Emmet French, and yesterday Bob Macdonald, who in turn had curbed the ambitions of such stars as Tom Boyd, George Fotheringham and Jock Hutchison. In the lower half, however, McLeod has defeated Jimmie Rose, George Gordon, J. Douglas Edgar and George McLean.

Putting Decides Match.

It was putting yesterday which won for McLeod and put out of the running as good a professional as McLean, the sole metropolitan district player to reach the semi-finals. Particularly after luncheon was it true that golf, as played on the greens, was the deciding factor. McLeod seemed to have a trick putter in his caddie bag which could sink with dead sureness putts from twenty to thirty feet from the cup. And, contrariwise, the gallery easily noticed in the playing of McLean the tendency to fall down on the greens when a short roll meant a halve or a win.

McLeod has confidence, plenty of it. Early in the week he was more optimistic about gaining the big purses which go with the final rounds of play than probably any other of the thirty golf professionals who appeared at Roslyn. Starting out in the morning yesterday he won both the first and third for an early lead. He couldn't be expected to take the fourth. On this hole McLean got in an especially long drive, and his second shot, although played down hill and across plenty of traps, was perfect. It stopped about five feet from the pin and he got an easy birdie 3. The dog-legged fifth was anybody's hole, for McLeod hooked his drive and McLean sliced his in the opposite direction. The approaches were no better, but the Mack from Great Neck holed out in a 5 to McLeod's 6, squaring the match. They halved the next three, but McLeod rounded the turn 1 up by winning the ninth. Then followed three in a row for the Washington player. He won the tenth with a par 3, the eleventh by one of his good putts, and twelfth similarly. McLeod had the bad fortune to lose a ball on the next and McLean promptly won it and another hole. They halved two of the remaining holes on the round and divided honors on two others, finishing at the noon interval with McLeod 2 up.

McLeod Plays Real Golf.

In the afternoon Freddy got a poor start, but he soon dissipated any ideas that he was off form. He topped his very first drive and, incidentally, lost the first hole to McLean. But he took the third hole with something to spare and retained his lead of 2 up. Here is a hole 325 yards long, up hill all the way, and with a par of 4. Freddy drove well, but approached better. His ball stopped some three feet from the cup and his birdie 3 was easy. Then his putting began to show up. McLean seemed to have both the fourth and fifth tucked away handily. But McLeod halved each of them by phenomenal putting, the first with a roll of fully twenty feet and the other by a putt nearly thirty feet long. He won the seventh when the Great Neck golfer's second putt rimmed the cup and stayed out. That put him 3 up and then he walked off in the ninth after his opponent had flubbed his approach shot.

Four up after twenty-seven holes is a wide margin, and McLean knew he was beaten. They divided on the next two. On the thirteenth hole McLeod played in bad luck from his drive shot. It was hooked into the rough and lodged in such a position against a rock that he had to play out left-handed with the back face of his mashie. They halved two of the remaining four holes and divided the other honors, ending the match at the thirty-fourth with McLeod ahead 3 and 2.

Barnes in Form.

Jim Barnes has the happy faculty of winning golf matches almost any old time, and particularly when he has to. On Wednesday Long Jim found in Hackbarth an opponent worthy of the best play, and he was equal to it. Yesterday the Britisher encountered Big Bob Macdonald, a dangerous man on any golf course, and one whose long drives have often spelled defeat for his rivals. And again Jim Barnes came through as expected.

More and more during this week of professional golfing at Roslyn it has been apparent that the absence of Walter Hagen, the Detroit pro who won the national open this Summer, was a big misfortune to golf in general and to the pros' championship tournament in particular. Hagen won his two recent titles, the national and metropolitan open, by medal play. This week perhaps had he met Jim Barnes, the wizard of match play, there would have been a golfing dessert of rare and precious variety.

A round in 75 is good scoring on any course and especially so at the Engineers' Club. Barnes did that little thing in the morning yesterday, even after prowling into several traps and hooking and slicing a few besides. At the turn he was 3 up and still going. That was no discredit to the Big Scot, however, for Macdonald was holding his own, but one lost ball and another hole played after delayed action in the long grass handicapped him. At the noon halt Barnes had increased his margin to 4 up and he was satisfied.

Weak on Greens.

Macdonald showed his best golfing in the afternoon. For six straight holes his drives were long and true in direction. On each of these tee shots he outdrove Barnes, anywhere from ten to thirty yards. But Macdonald's weakness in approaching and on the greens counteracted his magnificent driving. On the first hole his second shot and his approach were short. In the third he found a gaping wide trap and a tough downhill lie. He conceded this hole without playing it, but Barnes had a desire to test out his putting and stopped the match to sink one eight feet long for a birdie 3.

Big Bob halved the fourth when any other man would have torn his hair in distress, and perhaps thrown away his mashie. His second shot reached a sand hazard and in pitching out he crossed the green to the far edge. But from here he dropped a twenty-five-foot putt for a half. Barnes missed a putt on the fifth and returned to 4 up. Macdonald should have had the sixth easily. He was on the green with two shots to spare after Barnes had flubbed around in a group of trees, but because of miserable putting could only halve the hole. At the turn Barnes had gained a lead of 5 up.

Long Jim did too much topping yesterday. In the afternoon he topped two of his drives and a like number of spoon shots. For instance, he lost the twelfth for this reason. But he made up for this weakness on the greens, and ended his match at the thirty-second when Macdonald criss-crossed the plateau from one trap to another and finally conceded the hole.

PARRISH TURNS IN LOW CARD

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Play was continued today in the Tuxedo invitation golf tournament, and the semi-finals were reached in the first, second, and third sixteens as well as in the beaten eights. The weather was clear, the air crisp and the links were in perfect shape for ideal golfing.

J. C. Parrish, Jr., of the National Golf Club, made a score of 74, going out in 36 and returning with a 38. This was the lowest score made thus far in the tournament. L. H. Butt, a Tuxedo player, surprised his partner, C. H. Hyams, Jr., a Harvard man, defeating him at the nineteenth hole by one up, pulling up from six down at the eighth hole. It took twenty-two holes to decide the match between W. R. Betts of Tuxedo and C. J. Martin, a Nassau County player, playing in superb shape.

Tomorrow morning the semi-finals will be started and the finals will follow in the afternoon. In the semi-finals of the first sixteen C. H. Mellon of Nassau will play J. C. Parrish, Jr., of National, and L. H. Butt, Tuxedo, will meet H. P. Bingham of National. In the semi-finals of the second sixteen David Wagstaff, Tuxedo, will meet W. R. Betts, a clubmate, and Lay Martin of Nassau will meet R. E. Thiebaut of Tuxedo.

FOWNES LOSES GOLF TITLE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Four Philadelphians, Pat Grant of the Cricket Club, George Hoffner of Bala, Paul Tewkesbury of Aronimink, and Phil Corson of Merion, will fight it out tomorrow for the amateur golf championship of Pennsylvania on the links of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club. These four survived the first two rounds played today by one of the most notable fields which ever struggled for a State title. It was a bad day for Pittsburghers and a rugged day for champions. All of the contestants from the western wing of the Keystone State were brushed aside, and with them went W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, once national champion, four times winner of the State crown, and the present incumbent, until he ran afoul of Hoffner in the second round today and succumbed, 2 and 1.

E. E. Giles, Allegheny, and J. I. Crawford, Stanton Heights, the other two Smoky City entrants, were erased from the picture in the first round, George H. Brooke of Pine Valley taking care of the former, 3 and 2, while Pat Grant was blotting out Crawford on the eighteenth green.

In a field which was made up almost entirely of champions, a lot of crowned heads were bound to fall. Max Marston of Merion, New Jersey titleholder, and winner of more 1919 medals than any other golfer in the country, got "his" early, Norman Maxwell putting the skids under him in the first round, 3 and 2. Other notables who faded from the action during the day, were Maxwell, North and South champion; J. Wood Platt, North Hills, semi-finalist in the national and conqueror of Francis Ouimet; F. W. Kemble, Merion; Eddie Clarey, Bala; J. P. McBean and C. F. Kindt, Jr., Old York Road; M. P. Jones, Frankford, and George Brooke.

FIRST ROUND.—G. W. Hoffner, Bala, defeated F. W. Kemble, Merion, 1 up; W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, defeated J. W. Platt, North Hills, 3 and 1; J. P. McBean defeated C. F. Kindt, Jr., 1 up, (20 holes;) Paul Tewkesbury, Aronimink, defeated E. C. Clarey, Bala, 1 up, (19 holes;) P. I. Corson, Merion, defeated M. P. Jones, Frankford, 1 up, (20 holes;) G. H. Brooke, Pine Valley, defeated E. E. Giles, Allegheny C. C., 3 and 2; N. H. Maxwell, Overbrook, defeated M. R. Marston, Merion, 3 and 2; Pat Grant, Cricket Club, defeated J. I. Crawford, Stanton Heights, 1 up.

SECOND ROUND. — Hoffner defeated Fownes, 2 and 1; Tewkesbury defeated McBean, 7 and 6; Corson defeated Brooke, 5 and 3; Grant defeated Maxwell, 1 up.

LYNCH AND MASON DRAW.

New Yorker Puts Up Strong Battle —Referee's Decision Criticised.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 19.—Joe Lynch of New York fought twelve fast rounds tonight against Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne. The referee was criticised when he called the bout a draw.

Mason had a shade the better of it in the third and fourth rounds, but after this Lynch rained home right crosses time and again with telling effect, and from the firth to the eleventh round had the advantage. Mason staged a belated rally in the twelfth and sent the New Yorker across the ring with a hard right, but the latter came back.

RACES HALTED BY RAIN.

Only Two Heats Are Finished in Circuit Meeting at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 19.—The first postponement of the Grand Circuit meeting here occurred this afternoon when pacers in the 2:03 C. T. Dunkle event were scoring for the word. A heavy rainstorm drove them to the barn and most of the program went over until Saturday. One heat had been raced in each the 2:15 pace and the 2:13 trot prior to the storm.

The unfinished program of today and the entire card of Saturday, the 2:11 pace, the 2:20 trot and the 2:09 trot, will be raced tomorrow. Horses will be called at 11:30 o'clock in an effort to finish the first week's program before sunset.

BIG THREE OF GOLF UNABLE TO QUALIFY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The big three of British golf—Braid, Taylor, and Harry Vardon—who have dominated the game on this side of the Atlantic for more than a score of years, provided a sensation in golfing circles today by failing to qualify in the "News of the World" tournament, an annual event which was held in abeyance during the war. This classic of the links attracts every English professional, the winning of which is a coveted honor. The qualifying competition for the southern section of professionals was played over two rounds on the Sonning links. Twenty-six men returned the lowest aggregate scores for the two rounds and qualified to play against those who qualified in other sections.

How badly the great triumvirate failed can be judged by the fact that the best aggregate score was 145, yet Vardon, Taylor, and Braid could not do better than 157, 158, and 162, respectively.

Golfing experts in England are predicting that this defeat marks the end, or at least the beginning of the end, of the big three's supremacy, and that they must now take a back seat to younger professionals.

It would be unwise to jump to the conclusion that their age was entirely responsible for their failure, inasmuch as Alexander Herd, who had an aggregate of 145, is older than any of them.

Edward Ray and Abe Mitchell also returned scores of 145. The "News of the World" tournament will be played late in September at Walton Heath, where Braid is the professional, and where he will have to stand by and watch the play of those who qualified. One of the contestants will be Braid's assistant, who is a former caddie.

Hold Bouts with Injunction's Aid.

Armed with an injunction against police interference, Fidelity Council of the Knights of Columbus last night held a carnival with boxing bouts at McGoldrick Field, Morgan Avenue and Jackson Street, Brooklyn, in aid of its clubhouse fund. The restraining order was obtained from Supreme Court Justice Callaghan yesterday afternoon.

SPEED KINGS RACE TODAY.

Noted Auto Drivers to Compete in Speedway Races.

This afternoon at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway twenty auto pilots, including many noted drivers, will compete in what has been dubbed the "150-mile classic," and also in a special ten-mile match race. A high rate of speed will undoubtedly be reached in both events.

Tommy Milton hopes to wrest the sprint title from De Palma when they meet in the three ten-mile sprints. But this pair will have such stars as Ralph Mulford, Louis Chevrolet, Gaston Chevrolet, and Joe Boyers to reckon with. All these men have been winners of speed tests this year.

Louis and Gaston Chevrolet are expected to put up a sensational race in both the 150-mile event and the match race. Louis Chevrolet is keen to beat his brother Gaston. This rivalry was engendered when Gaston won the 100-mile derby on July Fourth, in which he smashed Louis's figures for 100 miles, which had stood for nearly ten years.

All the drivers were at the famous two-mile course yesterday and a crowd was on hand to watch the workouts. Lieutenant Art Klein drove his Peugeot land flyer one turn of the two-mile oval at the dizzy pace of 117 miles an hour. After this trial the daring ex-aviator, who has an official record of nine German planes brought down, said that he'd get more speed out of his car this afternoon.

The Chevrolets had an interesting brush, keeping well together for ten miles. They were traveling at a rate of 115 miles an hour. The Duesenberg cars are going along better than ever before this year. Tom Milton and Joe Boyer are the mainstays of this team. Ira Vail, in his latest creation, a Philbrin Special, created a sensation when he whirled around at an 118-mile an hour pace, and Dave Lewis and his famous Meteor flyer also showed the railbirds a few things in the speed line.

The first event this afternoon will be the opening heat in the ten-mile match race. This will be started promptly at 3 o'clock. The 150-mile classic will start at 4 o'clock.

Ralph De Palma, Packard; Tommy Milton, Duesenberg; Ralph Mulford, Duesenberg; Ray Howard, Frontenac; Ira Vail, Philbrin Special; Joe Boyer, Duesenberg; Louis Chevrolet, Frontenac; Gaston Chevrolet, Frontenac; Dennis Hickey, Stickle; Lieutenant Klein, Peugeot; Dave Lewis, Meteor; Joe Thomas, Mercer, Toland Nicholson, Hudson Special; Bennett Hill, Aetna; Emil Thomas, Wehr Special; H. F. Alexander, Alexander Special; Nick Zwick, White Special; Tom Archibald, Aetna; William Vetere, Duesenberg; Goldie O'Donnell, Frontenac.

SPECIAL MATCH RACE.

ARMY DEVELOPS PUNTERS.

First Hard Scrimmage Will Be Held Today Against the Scrubs.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 19.—An hour and a half was devoted to football practice this afternoon by the Army squad. The men were not permitted to indulge in any heavy work on the eve of the game against the scrubs tomorrow in the first real hard scrimmage of the season. Dummy scrimmaging, a brief forward pass drill and a session for the kickers with the forwards going down under the hefts of the 'Varsity booters constituted the main features of te workout.

Breidster, a big plebe lineman, and Lystad and Terry did the best kicking. Army drop kickers are not developing fast this season. New plays were practiced and explained in a chalk talk. Signal drill was held in the gmy this evening.

Mike O'Dowd Defeats Bartfield.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 10.—Middleweight Champion Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, outfought Soldier Bartfield of Brooklyn, in a terrific ten-round bout here tonight. Bartfield was in distress in the last two rounds and O'Dowd battered him to the ropes at least a dozen times. O'Dowd outweighed the Eastern fighter by ten pounds.

FISHER SPEEDS UP HARVARD PRACTICE

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 19.—Having declared a holiday for the Harvard football players tomorrow, Coach Bob Fisher rushed things at high speed today, in his effort to get a further line on the men whom he will have to shift into some sort of a first string line-up early next week. With old and new players intermingled on teams representing two of the 'varsity squads, an hour's real football was provided. The rush line men are just beginning to acquire something like form.

Macomber has started to make things interesting at centre for both Philbin and Havemeyer, and, in the backfield, former Substitute Nelson is beginning to get into the game in a fashion that suggests that he will be in the running right along.

In the scrimmage today, neither set of backs found holes through which steady gains could be made, but Arnold Horween produced a score with a twenty-yard drop kick, which his brother, Ralph, could not match with a shot attempted from the twenty-five yard line.

The players are pretty sore after their three days' work, and Fisher, for this reason, will hold no more practice this week. Three or four men have been banged up. Flynn, a prominent candidate for centre, has a badly wrenched knee, but reports that Stanley Burnham, one of the backs on the 'Varsity three years ago, has sprained his ankle, are not substantiated. Burnham got a hard crack, but will be out early in the week and Trainer Donovan expects to be able to use him in the opening game.

Tudor Gardiner, who was rated as one of Harvard's best tackles until he broke his arm in the 1911 game at Princeton, joined the coaching forces today. Fisher is getting every possible opinion of old players on the qualifications of his rush line timber. The squad of end rushers is beginning to show some good football. Phinney will start as a regular, and Weatherhead, Ryan and Desmond are engaged in a hard fight for the other place. Desmond weighs more than 200 pounds, and, if he can keep up speed, will fit in well in the Harvard plans for offense this Fall.

DAWSON WORKS TEAMS HARD

Coach Fred Dawson of the Columbia eleven is getting all the preliminary work out of the way so that on Monday when he has the first scrimmaging for his Columbia footballers there will be a stiff workout. At yesterday's practice he again sent his temporary 'Varsity and second elevens for signal practice up and down the South Field gridiron. The plays were varied and quarter backs were instructed to simulate actual playing conditions and use particular plays for particular objectives. Frank Canapary again piloted the 'Varsity. Dummy practice was added to the schedule for the first time. Coach Dawson is determined to develop tacklers, strong and sure, and the dummy will henceforth be on the daily bill until after the scrimmaging gets far enough advanced.

N. Y. U. HAS SIGNAL DRILL.

Coach Longwell Plans to Start Scrimmage Work Next Week.

New York University's football squad was put through long signal drill yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field by Coach Longwell. This is the first time that the squad has had anything but the elements of football, and they took to the new work in fine style.

A few new faces appeared on the field yesterday, and Coach Longwell gave them all an opportunity to show their worth. Among the new candidates there was but one veteran, Martindale, who played last year on the university's S. A. T. C. team. He is a tackle and will fit in very well, as there seems to be a dearth of such material.

There were a few changes in the line-up yesterday. Greene, a new man, was put in at right guard and seemed to know the game very well. Coach Longwell tried several combinations of tackles throughout the afternoon, shifting Storey, Joe Esquirol and Martindale around in these positions. Delaney held down left end all afternoon, while Thompson and Parkhurst alternated at the other end.

YALE AT IT FOUR HOURS.

Al Sharpe Tries Out New Lineup, with Graham at End.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 19.—For four hours today the Yale football candidates crashed through the severest practice since they reported last Monday, divided equally between the morning and afternoon drills. Breaking through, dummy tackling and proper following of the ball were among the specialties through which the squad was driven. The final hour was devoted to a signal rehearsal. Eight elevens were gridironed.

The most brilliant specialty play today was that of Thorne Murphy, whose field goals from the thirty-yard line were lifted at difficult angles. Four new players reported, rounding the squad up to 120. Herbert Kempton ran the second eleven at quarterback. The line-up of the first team follows: Ends, Graham and Allen; tackles, Kirkpatrick and Acosta; guards, Galt and Hammell; centre, Captain Callahan; quarterback, Laroche; halfbacks, Lay and Neville; fullback, Braden.

MIDDIES GET STARS BACK.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 19.—With the return of the last two members of last year's 'Varsity football team to make up the entire squad of thirty-seven players and ideal weather conditions prevailing, football was launched in earnest here today. Probably within the next few days the coaching staff for "A" squad will be swelled with the additions of Ensign Roberts, last year's all-American half back; Ensigns Welchel and Butler, last year's half backs, and Ensign Ingram, last year's Captain and quarter back, who will aid Coach Dobie in developing the back field.

The players were put through some fundamental work today, such as falling on the ball, running down under kicks, forward passing, and kicking goals. Johnny Wilson, assistant coach, is developing the feature of forward passing.

CORNELL IN SIGNAL DRILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The Cornell 'Varsity football squad began to take on more definite form today, when several elevens were put through a signal drill, preliminary to the beginning of scrimmaging. This may start in a day or two. Selections are tentative and the arrival of new men next week is likely to cause changes.

On Captain Shiverick's eleven in the signal drill today were Colvin of the 1917 'Varsity, and Wilson, a former freshman player, at ends; Sutton and Taylor of the 1918 'Varsity squad, at tackles; S. Helmes, a crew man, and Pendleton of the 1917 'Varsity, guards; Trowbridge, a 'Varsity squad man in 1917, centre, and Dave Netheroott, 1917 quarter back, in that position. Shiverick and Davies were the half backs and Erickson, a new man, was at full.

BROWN HAS CASUALTIES.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 19.—Brown football men had their first taste of scrimmage today when Coach Robinson sent two teams into action for real work. With Samson running one and Coulter the other team considerable spirited action developed. Both teams showed plenty of fight, and every play went through with a snap which was reflected in the list of casualties.

Peterson, the big guard, sustained a broken nose, and every full back a badly wrenched ankle. Armstrong, one of the backs, got a splendid black eye, and Albright a wicked looking cut over one optic. The morning practice was omitted today, and this afternoon much of the rudimentary work was eliminated. The men had their period of dummy tackling, a drill that the coaches will follow closely during the entire season in an endeavor to develop a team of sure tacklers.

In preparation for the game with Rhode Island State, on Sept. 27, two or three more periods of scrimmage will be held next week, and the faults that crop out each time will be corrected.

15 Reasons

Why First Mortgages Guaranteed by This Company Are the Best Investment for Prudent People.

12.

The Company makes frequent losses by having to take depreciated real estate and pay the lender his principal, but its losses are trifling compared with losses of investment companies on their investments in bonds and stocks.

The well managed savings banks have had the same experience. They have had to take some real estate, but the losses on it have been small compared with the depreciation of the best municipal and corporate bonds which they have to carry by law.

The lesson to all investors, individual and corporate, is that they should increase their mortgage holdings and limit their holdings of fluctuating securities.

We have guaranteed $700,000,000 in the past 27 years and no investor has ever lost a dollar.

GAIN FINAL ROUND IN MIXED DOUBLES

WOMEN PLAY STRONG GAME

Great Speed Shown by Mrs. Mills, While Mrs. Wilbourne Amazes Gallery by Her Versatility.

Mrs. D. C. Mills and Ingo Hartmann reached the final round of the mixed doubles in the Castle Point open tournament at the Hoboken Tennis Club yesterday afternoon by defeating Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Herbert W. Forster in a terrific three-set struggle scored at 4—6, 7—5, 11—9. Their opponents in the finals will be Mrs. S. E. Waring and Fred M. Letson, who had advanced on the previous day by their elimination of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen V. Brubans.

Yesterday's semi-final match was probably the best exhibition of mixed doubles seen on local courts since the metropolitan championship at Forest Hills. All four players were able to do their full individual share of court covering, with plenty of aggressive shots for attacking purposes, and both teams had played together sufficiently to work well in combination. There was also a strong rivalry between the masculine as well as the feminine opponents, all of which served to keep the tennis at top speed throughout.

While the men naturally did the hardest and most efficient work in the actual earning of points, the most surprising individual feats were performed by their partners. Mrs. Mills was hitting with great speed and accuracy, making spectacular gets in rapid succession, both fore and back hand, and often driving the ball straight at Forster so hard that he was unable to make a telling volley. Mrs. Wilbourne also amazed the gallery with her command of strokes and her willingness to exchange drives with both of her rivals. She did most of her playing from deep court, and proved a tower of defensive strength, while Forster roamed up and down the barrier, seeking what he could kill.

It was this sensational taking of chances that eventually led to the losers' undoing, for Forster began to miss the shots that he had previously anticipated unerringly, and both Mrs. Mills and Hartmann were quick to take advantage of the openings that he left. Trailing at 1—4 in the deciding set, the winners staged a magnificent pull-up, squaring the match by capturing three games in a row. The score then alternated, in a series of desperate rallies, up to 9—all, with the ultimate losers enjoying their last lead at 8—7. Here the Mills-Hartmann team braced again and maintained a slight winning edge to the finish, with the rubber scored at 11—9.

Hartmann was very strong overhead at the start, and his looping left-hand drives proved exceedingly troublesome to the opposition. But, in spite of his best efforts, the steadiness of Mrs. Wilbourne and Forster won them the opening set, 6—4.

The second session was a great battle, with Mrs. Mills and her partner constantly improving until they had made the match all square with a 7—5 victory. In spite of a temporary lapse, they succeeded in taking advantage of their final opportunity and hung grimly until the match was settled in their favor.

Today's program at the Hoboken Tennis Club includes men's singles up to the semi-final round, the women's semi-final between Mrs. Wilbourne and Mrs. E. V. Lynch, and an exhibition doubles match in which Beals Wright and Dean Mathey will face Walter Merrill Hall and Leonard Beekman, the winners of the Nassau Country Club Invitation Tournament, and runners-up at Seabright. A fourth round match for the Castle Point trophy remains to be played between Frank McWatty and F. D. Powers, the winner meeting Dr. William Rosenbaum to decide the holder of the semi-final bracket. The other contestants in the round before the semi-finals are Kirk M. Reid, who plays Ingo Hartmann, Harold Throckmorton, the New Jersey State champion, and Capt. R. C. Van Vliet, of the home club. The matches will begin at 2 P. M.

The summary:

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

"The Jest" Resumes.

After an interval of two months "The Jest" resumed last evening its interrupted engagement before a large and spellbound audience. Once more John and Lionel Barrymore give us their extraordinary performances in this absorbing play of revenge, which Edward Sheldon fashioned for them from the Italian of Sem Benelli. Their richly imaginative and eloquent playing in this blood-red play of old Florence, its beautiful setting on Arthur Hopkins's stage, and the promise it holds of finer and yet finer things to be seen there, makes the Plymouth in its time the foremost theatre of the western hemisphere.

"The Jest" comes back to town at the beginning of a season which is scarcely under way and which as yet has revealed nothing of the better things it promises. To say, then, that "The Jest" outranks all other dramatic entertainments now in New York is to say little. To say that it will continue to for many months to come is to make a fairly safe prediction. Certainly it is the one thing here or on the horizon which no one can afford to miss.

The stormy Summer vacation has wrought no important changes in the production nor abated in any degree the care with which the Sem Benelli piece is played and staged. Indeed, in the two all-engrossing rôles the performance seems to have gained, if anything, in richness—gained certainly over the work that was being done at the Plymouth in the sweltering weeks of June. Lionel Barrymore is in better voice and plays with even greater unction. His brother seems with each passing month to gain little by little in his mastery of the instrument he is still visibly and wonderfully perfecting.

There are, it is true, a few changes in the minor personnel of the production, but the Summer interval has not been availed of as an opportunity for improving the cast of the third act, to the end that the vital and gifted Gilda Varesi should not struggle unaided in the potentially stirring scene where the three women are led into the dungeon of the manacled Neri.

ASSUMED ALLIES' ASSENT

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—In reference to the statement issued through the British Press Bureau on Monday night that the Supreme Council had indorsed the British policy of evacuating Russia, withdrawing support from Kolchak and Denikin and leaving the Bolsheviki entirely alone, and the American Commission's subsequent assertion that the Russian situation was not discussed, I have learned exactly what happened.

It was just at the close of the Monday afternoon session in Premier Clemenceau's office at the French Ministry of War, and the Council of Five was just breaking up. Clemenceau, Lloyd George, Polk, Scialoja, Matsui and Foch were about to leave the room, and the party was moving toward the door when Lloyd George said suddenly:

"By the way, what is the attitude of the Peace Conference toward our withdrawal from participation in any enterprise against the Bolsheviki?"

There was a strained silence among the French, Italian, American and Japanese delegates, no one replying, as the other powers consistently have assumed the attitude that, since they are unable or unwilling to send troops to Russia to fight the Bolsheviki, they had no right to try to insist that Great Britain send or maintain troops there. Marshal Foch maintained absolute silence, and finally the other four intimated that Great Britain's withdrawal from Archangel could not be discussed by the Council of Five. That ended the matter, and the party broke up.

It is recalled that this is exactly what happened before when Lloyd George said, apropos of nothing: "Is there any objection to trying the Kaiser in England?" and nobody replied, and the Prime Minister afterward announced that the Peace Conference had agreed to try the former Kaiser in London."

ASKS BURLESON INQUIRY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Investigation of charges that Postmaster General Burleson has interfered with the work of the Civil Service Commission to obtain the appointments of Democrats as Postmasters, was asked in a resolution introduced in the Senate today by Senator Norris of Nebraska.

Senator Norris said in presenting the measure that the charges made by Charles M. Galloway, who recently resigned from the commission by request of President Wilson, are so serious as to demand immediate inquiry. He therefore proposed that the Senate Committee on Civil Service and Retrenchment at once ascertain whether Mr. Burleson has interfered with the commission, and whether President Wilson knew of and approved such interference.

Senator Norris announced that he will call up the resolution for discussion and adoption early next week. Lively debate is expected to ensue, as some Democratic Senators are beginning to evince resentment at what they term the Republicans' eagerness to cast reflections upon members of the Wilson Administration. Though there is little love for Mr. Burleson, even on the Democratic side, these Democrats feel, they said today, that the practice of investigating every charge made by some disgruntled person should be stopped.

There are many Democrats, however, who hope the resolution will be adopted, and will afford an opportunity for a pretty thorough investigation of Mr. Burleson's acts.

Owing to the pressure for action upon the Peace Treaty, it is uncertain just when Mr. Norris can get his resolution before the Senate.

Labor in the Oil Industry

Oil has always been immune from serious labor unrest. The situation is such that, in its very nature, the industry need not be subject of apprehension as to difficulties with labor. There has never been a serious strike in the production of oil, and labor unions are unknown.

The fact is such that the underlying conditions do not permit of such disturbances as exist in almost all other industries. The reasons are simple—

First, the business is scattered and isolated, and is not exposed to effects of class solidarity.

Second, there is a balance between rural and urban employment which makes for conservation of stability.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Hold Firm Until Last Hour, When Liquidation Sends Whole List Down.

Until the last hour yesterday's stock market gave no evidence of serious apprehension over the threatened steel strike, even though nearly every one in the financial district was convinced that the strike would occur. At the start of business there was little hesitation and some initial losses were recorded, but the declines did not go far and rarely extended beyond fractions, and by the end of the first hour the market had turned strong and most stocks, including United States Steel common and the others of this group, rose easily. Steel common moved up a point and Bethlehem Steel B stock rose more than 3 points. Intermediate gains were made by the others, and the whole tone of the market was strong, even buoyant at times.

This strength was well maintained as the session turned into the afternoon, and until 2 o'clock there was nothing unusual about the way prices were acting, unless it was their firmness in the face of the impending strike. Then, when the day was nearly ended, the market turned heavy and values declined rapidly, until at the close they were down to the low levels of the day and at figures which represented fairly substantial net losses. Outside of the steel stocks, which attracted most of the attention in the late break, the outstanding weak spot was the oil group, which had been weak on the previous day and which yesterday acted unsatisfactorily during most of the time. A few stocks, including some of the tobacco and food shares and American Cotton Oil and American Linseed, were firm throughout. They were the exceptions in the last hour.

The late weakness, however, can hardly be said to have grown out of any of the strike developments. Nothing new or startling occurred in the last hour to account for the sudden change in the market's complexion. In all probability, considering that yesterday was Friday and that today's session will be of only two hours, it was simply a case of liquidation in anticipation of anything which may turn up over Sunday. The Street is not, and has not been, fearful of the consequences of a strike in the steel industry. It is the general impression that the managers of the Steel Corporation feel similarly about the matter, and rather welcome the opportunity for a showdown now, in preference to having it hang over them for some time to come. It is believed that they are confident of their ability to cope with the situation and that if the strike does eventuate and the labor leaders are beaten they will be in stronger position than ever. This, of course, does not mean that they are delighted at the prospect of winning a fight and nothing more. It does mean that with the elimination of the dissenting element, or its suppression, the general business atmosphere will be clearer and business conditions will be improved.

The bond market yesterday showed some very gratifying evidence of improvement. The cheapness of money, which undoubtedly is partially accounted for by the backing up of investment capital, is beginning to have its effects upon bond values and upon the demand for good bonds. Not the least pleasing feature of the bond market was the good demand for the several descriptions of war bonds. If the campaign now being quietly pushed for the better digestion of the war issues meets with its deserved success, and the several billions of these bonds now in the hands of the banks, or virtually thus placed, are turned into investment channels, the banking situation and the investment situation will have been immeasurably improved and the way will have been opened for a comprehensive and constructive campaign for foreign investment, which is one of the things greatly to be desired at the present time.

Foreign exchange rates continued to improve yesterday, and while rates were hardly much better, so far as quotations are concerned, the tone of the market was considerably more sound than on other recent days. The theory that for the time being liquidation has spent itself may turn out to be correct, and if so there will be another drive against rates at no far distant date. On the other hand, it is possible that something has happened underneath the surface which will work for lasting improvement, or, at least, for relief from the violent and continued declines we have been having for the last six months since official support of the exchanges was withdrawn.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Steel Shares Under Pressure.

During the greater part of yesterday's trading the steel stocks continued to bear up well in the face of the strike threat. The fluctuation in Steel Common, the leader among the steel shares, was not wide, the price range for the greater part of the day being close to the 103 level. In the last hour, however, there was a fairly large volume of selling orders with not much in the way of supporting orders to buoy up the market, and the stock slipped back until it went below 102. Traders were apparently clearing the way for any unfavorable developments which might arise over the week-end. Bethlehem Steel "B", which has been one of the strong issues in recent markets, again went contrary to the general trend, a slight gain showing at the end of the day. The movement of this stock was, however, influenced by rumors as to large earnings, these serving to bring about a continuation of the accumulation which has been going on for some time.

American Tobacco Gains.

American Tobacco continued to move toward the 300 point level that has been predicted for it by some optimistic traders. This issue has in recent trading been a leader among the tobacco shares. No forward movement such as has taken place in this stock ever occurs without its retinue of rumors, and the one most prevalent with regard to American Tobacco is that the Whelan-Duke group have been buying into the company. Furthermore, there is talk of some sort of distribution of accumulated profits, but this too, is lacking in anything that is tangible.

Kelsey Wheel.

Kelsey Wheel, which, with Fisher Body, supplied a spectacular price movement not long ago, has apparently lost its buoyancy. The issue is now some twenty-nine points below its recent high, and the trading yesterday was light. This company is undoubtedly enjoying large earnings, as are all of those concerns which are in any way allied with the automobile industry, but the price movement from a little above 60 to 100 savored very much of manipulation in a stock that is not widely distributed. The same applied in the case of Fisher Body. The General Motors group may eventually desire to acquire Fisher Body, but it is doubtful if the rumor on this score had any basis in fact.

Maintenance of Way Behind.

The test period average expenditure on maintenance of way by the railroads in the first seven months of the three years totaled approximately $237,000,000. For the same seven months of 1919 the aggregate expenditure of the Railroad Administration on the same item was about $437,320,000. From 1915 to 1919 the increase in the wages of section men was 135 per cent. over the same period, and the increase in wages this year over 1917, the end of private control, was 77 or 78 per cent. What the exact increases have been in the costs of materials which go into maintenance of way have been, are not available, but it has been estimated that they have been large. So that to offset the big increase in maintenance of way expenses, it is safe to assume that expenditures by the Railroad Administration should have been at least 100 per cent. greater in the first seven months of this year than in the test period. The test period average expenditure in January was $28,483,000 and the expenditure by the Railroad Administration last January was $58,274,000, which was an increase of 104 per cent. Since that month the Administration expenditures for maintenance of way have never shown an increase of 100 per cent. and in June dropped to only 72 or 73 per cent. over the test period figures. This indicates that the Administration is a goodly distance behind what would seem to be a necessary maintenance of way expenditure.

Reasons for Decreased Maintenance.

Wage increases to section men have, of course, been the chief reason necessitating an increased expenditure by the Railroad Administration to perform the same amount of work on railroad right of way this year, but material cost increases have to be considered as well, and an item which corporate managers place no slight weight upon is the decreased efficiency of the labor which is now doing the work. No actual figures have been compiled so far to show just what this decrease has been, but that there has been a decrease is generally admitted. Men who were trained in track work have left it for other jobs and the roads have had to hire other labor which has been taught how to do the work. It would be unfair to compare the decreased efficiency of the railroad shops under Federal control with the decreased efficiency of maintenance of way labor, but it is significant that the percentage of decrease in the former has run from 30 to as high as 50 per cent.

Rails Badly Needed.

One of the greatest causes for worry by a large number of railroad managers in the northern districts of the country is the present rail situation. The President of one big road, who for obvious reasons would not allow his name to be used, said yesterday, in referring to recent reports from Washington that the Railroad Administration was about to place orders for rails, that such reports were beginning to be considered in the railroad world as camouflage. He said that the rail is badly needed right now and that it should go into the tracks, but that nothing is apparently being done by the Federal Administration to meet the emergency. He also asserted that efforts to find out what the Administration contemplates in this connection do not meet with any success.

Many Lighters Idle.

In shipping circles it has been said that many harbor lighters, which during the war were at premium, are now lying idle. Owners of these craft attribute the slackening demand to a heavy decline in shipments to foreign ports, and they also assert that this is due to the ending of the after-the-war rush for foodstuffs and other materials by European countries, which found their only immediately available markets here.

Italians Want American Tonnage.

The Italian High Commission is asking American shipbuilders to furnish figures showing what tonnage they can deliver and the delivery dates. In explaining this the Commissioners say that they have been asked to sound out the situation by Italian interests, and that while no aggregate amount of the tonnage desired has been made public, the amount will probably be considerable. Just what the volume of business done with Italy will be, according to local bankers, will depend on just what financial arrangements can be effected.

Oren Root Succeeds Fisk.

It was announced at the offices of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company yesterday that Wilbur C. Fisk had resigned as President and Oren Root, who for some years has been a Director, had been elected as his successor. Mr. Fisk will continue as Chairman of the Board of the company.

DROP IN EARNINGS ON JERSEY CENTRAL

INCREASE IN EXPENSES

Federal Net Revenues Are $8,421,800, Compared with $10,683,887 in 1917.

The pamphlet report of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey for 1918, which has just been sent out to stockholders, shows net earnings amounting to $3,603,577. This was equivalent to 13.13 per cent. earned on the $27,436,800 capital stock outstanding, and compared with 24.70 per cent. earned on the same stock in the preceding year. The corporate report of the company, in showing gross income for the year, fixed rental accrued under standard return at $8,417,071, which was 90 per cent. of standard return, as its compensation contract with the Railroad Administration had been signed before the close of 1918, but had not been executed by the Director General because of questions relating to equipment allotted by him to the company.

The remarks to shareholders by President William G. Besler drew attention to the fact that while the compensation agreed upon in the contract was $9,352,801, the company received but $1,250,000 on this account, and this was not received until Dec. 18, 1918.

The pamphlet contains, in addition to the corporate report of the company, statistics covering the operation of the properties by the Railroad Administration. These show that total operating revenues for 1918 amounted to $44,790,671, as compared with $37,096,739 in the preceding year, or an increase of more than $7,500,000, while total operating expenses increased $9,956,418, to $36,369,271.

Federal net operating revenues are shown to have been $8,421,800 as compared with $10,683,887 in 1917, and operating income for the year decreased $1,774,715 to $6,516,526. Total gross income for 1918 was $9,322,221 as compared with $9,001,604 in the preceding year and Federal net income was $7,705,362, or $720,302 less than in the last year of private control.

The general balance sheet of the company at the end of the year showed total current assets of $9,392,292 as compared with $14,056,053 in 1917, and total current liabilities of $8,766,384 as compared with $4,811,389 in the year before. In his remarks to shareholders Mr. Besler said in part:

"The following is a condensed statement of the account as between the Company and the United States Railroad Administration, as of Dec. 31, 1918:

Cash, assets collected, &c.		$14,679,837.83
Less paid on acct.	1,250,000.00
		8,102,301.13
		$22,782,138.96

CREDITS TO THE GOVERNMENT.

Liabilities paid, &c.	$16,579,276.60
Additions and betterments, (road and equipment)	5,157,663.14
		$21,736,939.74
Balance due from the Govt.		$1,045,199.22
Materials and supplies		4,810,082.95

"In addition to the above balance shown as due the company, there is an amount on account of depreciation accrued on rolling and floating equipment during the year of $1,259,896.74, which has not been taken into consideration by the United States Railroad Administration in making any settlements or payments on account."

COTTON HAS UPS AND DOWNS

Yesterday's cotton market was a dull, quiet, and uninteresting affair for the most part, and neither the bulls nor the bears found much in the way prices acted to enthuse over. At the start prices were about unchanged, and after a slight decline, which ran to only a few points, had been overcome the market started upward, aided by the firm tone at Liverpool and some private crop advices from the South which plainly were designed to aid the bulls. The advance put the market up 30 points or so by early afternoon, when there was a reaction. This in turn was followed by another advance, which brought out the best prices of the day, 45 to 50 points above the previous night's closing. But in the last half hour the market turned soft, mainly in sympathy with the break in stocks, and at the close all of the early gains had been lost and more besides. Final quotations were off 8 to 18 points on the day.

The private crop advices brought no additional information of consequence. Most of them seemed to have been "colored" by the bull element in the South, where there is a strong party committed to the rise. The trade here and the ring professionals were not inclind to follow the market up on the bulges, however, and when the turn came many of the local operators were in good position to take full advantage of it by selling at or close to the top.

Added to the late professional selling there was a good deal of liquidation in anticipation of the week-end holiday and the threatened strike in the steel industry. The cotton trade, following the stock market rather more closely than it formerly did, was quick to follow the late break in stock prices.

The day's export figures were a distinct disappointment. The total for the day was only 11,357 bales, instead of the big volume expected, and for the week the total has been only 24,754 bales, the smallest total for any week this year. In the week of July 25, when the shipping strike cut down exports so drastically, there was a total of 30,846 bales to go forward. This was followed by a weekly total of 113,705 bales, and in the week after that the exports mounted to 181,184 bales, and in no week prior to the present one since then has the total been below 66,000. In view of the demoralized foreign exchange situation this week's very great reduction in exports is considered unpleasantly significant.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Paris Newspapers Attribute Depreciation of Franc to Speculators.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—A break to-day of 41 centimes on the dollar and 63 centimes on the pound sterling, compared with yesterday's exchange prices, is the subject of comment in the newspapers here. The sudden improvement in foreign exchange is attributed to the weekly statement of the Bank of France, which for the first time in months shows an upward trend in the circulation of paper currency.

The dangerous market situation, however, is dwelt upon by L'Heure and Liberte, which declare that the present low value of the franc has been created by speculative buying which has been going on for some time with a view to profiting from the continued depreciation of French money.

La Liberte, in an editorial, calls upon the government to intervene on the market and "put a stop" to the frenzied bear campaign conducted by foreign financiers, in which the franc has been the victim." The newspaper contends that the French exchange market "should be controlled by Frenchmen."

IMPERATOR TO JOIN THE CUNARD FLEET

NOW LYING IN THE HUDSON

The Leviathan to be Turned Over to the International Mercantile Marine Company.

The agents of the Cunard Line at 22 State Street announced yesterday that the former Hamburg-American liner Imperator, which is now lying in the Hudson River after finishing her career as an American transport, has been turned over to their company by the British Ministry of Shipping, to be operated on the express mail service between New York and Southampton with the liners Aquitania and Mauretania.

The Imperator is the second largest steamship in the world . She was in Hamburg when the war started and was about to sail for New York when word was received from the head office in Berlin to held her in port. She remained at Cuxhaven, at the mouth of River Elbe, until after the armistice was signed. During that period she was loaded with German troops, who remained on board for five months in the early part of the war, waiting for the order to start on the invasion of England, but the order never came.

Gradually the mud collected so many feet thick alongside the big liner that when the United States Navy took her over last Spring to use as a transport for the return of the American Army from France, it was a gigantic task to dig her out. The Imperator was top-heavy when she made her first trip to New York with Captain Hans Ruser in command, bringing 3,450 passengers and a crew of 1,200, and on her return voyage she nearly went over on her beam ends. A few minutes more and there would have been an end of the Imperator, the officers said. She recovered herself in the nick of time, and on arrival at Hamburg the liner was sent to Stettin, where 500 tons, including the Ritz-Carlton kitchen, some lifeboats, and other heavy gear were sent down from the top deck and the three gigantic funnels were shortened.

The Imperator was built as a twenty-three-knot steamship, with four turbines of 70,000 horse power, and averaged 21.7 knots on her maiden voyage to New York, where she arrived in June, 1913. The former German Emperor, Wilhelm II., was present at the launching of the Imperator, on May 23, 1912, and named her, in the presence of a large assemblage of German naval and military officers and prominent persons from all parts of Europe.

The Imperator is 51,969 gross tonnage, 882 feet 9 inches long, 98 feet 3 inches beam, and 57 feet 1 inch depth of hold, and was equipped before the war with every modern appliance for the safety and comfort of passengers, including a gymnasium, veranda café, 146 private bathrooms, suites de luxe with private decks, in which the late President Roosevelt returned from Europe in 1913; Winter garden, Turkish bath, swimming pool, and a grand salon on the sun deck. All these fittings were removed at Hamburg when she was fitted out as a troopship by the German Government, and will have to be replaced, which will take some time.

It is expected in shipping circles that this announcement of the British Ministry of Shipping will be followed by one from the United States Shipping Board at Washington announcing that the Leviathan, formerly the Hamburg-American liner Vaterland and the largest steamship in the world, will be turned over to the International Mercantile Marine Company, to be operated under the American flag from New York to Southampton, calling at Plymouth and Cherbourg. She has already been surveyed by officials of the American Line, one of the subsidiary companies of the International Mercantile Marine, to see what alterations will have to be made.

The former North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, of 17,082 gross tonnage, which has been engaged in bringing back American troops from Brest, has been allotted to the White Star line by the Reparation Committee of the Inter-Allied Council at Paris through the British Ministry of Shipping. The liner was built in 1907 for the passenger trade between New York and Bremen and did not have her fittings removed, except on the lower decks, when she was taken over in Germany early this year for service as a transport. The White Star Line announced yesterday that she would start on her first trip from New York to Southampton via Plymouth and Cherbourg on Oct. 22.

Three Advances on Clothing.

One of the local clothiers stated yesterday he had received notice of three advances on orders he placed some time ago for Fall clothing. The goods still have to be delivered, and it is quite possible that he will have to accede to further demands before the order is filled by shipment. Some of the clothing which he is now taking into his stockroom is higher priced by several dollars than what he is now selling. He gave one instance of a suit he is at present selling for $20, for which he is now paying $22.

Harder to Get Advances.

The small retailer's position in the light of constantly increasing costs offers difficulties, it seems, that do not face the larger stores. One merchant, who conducts a modest business and endeavors to hold down his prices as long as it is possible to do so, stated yesterday that customers who patronize the big stores have been educated to quick price changes, whereas the neighborhood storekeeper must have plenty of reasons to offer whenever he asks a higher price. For this reason, he pointed out, he does not think that the same inflation of prices exists among the small stores as among their larger competitors.

No Relief in Sight Yet.

Manufacturers and dealers in shoes who had hoped for lower leather and hide prices to result from the official war on high living costs as yet see no relief in sight for them. Naturally, it is too late now for lower hide or leather prices to affect the Fall retail season, and the same will soon be true of the Spring season unless something happens along that line in the near future. Buyers of leather and shoes are not optimistic over the outlook, however, and predict that there will be another rise in this commodity before there will be a break. They also predict the same thing for hides, and some go so far as to say that the rise in the latter will come within the next six weeks. As evidence of the high and sustained cost of hides the case of nine to twelve-pound city calfskins was cited yesterday. These hides, which are quoted at $10.50 to $11 each, or about an average of $1.07½ a pound, have not changed since Sept. 5 or 6.

Colors for Spring.

Two different color tendencies in women's wear are noted in the preliminary selections made for the coming Spring. The domestic manufacturers seem to be urging the use of the darker shades, such as navy and brown, while those who get their ideas of color from Paris are inclined to the brighter hues. Among the buyers the opinion is heard that women will want the staple colors in order to provide themselves with economical garments which may be worn on practically all occasions. For this reason, it is said, naming of colors has been governed so that fully half of the orders are on navy and a large part of others on black, browns, and taupes.

What is almost an overnight demand has sold up the manufacturers of men's knitted neckwear, and the same situation is expected to develop in this line as took place in women's sweaters. Strange to say, the sweater manufacturers stoutly maintained that the popularity of knitting increased the demand for their merchandise and they pointed to greatly increased sales as proof. Now it seems a number of women have turned their needles to the making of men's scarfs and this kind of neckwear, which was dormant for some time, has sprung suddenly into the spotlight. Telegraphic orders from out-of-town concerns have failed to locate available supplies, though the market was scoured for the needed goods.

Silks a Little More Active.

During the week the silk trade has seen a little more activity both on Spring and Fall goods, filling in orders being placed on the latter. Advances are not quite as common as they were a month ago, for the reason that price is once more becoming an important consideration with buyers. From the present outlook, the output of fancies will probably run proportionately less than usual, as the manufacturers seem to favor the production of staples whenever possible. Some of the designs soon to be put out by one of the leading novelty houses show that plaids in new applications of the idea will be featured for Spring. Batik patterns will also be given a leading place in the printed goods division.

Labor Settlement Helped Things.

Saward's Journal will say today that a quick settlement of labor troubles affecting two groups of anthracite collieries prevents the tonnage loss from running into figures that would have an influence on the market or cause serious inconvenience to the retail trade. The interruption was reflected in a falling off in movement through two of the loading ports for a few days, but the local trade is in a position where a temporary cutting down of receipts is a matter of no great consequence. Retailers have the situation well in hand as far as filling back orders is concerned. Grades of bituminous coal that are being shipped abroad in large quantities have maintained their price strength much better than those that are used at home exclusively.

Face a New Competitor.

American broad silk manufacturers and other buyers of raw silks in this market appear about to face a new competitor, for the already depleted stocks of Asiatic "raws" here, in the shape of the French silk makers. Reports from Lyons indicate that market to be almost bare of Far Eastern silks. Not only are they scarce, but the steady rise in silver exchange has raised lay-down costs of these silks far above the level of the Italian varieties, which are in great demand for American account and which are rapidly disappearing from the Milan market. In view of these things, it is predicted that the Lyons manufacturers will turn more and more to this market to supply their needs, thereby helping to deplete stocks that are needed for home consumption.

Gray Goods Buyers More Cautious.

Gray goods buyers were more cautious in their operations here yesterday, and, while they bought printcloths at the advances asked by the mills, they narrowed the deliveries purchased. For instance, they paid 15½ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s yesterday for September delivery only, while on Thursday they bought the same goods for shipment to the end of the year at 15¼ cents. For September-October lots of 38½-inch 60-48s buyers paid 13¼ cents. They also paid 19¼ cents for September deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s. While there was not much snap to trading in sheetings, drills, and fine-yarn goods, a generally firmer price undertone was reported. The "weak sisters" of the market at the moment are the clothing styles, but there is no guarantee that they will remain that way long.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

For the first time since the Administration's fight against the high cost of living began, Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week showed an excess of advances over declines. The margin was not large, however, and was due mostly to the increased price strength of the nonedible commodities, such as drugs and hides. In a list containing 66 changes, 35 advances were shown. Last week there were but 17 advances in 52 revisions. In the foodstuffs the general weakness in provisions, excepting flour, was a feature.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

In the local market for provisions a surprising feature was the recovery of 40 cents a barrel in the price of Spring patent flour after three previous weeks of decline in which the price had dropped $1 a barrel. Winter straights were unchanged. Both hams and bacon were cheaper here, the break in the price of the former being quite marked. In the Chicago market live hogs did not change, but all of the other items quoted in the provisions list there were lower.

Excepting for a slight drop in cheese, the changes in the local market for dairy products were all upward. They ranged from half a cent a pound on the best butter to 2 cents a dozen on fancy nearby eggs. The best Western eggs advanced a cent a dozen. The margin between the corresponding 1918 and 1919 prices on fancy eggs is now 11 cents a dozen. The respective prices quoted for the best butter are the same, 58 cents a pound.

A drop in standard California dried peaches was the only change in the fresh and dried fruits listed, and for the first time in a very long while the vegetables list was bare of changes either way. Rice was cheaper, but this food is not in the general vegetable list. Tea, sugar and spices continued unchanged, but further weakness developed in the nominal prices quoted on Brazilian coffees. However, there is still plenty of "open water" between the current prices and last year's.

In the grains list breaks in the prices of corn, oats and prime timothy hay offset advances in rye and malting barley. Leathers were again bare of advances and declines, and in the case of the latter the same thing was true of hide quotations. Advances in hides, however, were registered by No. 1 native packers, No. 1 Texas, branded cows and No. 1 country steers. The combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils showed 22 revisions for the week, of which 13 were advances. Advances in camphor, menthol and quicksilver were among the features. In the naval stores sharp advances took place in tar and turpentine. The former went up 25 cents a barrel and the latter 12 cents a gallon.

The metals list showed more unsteadiness to the minor items than usual. Advances were indicated in foundry coke, aluminum in ton lots, and lead, while lower prices were quoted on furnace coke, spelter, tin, and lake and electrolytic coppers. The miscellaneous changes included advances in hops. English vermilion paint, and Brazilian crude rubber. In the paper list higher prices were shown in news roll and M. F. book stock. While Chinese silk was off somewhat, the Japanese standard grade advanced again.

In the textile trades more active buying of both burlaps and unfinished cottons was the feature. Most of the trading in the former was in goods to arrive here in the course of the next few weeks. The buying of gray goods, especially printcloths, resulted in quite a little recovery in prices.

$980,000 Realized for Them at Auction in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 19.—The feature of today's trading at the International Fur Exchange was 275,000 skunk. The morning opened with small collections of guanacos, hair seals, caraculs, barunduki, and astragan, each selling in record time.

Two thousand one hundred gunacos brought around $4,000, while 1,400 hair seals, a true seal but having only hair and hide, no fur, and retailed mostly as silver seals, went fairly well for around $2,500.

A small lot of caracul went to New York dealers for nearly $10,000, and 57,000 barunduki, a little chipmunk from the Southern Himalayas, went for $1,750, while 1,800 astragan sold for $1,500.

Skunk proved of widely distributed interest. Paris, London, South America, Canada and every State in the Union bought well. Opening lot of 176 prime black and short extra large brought $8.20. Similar lot brought $6.20. Black and short firsts sold mostly between $6 and $8. Similar seconds brought from $5 to $7. Black and long firsts sold from $5 to $7, and similar seconds from $3 to $5.

The highest price was $10.60 for black and short firsts, these being exceptionally heavily furred.

Choice skunk was well contended for. Average grades went well, but poor skunk was somewhat neglected. The bulk of selling ranged from $3 to $6, but plenty below $3 appeared on the ledgers. A lot of third and fourth grades mixed went for 50 cents, while fifth grades and pieces sold for a penny.

Approximately $980,000 was realized for the skunk collection, and the day's sales amounted to slightly over $1,000,000. The sales to date, nine days, amount to $14,000,000.

May Send Fewer Furs Abroad.

It was asserted in the local fur trade yesterday that, in view of the unfavorable exchange situation, there would doubtless be fewer American furs shipped to London for disposal this Fall than has been the case for some time. For quite a while now, shippers of American furs to the English market have worked under this handicap, but matters are said now to have come to an especially bad pass. Where earlier decreased values of the pound sterling could be met more or less successfully by raising the prices of the furs sent over, the depreciation of the pound has now reached a point that makes the protective price increase so large as to discourage the British fur buyers. The uncertainty as to just how far the pound will drop before any real improvement in the situation begins is not helping matters any.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A trade rumor to the effect that M. C. D. Borden & Sons had announced Spring prices on prints and percales was denied yesterday at the office of that firm. It was said that the new prices would not be made until some time in October.

S. Klein, who for the past three years was ready-to-wear buyer for the local office of B. Lowenstein & Brothers, Memphis, Tenn., is leaving for Omaha, Neb., where he will take charge of the cloak and suit department of the Orkins Brothers' store in that city.

Real Estate is Merchandise

Names for the Hall of Fame must be of those who have benefited mankind—numerous homes will soon be built on the Claflin property and all New York will benefit thereby.

MR. BROWN succeeded Chancellor McCracken as President of New York University, which is known the world over for its Hall of Fame, the sites of which were selected because of their commanding position on University Heights overlooking Washington Heights and the West Bronx.

Take the subway to 116th street and Broadway and see the magnificent buildings of Columbia University. Walk ten blocks north along Broadway and see the splendid residences and apartment houses through that region. Having done this, take the subway to 183rd street and see the magnificent buildings of New York University. Then walk ten blocks north along University avenue and see the splendid dwellings along that beautiful avenue, and picture the possibilities at its north end, the CLAFLIN ESTATE property, which is to be sold at absolute auction

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The Northwestern Missouri disturbance of Friday night is central tonight over Georgian Bay, with about the same intensity, but low pressure still persists throughout the entire West, except in the North Pacific States.

There were general rains in the Central Valleys and the Lake region and local showers in Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Eastern Texas, and Northern Arizona.

There will be rain Saturday in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, and Western New York, but, with these exceptions, fair weather will prevail Saturday and Sunday east of the Mississippi River, with temperatures generally above the seasonal average.

$1,000,000 COMPANY TO GET NEW BUS LINE

CITY LOSES PAVING UPKEEP

No Transfers Provided For In Service That Is to Begin Today Along Abandoned Car Tracks.

It was announced yesterday that the sixty motor buses which are to begin operating today in lower Manhattan, in place of the storage battery cars which are to be discontinued, will be turned over to a million-dollar corporation of which Eugene Herrmann, President of the Stewart Corporation, is the head, when the present permit for their operation expires on Dec. 20. This permit was given by the Board of Estimate to Louis Riedl, manager of the Stewart Motor Corporation, which builds and equips motor buses but does not operate them.

"All of the buses which will be placed in service will become the property of this new corporation," said Mr. Herrmann yesterday. "It is not yet entirely organized, and those interested in the organization do not want their names to become known until they are ready to begin business. The sixty buses we intend to furnish will represent an investment of only about $250,000, and the greatest distance any one of them will run for a 5-cent fare is two and a half miles. I am of the opinion that the venture will be very profitable, and that as fast as other car lines are abandoned buses will be substituted for them, to the great advantage of the public." Mr. Herrmann also said the new company had the backing of large financial interests.

The new buses will be in the sole charge of the chauffeurs. There will be no conductors. Passengers will pay as they enter. This, it was pointed out, would result in a great saving in operation, and that the entire cost would be very small compared with the operation of cars, because there would be no paving charges and no tracks to repair.

Figures prepared by men interested in the new service showed that if the buses carried a million passengers a month which have been carried by the car lines, each bus would earn $800 a month, which would not be depleted, as in the case of the car lines by transfers. Mr. Herrmann said that on Jan. 1 his company installed a bus service in Orange, N. J., for the municipal authorities and that in eight months enough was earned to pay for it. Since then, he said, the service had yielded large returns. It is the present plan to start fifteen of the buses some time this afternoon from the Chambers Street Ferry and as many as possible from other terminals. By tomorrow morning the entire service, it was said, would be in operation.

Samuel Abramson, counsel for Mr. Riedl, called at the office of the Public Service Commission yesterday to learn what steps were necessary to obtain permission from the commission to operate the buses. In line with his statement that he would do nothing to obstruct their operation, Mr. Nixon directed that the permit be issued. Mr. Nixon was incensed at the statement of Mayor Hylan on Thursday intimating that he might take steps to obstruct operation. Mr. Nixon sent the following letter to the Mayor:

Hon. John F. Hylan,
Mayor of the City of New York,
City Hall, New York, N. Y.

Sir: Today's press quotes you as saying that you hastened the granting of the right to run buses on the routes of the suspended storage battery car lines for fear that Nixon might secure a stay against such granting of a permit by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

You knew beyond doubt that I publicly stated that no interference would be exerted by me, and further that I would take every possible short cut to aid you in your experiment. I should be very reluctant to interfere with any official in the exercise of what he considers his duty under the law. Why you wish to indulge in a willful public misrepresentation of this kind, it is difficult to understand.

This commission will do all it can to perform its lawful duties in the matter. Of course, your substitute service does not cover the convenience of existing transfers, but any relief that you can supply will aid in reducing the burden so suddenly placed on the public which uses these lines.

Your attention is called to Section 53 of the Public Service Commission law, as I must assume that you wish to conform with such legal steps as are required.

Very respectfully,
LEWIS NIXON,
Commissioner.

The section of the law referred to provides that no common carrier shall begin operating without the approval of the commission or a certificate of public convenience and necessity.

Subway Builders Say Strike Makes It Impossible to Insure Safety.

Clarence A. Crane, Secretary of the General Contractors' Association, building new rapid transit lines, said last night that the delay in subway construction was the fault of the city. After pointing out that the city's investment in the Fourteenth Street-Eastern subway and connections carried interest of more than $2,000 a day, Mr. Crane said the contractors had reached the end of their resources long ago and that they were now unable to get men to take the places of men who had struck. These men, the statement says, have been enticed away by higher wages in other occupation.

"There is a very serious menace to the public in the present situation," Mr. Crane said. "Fourteenth Street, from Eighth Avenue to Avenue B, is carried on timbers and requires daily inspection and repairs by skilled men. At present the contractors are unable to keep more than a handful of men to do this important work. It may be necessary to divert traffic to avert a disaster."

DIVORCE REPORT SET ASIDE.

Justice Tierney to Name New Referee in Hand Case.

Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney, in the Bronx, yesterday set aside the report of Referee Robert L. Morreil, in which the latter sought to exonerate Claudius L. Hand, corporation attorney, of 46 Broadway, in the suit for divorce brought by his wife, Marguerite E. Hand, of the Hotel Newton, Ninety-second Street and Broadway. The Justice said he would submit the case to another referee, and pending the outcome of the case granted Mrs. Hand $50 a month alimony and $100 counsel fee.

The plaintiff in the action alleges that her husband maintained an apartment at 10 East Fifteenth Street, and that last December she, two detectives, and her uncle raided the place and found a woman there. It was in hearing a motion in this suit that Justice Tierney last week made his remarks regarding Greenwich Village, saying it was frequented by types of foreigners who were making the place a disgrace to the city.

In setting aside Referee Morrell's report, Justice Tierney said:

"I think the referee was too indulgent in throwing the cloak of charitable construction over the activities of the co-respondent and in doing so did an injustice to the plaintiff's rights."

PRESBYTERIAN ELECTIONS.

Dr. Kerr Becomes President of General Board of Education.

J. B. Wootan, Director of Publicity for the Presbyterian Church, announced yesterday that Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, pastor of Shady Side Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Penn., had been elected President of the Presbyterian General Board of Education at its semi-annual meeting at Presbyterian headquarters, 156 Fifth Avenue, succeeding Dr. Charles F. Wishart, who has become the President of Wooster College and resigned as head of the board.

At the same meeting Dr. Frederick E. Stockwell, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Trenton, N. J., was elected associate secretary in charge of the college department, to succeed Dr. James E. Clarke of Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Stockwell has been for several years a member and clerk of the college board. He will probably assume his duties on Nov. 1, when Dr. Clarke is relieved.

MAN THREATENED BY CROWD

It took several policemen to get Charles Lefkowitz of 56 East 118th Street through an angry crowd that threatened him last night and take him to the West 123d Street Station, where he was locked up charged with having attempted to assault an 11-year-old girl. Lefkowitz, it was charged, entered the hallway of 371 West 114th Street and asked Hermina Frank, who lived there, where to find a certain apartment. A few seconds later she began to scream. Her brother Frank heard the noise and ran into the hall. She told him that Lefkowitz had attempted to place his hand over her mouth and had seized her by the arm, according to her brother. The brother grabbed Lefkowitz and began to beat him.

The man ran into the street with Frank after him. The chase and the screams of the girl brought tenants from their apartments, and soon the fugitive was being assaulted by a crowd. He broke away and ran to Eighth Avenue. He was backed up against an elevated pillar, surrounded by an angry crowd, when the policemen came and arrested him.

$100,000 SUIT OVER KILLING

Limited letters of administration were granted in the Surrogate's Court, Brooklyn, yesterday to Mrs. Beckie Silverberg, 2818 West Twenty-third Street, Coney Island, whose husband, Samuel, was shot and killed, it is alleged, by Mrs. Rebecca Wansker in a dispute over a lease. Mrs. Wansker was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. She was granted a certificate of reasonable doubt and is now in the Raymond Street jail pending her appeal.

The purpose of the letters of admintration is to allow Mrs. Silverberg to sue Mrs. Wansker for $100,000 damages. In the complaint, which was served on Mrs. Wansker in the Raymond Street jail, Mrs. Silverberg charges Mrs. Wansker with having "willfully and maliciously assaulted the plaintiff's intestate, by pointing a loaded firearm at him and discharging the same, whereby he was severely and seriously injured and by reason of his injuries he died, leaving a widow and four children."

FIRST GERMAN GOODS SINCE 1917 ARRIVE

FOOD CHEAP IN HAMBURG

Roast Duck Dinner 75 Cents, and Everything in Proportion Costs Less Than Here.

The first cargo of German manufactured goods since the United States entered the war in April, 1917, arrived in New York yesterday on the steamship Jason of the Kerr Steamship Line from Hamburg under the command of Captain W. H. Bevan. It consisted chiefly of plate glass and other kinds of glassware, dolls' eyes, beet sugar seed, 250 tons, and beaded bags. The ship did not bring any toys, and the total cargo amounted to 350 tons.

Captain Bevan said that the port of Hamburg appeared much the same as it did before the war, except there was not so much dust and bustle to be seen along the docks. There was plenty of food in the restaurants, where a portion of roast duck with vegetables, bread and beer could be had for 75 cents. Everything in proportion was much cheaper than it was in the United States.

The Captain added that very few soldiers were to be seen in the streets in Hamburg, and that the people with whom he talked said that they were only waiting for the Peace Treaty to be ratified to start in real earnest to restore their commerce, and more especially the trade of their city as one of the world's greatest free ports.

Three days out from Hamburg the crew discovered a stowaway, Rufuor Laffleth, 28 years old, a machinist, who told Captain Bevan that he had hidden away on his ship because he was tired of Germany and wanted to live in the United States. He was sent to Ellis Island by the immigration authorities, and may be sent back to Hamburg as an undesirable alien liable to become a public charge.

LEGION EXTENDS ITS DRIVE.

Plans to Swell 30,000 Added to Ranks Here to 100,000.

With its membership in this county swelled to more than 30,000, the American Legion announced last night that its membership drive would be extended over next week in an attempt to reach 100,000. The drive was to have ended tonight.

Richmond Levering, Chairman for the drive for this county, resigned yesterday because of pressing private business and his place is being taken by Colonel Robert M. Watkins.

Fifteen air service men started a post last night at the Yale Club. Postal employes applied for a post, to be known as "The Postal Post." A meeting has been called for tomorrow morning of all service men employed in the New York Post Office, to be held in Curry's Hall, 329 West Forty-seventh Street. James A. Fanches, who is directing the organization, said that he hoped to have a post with 1,500 membership among postal employes.

The 305th Machine Gun Battalion Post applied for a charter. F. Winslow Williams, care of Kidder, Peabody & Co., 17 Wall Street, who is organizing the post, said that a majority of the men in the battalion had already enrolled and that he was anxious to get in touch with any one who had been overlooked.

H. C. L. and Hats

LAST week more than 100,000 of our customers left their old straw hats with us when they walked out with their new Fall Felts.

This week new faces wearing last year's Felt Hats are coming into our stores to get this Season's Styles. Most of these hats show the effects of a winter's battle with a Weather-Man—they have "service" marks all over the outside and the "marks" of high-priced hatters on the inside.

Now, I don't blame a man for taking a second look at last year's hat after he takes a first look at this year's prices. $6 to $18 and $8 to $30—the advertised prices of some high-price makers—are enough to make any man who wears a hat feel sad.

I think I would dig up, dust off, rub down the rough spots and smooth out the old-age wrinkles in my last year's bonnet—if I thought it was necessary to pay these prices.

But it isn't necessary to pay these fancy prices and it's not necessary to wear last year's hat. If it doesn't make you feel proud to pay more than you have to, I can give you all you want in a hat—any shape or shade, soft hat or derby, and
